Drake R7, R8, R8A and R8B
70' and 200' wires

239 countries heard and 224 QSL'd (veried, for those in Glendale) using the NASWA Country List.

And, as always, don't let your children attend the Sullivan College of Technology & Design.

They've hired at least one dufus who once claimed to have a PhD, and who knows, there may be more dufi there.

That price is incredible. I hope to one day actually see one of these receivers in action and see if the price tag makes sense.

When it says can be used as a "surveillance receiver"....what exactly can that do "surveillance" wise? Inquiring minds want to know.

It makes no difference what they are. All I know is they are elected public officials who were caught taking bribes. Scum.

The fact that Rabbis were involved in kidney smuggling and money laundering via charitable donations is an extra.

RHF will, as always, see this as an attack on Jews, not a criminal investigation resulting in arrests of the criminals.

I wonder if all of the kidneys came from White Slaves being held in Israel?

There is no such thing as 'Islamic Fascism'. The tenets of the faith preclude Corporations from running Government. What constitutes Fascism are things like a huge oil company getting their guy in as Vice-President and then bombing the hell out of oil rich countries.

As for Islam waging war on the 'West', check out the millions of Arabs killed off by the 'West' over the last 1500 years.

If someone did that to you and your people, wouldn't you start thinking that perhaps, just perhaps, the bastards were out to get you?

It is surprising that so few of the Islamic types actually take up arms.
As a people, considering the atrocities carried out against them, they actually seem very reserved and show an amazing amount of self control.

The arrests were the result of a TEN year long investigation. That would make it a BUSH attack on the Men of Religion and G_D.

Also, it would appear that the American are the most heavily armed people on earth. Hell, even Wal Mart can't keep up with the demand for ammunition.

When will you stop your attempts to fan hatred against others not of your religion?

Jesus taught forgiveness and love of neighbour.

If you go deeper into your insanity, I can actually see you cutting some children's throats and then trying to blame it on the Arabs.

Stop your hatred and return to Jesus. Return to LOVE.

3572. GUILTY: Shortwave preacher Tony Alamo to rot in jail

TEXARKANA, Ark. - Tony Alamo, a one-time street preacher who became an outfitter of the stars and fought the federal government over claims he underpaid followers for church work, was convicted Friday of taking five girls across state lines for sex.

Alamo stood silently as the verdict was read, a contrast to his occasional mutterings during testimony. His five victims sat looking forward in the gallery. One, a woman he "married" at age 8, wiped away a tear.

"I'm just another one of the prophets that went to jail for the Gospel," Alamo called to reporters afterward as he was escorted to a waiting U.S. marshal's vehicle.

Shouts of "Bye, bye, Bernie" — Alamo was born Bernie Lazar Hoffman — came from a crowd gathered on the Arkansas side of the courthouse, which straddles the Texas-Arkansas border.

Jurors were convinced Alamo had had sex with the girls when they were underage, but deliberated for more than a day to ensure that they considered everything, jury foreman Frank Oller of Texarkana said.

"That was the evidence. That was proven," Oller said. "We came up with a full decision that we are quite satisfied with."

Defense lawyer Don Ervin said the evidence against the 74-year-old preacher was insufficient and that the preacher would appeal. He also said Alamo's criminal history — he served four years in prison on tax charges in the 1990s — "will hurt him" at sentencing in six to eight weeks.

The jury of nine men and three women found Alamo guilty of taking girls as young as 9 across state lines for sex, in violation of a nearly century-old federal law. Alamo was accused in a 10-count indictment that said the abuse started in 1994.

The evangelist could spend the rest of his life in prison, since each count is punishable by 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine. Sentencing will be held in six to eight weeks.

Women ranging from age 17 to 33 told jurors that Alamo "married" them in private ceremonies while they were minors, sometimes giving them wedding rings. Each detailed trips beyond Arkansas' borders for Alamo's sexual gratification.

Alamo never testified. His lawyers told him he should not directly challenge their testimony and they argued to jurors that the girls traveled for legitimate church business.

State and federal agents raided Alamo's compound last Sept. 20 after repeated reports of abuse. He was later charged with violating the Mann Act, a nearly century-old morality law.

Alamo blamed Vatican
Defense lawyers said the government targeted Alamo because it doesn't like his apocalyptic brand of Christianity. Alamo has blamed the Vatican for his legal troubles, which include a four-year prison term for tax evasion in the 1990s.

With little physical evidence, prosecutors relied on the women's stories to paint an emotional portrait of a charismatic religious leader who controlled every aspect of his subjects' lives. No one obtained food, clothing or transportation without him knowing about it.

At times, men were ordered away from the compound and their wives kept as another Alamo bride. Minor offenses from either gender drew beatings or starvation fasts.

Alamo remained defiant as jurors heard testimony for a week. He openly referred to the Branch Davidian raid at Waco, Texas, muttered expletives during others' testimony and fell asleep at times — while alleged victims spoke from the witness stand and again as prosecutors urged his conviction.

In the end, prosecutors convinced jurors in Arkansas' conservative Christian climate that Alamo's ministry offered him the opportunity to prey on the young girls of loyal followers who believed him to be a prophet who spoke directly to God. They described a ministry that ran on the fear of drawing the anger of "Papa Tony."

In closing arguments Wednesday, Assistant U.S. Attorney Kyra Jenner described Alamo as a manipulator who dictated everything from what his followers believed to what they could eat. At one point, she turned to stare directly at him.

"Your crimes have been exposed in this courtroom," Jenner said. Alamo sneered and waved her away.

Fell asleep during trial
At one point, his mouth hung wide open as his head rolled back in his chair. A member of his legal team woke him by throwing a pen onto the defense table. When he was awake, Alamo muttered "bull----" at times during Jenner's remarks.

Defense lawyer Phillip Kuhn told jurors not to be swayed by testimony unrelated to the indictment — that Alamo may have had multiple wives, or that he may have set up businesses to evade taxes. He said prosecutors deliberately strayed from the specific charges against Alamo.

"Was it to give Tony a fair trial or was it to turn the jury into a moral mob?" Kuhn asked.

Defense attorneys largely stayed away from challenging the accusers' testimony about sex with the evangelist. Alamo's lawyers rested their case Wednesday after persuading the flamboyant minister not to testify. Though he had told reporters he would take the stand, Alamo said Wednesday afternoon he chose not to testify in an "unjust court."

The evangelist built a multi-state ministry on the backs of followers who worked in various businesses to support the church. In the 1980s, he designed and sold elaborately decorated denim jackets, hobnobbed with celebrities and owned a compound in western Arkansas that featured a heart-shaped swimming pool.

Federal agents seized a large portion of his assets in the 1990s to settle tax claims after courts declared his operations a business, not a church. Among items offered for auction were the plans for the studded jacket Michael Jackson wore on his "Bad" album.

The Southern Poverty Law Center considers his ministry a "cult."

CNN Caught in Genocidal Correctness

Before the Organ Harvesting Story

•1999: Falun Gong persecution begins. Media covers it. Then, White House signs trade deal.
•2000: Ted Koppel has three guests for it, and zero against it. Congress passes the trade deal. Each year since: News media dodges many stories emerging from the Falun Gong crackdown.

•2003: This author gives a speech and coins the term "genocidal correctness."
•2004: Anti-communist Falun Gong related newspaper, the Epoch Times, debuts in English.
•2005: People begin quitting the Communist Party in droves. CNN dodges the story.
The Organ Harvesting Story

•March 9, 2006: The Epoch Times breaks the story of forced organ harvesting at a facility called Sujiatun (in Shenyang City, Liaoning Province, China)
•Shortly thereafter: A military doctor of Shenyang military zone corroborates the horror and indicates that a network of 36 facilities participate.
•April 4, 2006: The Coalition to Investigate the Persecution of Falun Gong (CIPFG) is launched.
The heckler on the South Lawn of the White House and CNN's Wolf Blitzer

•April 20, 2006: With an Epoch Times press pass and on the South Lawn of the White House, Dr. Wenyi Wang becomes the "Rosa Parks" of this cause, by shouting at the U.S. and Chinese Presidents who were meeting together, "Stop the killing!"
•April 21, 2006: CNN's Wolf Blitzer on The Situation Room has Wenyi Wang as a guest. On the way in during the elevator ride, Blitzer's producer coaches and warns Wang: "Don't talk about organ harvesting!" On TV, Blitzer proceeds to act like a school headmaster, scolding Wang as though the only story was her disruption at the White House. She was there with a message. CNN didn't get the message—although they knew enough to say "shush" about that message just before the on-camera appearance.
The Kilgour-Matas report and CNN's Anderson Cooper

•May 24, 2006: CIPFG seeks and obtains the help of Canadian public figures, David Kilgour and David Matas, to investigate the allegations of organ harvesting.

•June 17, 2006: While Kilgour and Matas were investigating, CNN's Anderson Cooper did a report about "organ tourism," about a California man who went to China for an organ transplant. Cooper did raise an eyebrow at China, saying that a prison population was "vulnerable." But, he stopped short of mentioning Falun Gong, so there was no exposure of that persecution / crackdown campaign, and no indication that the organ sources may be prisoners of conscience.
•July 6, 2006: Kilgour and Matas issue the first edition of their report, later renamed Bloody Harvest. After looking over all available evidence they wrote, "the government of China and its agencies have put to death a large but unknown number of Falun Gong prisoners of conscience. Their vital organs, including hearts, kidneys, livers and corneas, were virtually simultaneously seized involuntarily for sale at high prices." They concluded "that there has been and continues today to be large-scale organ seizures from unwilling Falun Gong practitioners."

The Kilgour-Matas report is the smoking gun. David Kilgour is a former Member of Parliament in Canada, and was Secretary of State for the Asia Pacific region. David Matas is an international human rights attorney. With their political and legal backgrounds, they would know better than to be casual or inexact with public statements. While they knew the stakes in international relations, and while they knew the enormity of the charges against Communist China, they nonetheless undertook to inform the world of their findings.

The Kilgour-Matas report was never debunked by the news media; however, for their own convenience reporters wrote that the entire organ harvesting story was discredited. Apparently, reporters will manufacture lies to suit their convenience and to preclude further research or writing. The Wall Street Journal printed this falsehood, but stopped before citing any source or basis. It's akin to printing, "They say it's not true." That invites the question, who are "they"? Perhaps, do U.S. reporters have communist masters in Beijing?

What sociopathic reporters were doing was clearly an example of genocidal correctness and of making a choice to err on the side of death, rather than to err on the side of life. Their omission is now exposed, at least to history.

And at CNN? The release of the Kilgour-Matas report did not cause a ripple. The point being that Kilgour and Matas got the story, and CNN didn't. For that matter, the American public was kept in the dark for the next two years.

Around the world, Kilgour and Matas got their points across. At the end of 2006, I analyzed their clip sheet, and I learned interesting things about where their publicity was (and wasn't):

I doubt that you would know the truth if it bit you on your ass. Where would be the rationale in the Dem. party electing as its representative an individual who wouldn't be legally allowed to hold the Presidency of the USA if he was born outside of the USA? Can you even come up with a reasonable explanation for that? It's funny how some demented individuals can hold the believe that BHO was born outside of the USA. If there were even something of substance do you not think that the Reps. would have gone ape shit over ineligibility of BHO?

Rabbis getting busted for money laundering through charities is almost as funny as the illegal organs they were shipping to the States.

Wonder if they hid them in the Mozza ball shipments...

Then there are the crooked politicians taking bribes.

Since he's claiming he's plonked me, I won't bother replying to his nonsensical reply to you. He claims there's no "evidence", yet he swallows totally baseless stuff on a daily basis. Ain't kooks great?

I wish Obama would put out whatever it is they want, just to watch them tap dance furiously, and refuse to give up their kooktardic fantasies, dreaming about the day Obama is proven to not be a citizen, and removed from office.

I hope he gets re-elected, just so I can sit back and watch the Kooktard Circus till 2017.

Of course, if this had happened during the Fascist Bush Administration, you would likely have approved of the police action removing the upside-down flag. Tell the truth.

The truth is, local police don't generally operate as an arm of either the Bush or Obama administrations, and referring to police as "Liberal Fascists" stretches credibility beyond the breaking point.

Concept of God in islam
Sorry for not sending anything related to this group but it might be something new to you.

Concept of God in islam

It is a known fact that every language has one or more terms that are used in reference to God and sometimes to lesser deities. This is not the case with Allah. Allah is the personal name of the One true God. Nothing else can be called Allah. The term has no plural or gender. This shows its uniqueness when compared with the word god which can be made plural, gods, or feminine, goddess. It is interesting to notice that Allah is the personal name of God in Aramaic, the language of Jesus and a sister language of Arabic. The One true God is a reflection of the unique concept that Islam associates with God. To a Muslim, Allah is the Almighty, Creator and Sustainer of the universe, Who is similar to nothing and nothing is comparable to Him. The Prophet Muhammad was asked by his contemporaries about Allah; the answer came directly from God Himself in the form of a short chapter of the Quran, which is considered the essence of the unity or the motto of monotheism. This is chapter 112 which reads:

"In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate. Say (O Muhammad) He is God the One God, the Everlasting Refuge, who has not begotten, nor has been begotten, and equal to Him is not anyone."

Some non Muslims allege that God in Islam is a stern and cruel God who demands to be obeyed fully. He is not loving and kind. Nothing can be farther from truth than this allegation. It is enough to know that, with the exception of one, each of the 114 chapters of the Quran begins with the verse: "In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate." In one of the sayings of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) we are told that "God is more loving and kinder than a mother to her dear child." But God is also Just. Hence evildoers and sinners must have their share of punishment and the virtuous, His bounties and favors. Actually God’s attribute of Mercy has full manifestation in His attribute of Justice. People suffering throughout their lives for His sake and people oppressing and exploiting other people all their lives should not receive similar treatment from their Lord. Expecting similar treatment for them will amount to negating the very belief in the accountability of man in the Hereafter and thereby negating all the incentives for a moral and virtuous life in this world. The following Quranic verses are very clear and straightforward in this respect:

"Verily, for the Righteous are gardens of Delight, in the Presence of their Lord. Shall We then treat the people of Faith like the people of Sin? What is the matter with you? How judge you?" (68:34-36)

Islam rejects characterizing God in any human form or depicting Him as favoring certain individuals or nations on the basis of wealth, power or race. He created the human beings as equals. They may distinguish themselves and get His favor through virtue and piety only. The concept that God rested in the seventh day of creation, that God wrestled with one of His soldiers, that God is an envious plotter against mankind, or that God is incarnate in any human being are considered blasphemy from the Islamic point of view. The unique usage of Allah as a personal name of God is a reflection of Islam’s emphasis on the purity of the belief in God which is the essence of the message of all God’s messengers. Because of this, Islam considers associating any deity or personality with God as a deadly sin which God will never forgive, despite the fact He may forgive all other sins.

The Creator must be of a different nature from the things created because if he is of the same nature as they are, he will be temporal and will therefore need a maker. It follows that nothing is like Him. If the maker is not temporal, then he must be eternal. But if he is eternal, he cannot be caused, and if nothing outside him causes him to continue to exist, which means that he must be Self-Sufficient. And if He does not depend on anything for the continuance of His own existence, then this existence can have no end. The Creator is therefore eternal and everlasting: ‘He is the First and the Last.’ He is Self-Sufficient or Self-Subsistent or, to use a Quranic term, Al-Qayyum. The Creator does not create only in the sense of bringing things into being, He also preserves them and takes them out of existence and is the ultimate cause of whatever happens to them.

"God is the Creator of everything. He is the guardian over everything. Unto Him belong the keys of the heavens and the earth." (39:62, 63)
"No creature is there crawling on the earth, but its provision rests on God. He knows its lodging place and its repository." (11:6)

God’s Attributes

If the Creator is Eternal and Everlasting, then His attributes must also be eternal and everlasting. He should not lose any of His attributes nor acquire new ones. If this is so, then His attributes are absolute. Can there be more than one Creator with such absolute attributes? Can there be for example, two absolutely powerful Creators? A moment’s thought shows that this is not feasible. The Quran summarizes this argument in the following verses:

"God has not taken to Himself any son, nor is there any god with Him: For then each god would have taken of that which he created and some of them would have risen up over others." (23:91)

And Why, were there gods in earth and heaven other than God, they (heaven and earth) would surely go to ruin." (21:22)

The Oneness of God

The Quran reminds us of the falsity of all alleged gods. To the worshippers of man-made objects, it asks:

"Do you worship what you have carved yourself?" (37:95) "Or have you taken unto you others beside Him to be your protectors, even such as have no power either for good or for harm to themselves?" (13:16)

To the worshippers of heavenly bodies it cites the story of Abraham:

"When night outspread over him he say a star and said, ‘This is my Lord.’ But when it set he said, ‘I love not the setters.’ When he saw the moon rising, he said, ‘This is my Lord.’ But when it set he said, ‘If my Lord does not guide me I shall surely be of the people gone astray.’ When he say the sun rising, he said, ‘This is my Lord; this is greater.’ But when it set he said, ‘O my people, surely I quit that which you associate, I have turned my face to Him Who originated the heavens and the earth; a man of pure faith, I am not of the idolaters.’" (6:76-79)

The Believer’s Attitude

In order to be a Muslim, i.e., to surrender oneself to God, it is necessary to believe in the oneness of God, in the sense of His being the only Creator, Preserver, Nourisher, etc. But this belief - later on called "Tawhid Ar-Rububiyyah is not enough." Many of the idolaters knew and believed that only the Supreme God could do all this. but that was not enough to make them Muslims. To tawhid ar-rububiyyah one must add tawhid al’uluhiyyah, i.e., one acknowledges the fact that is God alone Who deserves to be worshipped, and thus abstains from worshipping any other thing or being. Having achieved this knowledge of the one true God, man should constantly have faith in Him, and should allow nothing to induce him to deny truth. When faith enters a person’s heart, it causes certain mental states which result in certain actions. Taken together these mental states and actions are the proof for the true faith. The Prophet said,

"Faith is that which resides firmly in the heart and which is proved by deeds."

Foremost among those mental states is the feeling of gratitude towards God, which could be said to be the essence of ‘ibada’ (worship). The feeling of gratitude is so important that a non-believer is called ‘kafir,’ which means ‘one who denies a truth’ and also ‘one who is ungrateful.’ A believer loves, and is grateful to God for the bounties He bestowed upon him, but being aware of the fact that his good deeds, whether mental or physical, are far from being commensurate with Divine favors, he is always anxious lest God should punish him, here or in the Hereafter. He, therefore, fears Him, surrenders himself to Him and serves Him with great humility. One cannot be in such a mental state without being almost all the time mindful of God. Remembering God is thus the life force of faith, without which it fades and withers away. The Quran tries to promote this feeling of gratitude by repeating the attributes of God very frequently. We find most of these attributes mentioned together in the following verses of the Quran:

"He is God; there is no god but He, He is the Knower of the unseen and the visible; He is the All-Merciful, the All-Compassionate. He is God, there is no God but He. He is the King, the All-Holy, the All-Peace, the Guardian of Faith, the All-Preserver, the All-Mighty, the All-Compeller, the All-Sublime. Glory be to God, above that they associate! He is God the Creator, the Maker, the Shaper. To Him belong the Names Most Beautiful. All that is in the heavens and the earth magnifies Him; He is the All-Mighty, the All-Wise." (59:22-24)

"There is no god but He, the Living, the Everlasting. Slumber seizes Him not, neither sleep; to Him belongs all that is in the heavens and the earth. Who is there that shall intercede with Him save by His leave? He knows what lies before them and what is after them, and they comprehend not anything of His knowledge save such as He wills. His throne comprises the heavens and earth; the preserving of them oppresses Him not; He is the All-High, the All-Glorious." (2:255)

"People of the Book, go not beyond the bounds in your religion, and say not as to God but the truth. The Messiah, Jesus son of Mary, was only the Messenger of God, and His Word that He committed to Mary, and a Spirit from Him. So believe in God and His Messengers, and say not, ‘Three.’ Refrain; better is it for you. God is only one God. Glory be to Him - (He is) above having a son." (4:171)

Perhaps I should clarify: When googling "CHU" most of the results I got concerned "CHina Unicom".

I suspected this was a Canadian txer but that perhaps like everything

I don't need sunscreen where I live, but I never go bare chested outside either.One time back when the TRAITOR Oliver North trial was going on, I went on my two weeks vacation to Florida.I didn't think about smearing on some Bull Frog sunscreen.I was at Daytona Beach and I was wearing my swimming trunks and a short sleeve shirt and looking at the bikini gals on the beach and wadeing in the water.I got sun burnt reallllll bad! I got back into my van and I drove back home.When I got home, I sat on my couch picking at those sun burnt places on my feet and watching the TRAITOR Oliver North on tv.My two weeks vacation in Florida cut short to only three days.That Florida sun will burn the pizz out of you if you don't watch out!

3621. Balanced amplifier?

I'd like to try building an untuned loop amplifier covering HF and wonder if anyone has seen links on this.

The thinking so far is using a pair of 2n2219a bipolar transistors running a few hundred milliamps, with their collectors driving opposite ends of an RF output transformer, and a reasonably large loop (say 1 meter square or more).

I'd like the output to be "hot" enough to compensate for a losses from a nice long run of cheap cable-TV type coax cable (through which power will be fed up to the amp). But not so "hot" as to create distortion.

Anyone here have experience with this sort of project? If so, is the 2n2219a a stupid choice? Would I be better with JFETs, and would a single-ended amplifier work almost as well as a balanced amp? (My thinking is the balanced amp would potentially be quieter.)

It would be fun to try this, and my junk box is overflowing with parts, so why not? :)

Hello Ross,

I did some experiments, with same type of transistors. My loop was made from chicken mesh to reduce the impedance in the high part of HF. Low impedance reduces the contribution from the base current noise from the transistors.

I had to do some tweaking to avoid parasitic oscillation. I also had intermodulation distortion from VHF that was noticeable at around 5 MHz. The reason was the increased sensitivity of the loop around the VHF broadcast band. Adding RC section parallel to the loop did reduce this significantly (below noise level at HF).

Other issue was intermodulation in my receiver (I checked this by adding a tunable filter between the amplifier and the receiver). Reducing the gain by adding some emitter resistance did help.

In the end I changed the loop into a loop with natural balun (same principle as used in small loops for EMC purpose, the have a cut in the middle [opposite to the feed point]). About 10 m low loss coaxial cable (with common mode ferrites) is between the loop and a simple LC parallel circuit with selectable tabs to have some preselection and matching.

I also built a 2 stage non-balanced amplifier with feedback via the emitter of the 2n2219 input transistor (all inside the antenna loop itself, fed over the coaxial cable). Using 2n2219 with 2N3906 resulted in intermodulation.

Changing to BFR91A (input stage) and BF979 (buffer, is PNP, I used two devices in parallel) gave a significant reduction of intermodulation (because of higher open loop gain). So if you want to use 2n2219A as a single stage, a balanced amplifier will definitely better then an unbalanced stage.

I live in an almost flat area (valid for most parts of the Netherlands) with many signals (and noise) present. So I didn't need additional amplification for HF (based on chicken mess loop with 1m diameter). When you live in a remote area you probably need some gain.

This has gone on long enough.

Wake up, people!

The whole BS now going on with North Korea isn't about North Korea at all.

I'd like to enlighten you.

China wants Taiwan. Badly.

China is on the verge of fiscally owning the US. The US owes them a billion dollars more a DAY. Every day.

The US can't just hand over Taiwan without looking like hypocrites.

The solution? Bring about a global crisis in the area. China will step in and 'defuse' the situation. That will come at the expense of a now independent Taiwan.

The situation will be manipulated in the press to show us just how close we came to the brink and how a now 'united' China helped bring about world peace and stability. I'm looking at roughly a three year window on this.

I feel as certain about this as I did when I posted Colin Powell would show up in the Hillary Clinton (Democratic) camp at some point in the election. You laughed.

Hell, Clinton would have been President today had she asked Powell to be her running mate.

Scary thought.

Good post Mike. I'll have to say, that jackball talks a lot of crap. But like with S.Hussein over in Iraq, he keeps bellowing and threatening or over exagerrating what their country is capable of doing and sooner or later one or more countries is going to call his bluff.

Like Brenda Ann has said, not verbatim, but that it would basically be suicide. I would like to think that also, but apparently he doesn't think that or he is just so baked he either doesn't care or doesn't have a clue how it is going to end up.

I think it is time for someone to give him a taste test.

We're living in exciting times IMO.

Mike,

The problem with your prognosticated scenario is that while N Korea may be good at sabre-rattling, it is competent in very few other areas. I just don't see the resolution of the N Korean crisis be worth the perceptual cost of giving up Taiwan, an action that might actually induce the nuclear proliferation of countries such as S Korea, Japan, and the Philippines. Why make that risky bargain, when if we really wanted to take N Korea out, S. korea and Japan could probably serve very effectively as proxy forces? Now if N. Korea could devastate a proxy force of ours, we might have to turn to China to resolve the elevated crisis. But, I just don't see N Korea being able to withstand engagement with any semi-modern military force. You got to remember, the N Koreans don't even seem very effective with their missile targeting. That takes tech they don't got.

While I don't think we will ever officially hand Taiwan to China, China is slowly but surely, assimilating Taiwan. Most of Taiwan's movies and TV shows are bootlegged and broadcast all over China. The Chinese love Taiwanese culture, they like it's appeal to tradition. Business partnerships between firms in Taiwan and mainland China are skyrocketing, with Taiwanese venture capitalists working directly with the Chinese gov't in opening up new plants. I don't think China would feel that the risks of causing perceptions of hypocrisy with N. Korea are justified. In 20 years, Taiwan will be like Hong Kong - a special business area of the Chinese Communist empire. The Chinese will leave us to the resolution of our own problems with N. Korea.

There's no reason to really worry about N. Korea. Their current mad leader will die soon and their society will slowly start moderating. Those people must be pretty tired of stripping trees to eat the bark.

No need to overreact,

Mike

- China is slowly but surely, assimilating Taiwan.

It would appear that it is Taiwan that "is slowly but surely, assimilating" itself back into China.

- Most of Taiwan's
- movies and TV shows are bootlegged and broadcast all over China. The
- Chinese love Taiwanese culture, they like it's appeal to tradition.
- Business partnerships between firms in Taiwan and mainland China are
- skyrocketing, with Taiwanese venture capitalists working directly with
- the Chinese gov't in opening up new plants. I don't think China would
- feel that the risks of causing perceptions of hypocrisy with N.
Korea
- are justified. In 20 years, Taiwan will be like Hong Kong - a special
- business area of the Chinese Communist empire. The Chinese will leave
- us to the resolution of our own problems with N. Korea.

China [PRC] is Taiwan's Closest and most Natural {Etnic & Cultural} Market and Business Partner.

China [PRC] has closed much of the World 'Off" to Taiwan.

A "Unity Relationship" with China [PRC] with Taiwan like Hong Kong's Special Administered Region (SAR)
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Hong_Kong 'status' would Open-Up more of China to Taiwan and also re-open all World Markets to Taiwan. It is in Taiwan's long term Social-Economic Interests to be Part-of-China; and Taiwan has been moving in that direction; decade by decade since the 1980s.

> There's no reason to really worry about N. Korea.

-wrt- There’s a Man with a Bomb over there, Telling the USA to 'beware'.

It's not just one Leader in North Korea :
It's a Whole Political Leadership
It's a Whole Military Apparatus North Korea 'needs' a "Cultural Revolution" to Transform the Nation and there is no Political Minority within the Country to do that.
South Korea can't do it.
The Russians can't do it.
Only China can do it; and only 'if' they want too.

- Their current mad leader will die soon and
- their society will slowly start moderating.

Not without 'pressure' from China.

- Those people must be pretty tired of stripping
- trees to eat the bark.

Until there is a Regime-Change resulting from an Internal "Cultural Revolution" within North Korea by China the DPRK will not 'Change'.
* Dispersed & Collective Peoples Party Leadership
-v- Single Family Strong-Man "Cult" Leadership * Market Driven & Socially Responsible Economy
-v- Military Based Economy

- No need to overreact,

America has 'no' hand to play except to support Chinese Hegemony over North Korea and to encourage China to 'modify' the Political Leadership and Military Based Economics of the DPRK over the next decade. {Short of War}

So did (heck, I don't remember his name right now) whatshisname.He lives in or near Medford,Oregon, he is a big guy, he is originally from California, I think.He was on Super Talk Mississippi www.supertalkms.com and then he was on WMPQ for a while.I think it is WMPQ, something like that.

And so did Jerry Hughes, I think his name is Jerry.

The big guy in Medford, whom I don't remember his name right now, that faggott queer Roy Master's faggott queer son, what it was, that faggott queer son paid the local Jackson radio station owner to kick out the big guy in Medford off of Super Talk Mississippi.The big guy in Medord once emailed me, he told me that is what happened.

I thought Gran Torino, with Clint Eastwood was pretty good.
His past performances really make this show a surprise. You get pulled into the storyline and then..BANG.

That's all I'm going to say. I can't ruin the ending for anyone who hasn't seen it yet.

Excellent film. 8.5 out of 10.

Then, on the other end of the spectrum, was The Devil's Rejects.
Gruesome and just plain bad. Even the clown was evil.

Very interesting, and thank you for the feedback.

Do I understand that the "natural balun" is the 10m length of coax with ferrites to choke off any unbalanced currents? Is there something important about the "break" in the loop opposite the feedpoint, do you think?

I'm not set on any particular transistor, or even technology. NPN, PNP, JFET, MOSFET, IC, whatever works best.
My junkbox has the following in serious numbers:
BF998
2n4416a
J310
MPF102
2n3819
PN2222a
MPSH10
MPSA18
2n3904 2n3906
and a few:

NTE10
2n2219a
2n2218

I had a few 2n5109s, which might be even better, but can't find them.

The real reason I'm starting this is I was re-organizing and found my parts stash, and figured it's time to build stuff again :)

I imagine intermodulation would be a serious concern in The Netherlands. How does your most recent setup work?

Years ago I had a Wellbrook ALA1530, and it excelled at picking out HF signals without picking up nearby electrical noise, until, attaching the wrong coax connector to a 50 watt transmitter, I accidentally tried it out as a transmitting antenna. :(:(:(Needless to say, the results were unpleasant.

Short of buying a new loop, I thought it would be fun to try this. It sounds like you found some configurations that were pretty resistant to intermod.

The BF979 is surprising. PNP transistor that has an Ft of over 1300 Mhz? I didn't even know that was possible. :)

I built the 2n2219a as a single-ended amp to evaluate, with 142mA of current standing and a VCE of 6.8 volts with Vcc=13.1v. That's bad practice since VCE> 1/2 VCC, but that's just how it turned out using standard parts. So far it hasn't melted. :)

Anyways, I haven't detected any intermod with about 10 feet of wire.
The transistor runs damn hot though :)

Thanks for all the ideas! Have a great week!

-- ross

My goal is to find something relatively cheap to build and flexible enough to work in weak HF signal areas that also doesn't overload in strong signal areas. Kind of a VW bug version of an ALA330 for the budget-minded.

Thanks for the links.

The first one is not balanced, but I suppose it might come in handy someday. AM DX fun. :)
The second one is tuned - but there's nothing in the circuit to suggest it couldn't work with an untuned loop. Looks good!
The third one looks super-promising. Untuned input and transformercoupled output. I may just build this or something along these lines. :)

Thanks a bunch.

Meh... I finally read the article. The key paragraphs stated that "they would not return to 6 party talks" and they would talk "only directly to Washington." These are code word for "we want to make a deal with the US for food, cash or technology." They've become so predictable that anyone that pays attention can tell what they want just by reading what they say.

Perhaps the 440-As wore out. They last about a year in the modulators, then you move them to RF finals for another year. You have to buy 1 tube every 6 months (not counting the little ones).

Hello Ross,

An example of a (small) loop with integral balun function is shown here: http://www.tetech.nl/divers/small_H_FieldLoop2.jpg

The coaxial cable is connected to the top of the loop (via the three thin black wires). The coaxial cable goes down via one side of the loop. Make sure the coaxial cable (bread) is connected (electrically) to your loop at some points and at the point where it leaves the loop.

Where it leaves the loop, you can see one of the ferrite cores that provide additional common mode suppression. I use this loop for measurement purposes.

The cut in the loop (where you connect the coaxial cable), must be opposite to the point where the cable leaves the loop. My large loop (not operative now, but same principle) is made of 2.5 m long 0.5m wide piece of chicken mesh (so D = 0.8m). I checked the noise floor of the complete active setup by approaching the loop with a large aluminum sheet. When the aluminum (or other conducting material) is about 30 cm separated from the loop, the inductance of the loop doesn't reduce that much, but the outside noise reduces significantly.

When you have good results with your unbalanced amplifier (with high current), why not making a passive loop and keep the amplifier indoors? You don't need the transformer and you have easy access for various experiments. Don't worry about the 0.5*Vsupply issue, this is only of importance when you want maximum voltage swing. Try to reduce the current to the point where intermodulation isn't noticeable. It may reduce the own noise production of the amplifier at the higher end of HF (noise generated by the DC base current).

When you have more then sufficient gain, you may add a low value emitter resistor. This reduces the gain, increases noise production a bit, but enhances large signal performance.

Why I decommissioned the loop antenna? Up to some MHz, the loop outperformed my small chicken mesh dipoles, but at higher HF, the difference between the passive dipoles and both the active and passive loop wasn't noticeable for me. I now only use the loop sometimes for VLF measurement (RFID).

Best regards,

Wim

Here's the updated link from the British DX Club that dxAce posted

Scroll down the page until you see the Africa List. This is probably Well it isn't American made, it is designed by Americans and manufactuered over seas. The K2 is American made because the buyer puts it together, but once again most of the parts come from overseas.

Those deluded few who actually believe that the president is not a US citizen, despite proof to the contrary.

I don't care for a lot of what he's doing, but there is no doubt in my mind whatsoever that he is a citizen. My birth certificate (which ALSO says "Certificate of Live Birth", and is from California, looks very much like the one that he has made available.

Which is totally irrelevant. In Hawaii, at least at the time he was born, and as late as when his sister was born, if you were a resident of the state, you could register the birth of your child no matter where they were born.

The certificate of live birth is a legal document from the State of Hawaii that a birth was registered with them, but does not say where it occured, or when or how it was registered.

The worst article of all on it is on Snopes. It makes claims all sorts of empty claims, one of the links it claims to support their article says the exact opposite, it links to newspaper announcments, which could have been phoned or mailed in, one dated well over a week later, and the other with no date on the image. There is a quote (or a link to one, I don't remember) to a witness of the birth, who actually witnessed lunch in a restaurant where someone mentioned "Stanley had a baby" (Stanley is his mother's legal first name).

The linked birth announcments say Mr and Mrs, while Michelle Obama said that her husband's mother was "very young and very single" when she had him.

There are records of his father already being married in Kenya and never divorced.

There is a recording of a popular radio show host interviewing a Kenyan official who claimed they were going to make a shrine out of his birthplace, it was already a popular site at the time of the call (in Kenya).

There have been claims that his paternal Grandmother said she witnessed his birth in Kenya.

If you watch the clip floating around the Internet where Ann Coulter refutes these claims to Jeraldo. Hukabee is there too and says that they are impossible because Clinton supporters would have "run with them" if they existed. Well, they did to the point of a suit before the Supreme Court, which refused to hear it. Duh!.

All anyone wants is for Obama to allow the publication of his original birth certificate and registration forms which are on file in the State of Hawaii.

Doing so would put this to a final rest, not doing so keeps it going.

So your certificate of live birth, and in fact the one that was published, assuming it is his, is irrelevant.

Geoff.

Wim,

Thank you again for further enlightening me. So the "natural balun" is the coax/loop assembly as you describe it, rather than just the ferrite cores. Neat.

I have some 9913 that I could use which should be trivially lossy at HF and might work. Since the "RX" is an ICOM-746PRO, maybe no amplifier is required. This is certainly worthwhile to try. The local noise level is horrible with end-fed wires. Ideally, I'd transmit with the wire antenna and receive with the loop on the low bands.

If I do go with an amp, I might try reducing the current. With any luck it can be reduced significantly and located in the shack, as you propose.

Thanks for all the ideas, Wim!

What would be considered a fair price to have a Hammarlund 129X with the

Don't know what you're asking for my comment on. I have no idea what a fair price for a full recap would be.. you know how I work (at a loss, generally.. :))

Love those old Zenith (and Philco) consoles. I have a nice Philco 39-116 here, complete with the LF wireless remote. That was fun.. had it shipped broken down into something like 40 pieces (mostly cabinet, but the dial mech, speaker, tubes and chassis were all shipped separately as well). Took me something like 2 months to reassemble all of it, after reworking the chassis. Darn fine performer, though.

I had someone ask me this question yesterday and I wasn't for sure if I had the right answer or not.

The question was, if you are using a loop antenna for the BCB bands and your loop has a couple screws on it, can you run a longwire directly to the loop itself?

My answer was - "Well, sure, there's no law against it."

But if your loop has two terminals, as two of my four do, the one is for ground and the other is to directly couple the loop to your recevier, would any purpose be served running a longwire to the terminal
opposite the ground?

I guess I should know that answer, but I had never had that asked to me before.

I took for granted RHF that it was vertical. Why,
I take it that would make a difference?

The birthers are stupid and ignorant. According to the 1952

This is seau Beaugus.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Universal_health_care http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Health_care_reform_in_the_United_States
There are countries having vastly superior healthsystems if being compulsory, combining bang for buck is taken into account. Shure most countries have gripes as well. But they get solved. Healthcare is an economic entity like taxes are and has nothing to do with silly questions.

Now compare countries:
http://www.npr.org/templates/story/story.php?storyId=110997469
http://www.taxpolicycenter.org/taxfacts/displayafact.cfm?Docid=307&Topic2id=95

There are estimates out there that would lob off 5% making it 11% in stead of 16% of GDP for a US healthcare system providing the same quality for all.
It's not a European system but eventually the economic modelling will stick.
No cadillac health insurance will be needed. And start throwing out the quacks, middlemen and ambulance chasers.

Meaure Beaugus.

Basicly illegals can be helped. But the funding could be subtracted from foreign "development" aid. But also all insurers may need to pay into a central fund for all bad risks. And certainly nobody can be exempted from having a health insurance. It's like being exempted from the IRS. Seau pay up anyway or else you'll be taxed even meaure.

OP,

Good {Intelligent : Based-on-Knowledge} Guess for general 'static' noise reduction.

Grn-Term===Loop===Ant-Term-----Long-Wire------.

However for RF at some Frequencies the Loop Antenna Element will be Resonant Shunt and at many a others non-resonant shunt.

BCG,

Yeah for the AM/MW BCB the Loop Antenna is likely to be a Vertical {Very-Direction} and most likely a "Tuned" Antenna.

The Random-Wire {Long Wire} Antenna that is 'way' too-short for the AM/MW BCB : Would in-general be :
1 - Broadband Antenna
2 - Omni-Directional Antenna

Adding a Vertical Loop {Very-Direction} Tuned Antenna between the Random-Wire Antenna and Ground would 'effectively' "Tune" the Random-Wire Antenna for the AM/MW BCB thus acting like an Antenna {Tuner} Pre-Selector for the Random-Wire Antenna.

=IF= The Loop Antenna was a Horizontal Loop then most likely it is 'way' too-short for the AM/MW BCB : Would in-general be :
1 - Broadband Antenna
2 - Omni-Directional Antenna

IMHO - Adding a Random-Wire {Long Wire}
Antenna to this Loop would do little good.
Better to Add an A-v-B Antenna Switch and 'Select' the best Antenna as needed for the Band Conditions present.

Spirit of Tolerance in Islam

Question

Dear Sheikh, As-Salamu `alaykum. Today, the term "Islamic tolerance" causes confusion. So, could you please shed light on the spirit of tolerance in Islam? Jazakum Allah khayran.

Wa `alaykum As-Salamu wa Rahmatullahi wa Barakatuh.

In the Name of Allah, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

All praise and thanks are due to Allah, and peace and blessings be upon His Messenger.

Dear brother in Islam, thanks for the very interesting question you posed and the great confidence you place in us, and we implore Allah Almighty to help us serve His cause and render our work for His Sake.

Tolerance is a basic principle of Islam. It is a religious moral duty. Muslims are tolerant with their enemies, let alone their fellow Muslims. Islam teaches tolerance on all levels: individual, groups and states. It should be a political and legal requirement.

Tolerance is the mechanism that upholds human rights, pluralism (including cultural pluralism), and the rule of law. The Qur'an says very clearly: (To every People have We appointed rites and ceremonies which they must follow, let them not then dispute with you on the matter, but do invite (them) to your Lord: for you are assuredly on the Right Way. If they do wrangle with you, say, 'God knows best what it is you are doing.' 'God will judge between you on the Day of Judgment concerning the matters in which you differ') (Al-Hajj 21:76-69).

As far as the question of the spirit of tolerance in Islam is concerned, Dr. Muzammil Siddiqi, President of the Fiqh Council ofNorth America, states:

Intolerance is on the increase in the world today, causing death, genocide, violence, religious persecution as well as confrontations on different levels. Some times it is racial and ethnic, some times it is religious and ideological, other times it is political and social. In every situation it is evil and painful. How can we solve the problem of intolerance? How can we assert our own beliefs and positions without being intolerant to others? How can we bring tolerance into the world today?

I would like to discuss some of these issues from an Islamic point of view.

What is tolerance? Literally the word "tolerance" means "to bear." As a concept it means "respect, acceptance and appreciation of the rich diversity of the worldï¿½s cultures, forms of expression and ways of being human." In Arabic it is called "tasamuh". There are also other words that give similar meanings, such as "Hilm" (forbearance) or "'`afu" (pardon, forgiveness) or "safh" (overlooking, disregarding). In the Persian and Urdu languages, we use the word "rawadari" which comes from "rawa" meaning "acceptable or bearable" and "dashtan" meaning "to hold". Thus it means to hold something acceptable or bearable.

Tolerance is a basic principle of Islam. It is a religious moral duty. It does not mean "concession, condescension or indulgence." It does not mean lack of principles, or lack of seriousness about one's principles. Sometimes it is said, "people are tolerant of things that they do not care about." But this is not the case in Islam. Tolerance according to Islam does not mean that we believe that all religions are the same. It does not mean that we do not believe in the supremacy of Islam over other faiths and ideologies. It does not mean that we do not convey the message of Islam to others and do not wish them to become Muslims.

The UNESCO principles on tolerance say:

"Consistent with respect for human rights, the practice of tolerance does not mean toleration of social injustice or the abandonment or weakening of one's convictions. It means that one is free to adhere to one's own convictions and accepts that others adhere to theirs. It means accepting the fact that human beings, naturally diverse in their appearance, situation, speech, behavior and values, have the right to live in peace and to be as they are. It also means that one's views are not to be imposed on others."

Tolerance comes from our recognition of:

1. the dignity of the human beings,
2. the basic equality of all human beings,
3. universal human rights, and
4. fundamental freedom of thought, conscience and belief.

The Qur'an speaks about the basic dignity of all human beings. The Prophet (peace and blessings be upon him) spoke about the equality of all human beings, regardless of their race, color, language or ethnic background. Shari`ah recognizes the rights of all people to life, property, family, honor and conscience.

Islam emphasizes the establishment of equality and justice, both of these values cannot be established without some degree of tolerance. Islam recognized from the very beginning the principle of freedom of belief or freedom of religion. It said very clearly that it is not allowed to have any coercion in the matters of faith and belief. The Qur'an says, (There is no compulsion in religion) (Al-Baqarah 2:256).

If in the matters of religion, coercion is not permissible, then by implication one can say that in other matters of cultures and other worldly practices it is also not acceptable. In surat Ash-Shura Allah says to the Prophet (peace and blessings be upon him), (If then they turn away, We have not sent you as a guard over them. Your duty is but to convey (the Message)ï¿½) (Ash-Shura 42:48). In another place Allah says, (Invite (all) to the Way of your Lord with wisdom and beautiful preaching; and argue with them in ways that are best and most gracious. Your Lord knows best, who have strayed from His Path, and who receive guidance) (An-Nahl 16:125).

Further, Allah says to the Believers, (Obey Allah, and obey the Messenger, and beware (of evil): if you do turn back, know then that it is Our Messenger's duty to proclaim (the Message) in the clearest manner) (Al-Maï¿½idah 5:92).

One can also cite Allah's words: (Say: 'Obey Allah, and obey the Messenger: but if you turn away, he is only responsible for the duty placed on him and you for that placed on you. If you obey him, you shall be on right guidance. The Messenger's duty is only to preach the clear (Message)) (An-Nur 24:54).

All these verses give note that Muslims do not coerce people; they must present the message to them in the most cogent and clear way, invite them to the truth and do their best in presenting and conveying the message of God to humanity, but it is up to people to accept or not to accept. Allah says, (And say, 'The truth is from your Lord, so whosoever wants let him believe and whosoever wants let him denyï¿½) (An-Nahl 16:29).

The question then comes: If Allah gave choice to believe or not to believe, then why did He punish the people of Prophet Nuh, the `Ad, the Thamud, the people of Prophet Lut, the people of Prophet Shu`ayb and Pharaoh and his followers? The answer is in the Qur'an itself. Those people were not punished simply because of their disbelief. They were punished because they had become oppressors. They committed aggression against the righteous, and stopped others to come to the way of Allah. There were many in the world who denied Allah, but Allah did not punish every one. Ibn Taymiyyah, the outstanding Muslim scholar, said, "The states may live long in spite of their people's unbelief (kufr), but they cannot live long when their people become oppressors."

Another question is raised about Jihad. Some people say, "Is it not the duty of Muslims to make Jihad?" But the purpose of Jihad is not to convert people to Islam. Allah says, (No compulsion in religion) (Al-Baqarah 2:256). The real purpose of Jihad is to remove injustice and aggression. Muslims are allowed to keep good relations with non-Muslims. Allah says, (Allah does not forbid you that you show kindness and deal justly with those who did not fight you in your religion and did not drive you out from your homesï¿½) (Al-Mumtahinah 60:8).

Islam teaches that fighting is only against those who fight. Allah says, (Fight in the cause of Allah those who fight you, but do not transgress limits; for Allah loves not transgressors) (Al-Baqarah 2:190).

Islam may tolerate anything, but it teaches zero tolerance for injustice, oppression, and violation of the rights of other human beings. Allah says, (And why should you not fight in the cause of Allah and of those who, being weak, are ill-treated (and oppressed)? Men, women, and children, whose cry is: 'Our Lord! Rescue us from this town, whose people are oppressors; and raise for us from Yourside one who will protect; and raise for us from Yourside one who will help!') (An-Nisaa' 4:75).

Islam teaches tolerance on all levels: individual, groups and states. It should be a political and legal requirement. Tolerance is the mechanism that upholds human rights, pluralism (including cultural pluralism), and the rule of law. The Qur'an says very clearly: (To every People have We appointed rites and ceremonies which they must follow, let them not then dispute with you on the matter, but do invite (them) to your Lord: for you are assuredly on the Right Way. If they do wrangle with you, say, 'God knows best what it is you are doing.' 'God will judge between you on the Day of Judgment concerning the matters in which you differ') (Al-Hajj 21:76-69).

There are many levels of tolerance:

a. Between family members, between husband and wife, between parents and children, between siblings etc.

b. Tolerance between the members of the community: tolerance in views and opinions, tolerance between the madhahib (Islamic Juristic Schools).

c. Tolerance between Muslims and the people of other faiths (interfaith relations, dialogue and cooperation).

Muslims have been generally very tolerant people. We must emphasize this virtue among us and in the world today. Tolerance is needed among our communities: We must foster tolerance through deliberate policies and efforts. Our centers should be multi-ethnic. We should teach our children respect of each other. We should not generalize about other races and cultures. We should have more exchange visits and meetings with each other. Even marriages should be encouraged among Muslims of different ethnic groups.

With non-Muslims we should have dialogue and good relations, but we cannot accept things that are contrary to our religion. We should inform them what is acceptable to us and what is not. With more information, I am sure the respect will develop and more cooperation will develop.

No, but since the bone of contention here is that there is not sufficent evidence, I'm not surprised McCain found nothing. Let me know when someone finds "something" will ya?

I understand that Democrats tried to say McCain was ineligible for the presidency because he was born in Panama, which he was, and that McCain supplied the documentation needed.

Yep. I heard about it this morning. That's the second time Fukino has called a press conference to tell everyone "Yep, we got it right here." Of course, I also heard it was destroyed when the office went 'paperless' a while back. Don't you think it would be simpler to just get a certified copy and show it to interested parties?

Other than "why should he?" that is. Why should Fukino put on a show twice? Why should the governor do the same?

> You guys seem to have a problem with pigmentation and not documentation ...

Does it really seem that way? Show me one statement or even implication that I have made that makes it 'seem' that way to you? In fact, show me a statement I have ever made that fits that bill.

In fact, it seems to me that you people are once again taking the easy way out, accusing people of racism just to shut them up because YOU don't have an answer to my fairly simple question.

As 0baMa0 establishes love with Iran backed Socialist Syria, invites Islam-0-fascist Iran to kiss and make-up, shakes hands with Communist DicKtator of Venezuela. Kisses the ass inviting Communist North Korean DicKtator to talks. Law abiding and free Democracies like Israel and Honduras are shit upon by DicKtator 0baMa0 Tse Dung. Soon he will get what's coming to him - God willing.

The people of Honduras are pleading for media fairness and understanding of how they saved their democratic system of government from an international conspiracy based in Venezuela and Cuba. In desperate messages to the outside world, Hondurans want America to know they do not want former President Manuel "Mel" Zelaya returned to power through the intervention of the United States and the United Nations.

On Tuesday the leftist governments of Barack Obama and Hugo Chavez sponsored a United Nations resolution that condemned the people of Honduras for resisting the spread of communism by evicting a would-be dictator. Many people in Honduras view "Mel" as a puppet of Hugo Chavez of Venezuela, who is destroying the democratic system and the opposition in that country.

In Honduras, demonstrators have appealed to the media to tell the truth. One sign said in Spanish: "CNN: That the entire world opens its eyes...Honduras wants peace not a dictatorship."

Our media are content to report on the turnout of a couple hundred pro-Zelaya protesters in Honduras, ignoring the many thousands that have demonstrated in support of what their government has done. Some of the demonstrators carried signs saying, "Peace and democracy. Out with Mel and Chavez." Others said, "Democracy yes; communism no."

A "Tribute to the Heroes of Honduras" has been posted on the web and captures the true sentiments of the people of Honduras.
http://animoto.com/play/9C9OTq8RYmFP5wkJb9znxw

In the face of a media blackout, many Hondurans have contacted me through the new media.
http://www.aim.org/aim-column/obama-sides-with-marxists-over-honduras/

One said, "I want to warmly thank you for your article supporting the real issue of constitutional impeachment on Manuel Zelaya Rosales." Later, this person informed me that "There is a march supporting President Micheletti and you don't see that on the [U.S.] media, the manifestation of the people in favor of what our institutions did is by far bigger than the mobs protesting violently against Zelaya's ouster."

"Thanks for your support to the political situation in Honduras," another said. "Writers like yourself are what Hondurans needs to let the world know that what happened was an act to preserve the constitutional rights of the country."

Another wrote, "I read your article and it's exactly what happened. If you could read the blog http://hondurancoup.blogspot.com/ it contains details of what moved our military and the other two branches of our government to act as they did. I surely hope you could make this public and somehow justice will overcome procedure. What's important are the facts."

This blog, which tells "The true story behind the alleged coup," notes that "Former President Zelaya is sick for power, a true hypocrite, corrupt and the King of Misinformation. His plot to break the constitutional order and the rule of law in our country has led us into a profound social and political crisis, on which he has bet all of his success on the generation of hatred between classes. His actions have been marked by dividing and confusing Honduran people by adopting the style, advice and funding from left-wing leaders such as Hugo Chávez, Fidel Castro, Evo Morales, Rafael Correa and Daniel Ortega."

However, an anti-communist alliance called UnoAmerica, the Union of Democratic Organizations of America, http://www.unoamerica.org/unoPAG/noticia.php?id=464 has recognized the new government of Honduras and urges support for it, issuing a statement saying that "in Honduras there has not been a blow to the state, but rather a constitutional succession, perfectly legitimate, after the intent of ex-president Manuel Zelaya to violate the constitution and maintain power, following the mandate of Hugo Chavez."

Regarding Obama's ally, Venezuelan ruler Chavez, UnoAmerica said that "He is tied to Colombian narcotics terrorism (FARC) and to the government of [Iranian President] Ahmadinejad. He finances the Cuban dictatorship. He permanently tramples the Constitution and kidnaps the liberties of the people. He commits electoral fraud. He forcibly represses peaceful and disarmed Venezuelans. He closes means of communication. He hates the Catholic Church."

Rebutting charges of a "military coup," UnoAmerica noted that "the Armed Forces of Honduras have been limited to obey the judicial mandate, that which obligates a reestablishment of constitutional order, thus showing its subordination to the civil authority."

Complicating plans by the Obama White House and its U.N. allies for a forced return of the former president, Honduras Foreign Minister Enrique Ortez told CNN en Espanol that Zelaya was implicated in drug trafficking from Venezuela into the U.S.

"Every night, three or four Venezuelan-registered planes land without the permission of appropriate authorities and bring thousands of pounds...and packages of money that are the fruit of drug trafficking," he said. "We have proof of all of this. Neighboring governments have it. The DEA [U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration] has it," he added.

At a U.N. meeting on October 13, 2008, Zelaya had openly called for the legalization of drugshttp://ourlatinamerica.blogspot.com/2008/10/legalize-drugs-says-honduran-prez.html supposedly to reduce violence-just weeks after the George Soros-funded Latin American Commission on Drugs and Democracy had met to discuss how to pursue such a course of action.

http://drugsanddemocracy.org/official-documents

The group subsequently released a report calling for a "paradigm shift" on how to handle the illegal drug problem. Billionaire Soros, a long-time funder of campaigns to legalize dangerous drugs, has purchased the services of several former Latin American government officials to push this cause.

Zelaya's comments were immediately denounced by U.N. Office of Drug Control regional representative José Manuel Martinez Morales, who said such an approach was to "stick our heads under the sand like ostriches and accept the drug trade which is annihilating our youth."

Last November Zelaya appeared with Soros at a U.N. Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean conference in the Dominican Republic.
http://origin.foxnews.com/wires/2008Nov22/0,4670,CBCaribbeanFinancialCrisis,00.html

At the Tuesday news conference at the United Nations, where a resolution was adopted in favor of returning Zelaya to power, the ousted Marxist ruler was asked if the United States had been behind the "coup" that forced him out. No, Zelaya said. "The United States has changed a great deal," he explained. He went on to say, "I have listened to President Obama. It is not only that he condemns the events, but he has demanded the restoration of the President," referring to himself.

On this point, Zelaya was correct. The United States has certainly changed under Obama. When Ronald Reagan was president, the United States assisted pro-freedom forces and endeavored to keep the communists out of Central America. Now, the United States intervenes on behalf of the communists and their allies, using the U.N. as cover.

Zelaya held his press conference at the U.N. with the President of the United Nations General Assembly, Miguel D'Escoto, a communist priest who received the Lenin Peace Prize from the old Soviet Union.

D'Escoto is another one of Obama's allies, having worked with his Ambassador to the U.N., Susan Rice, to forge a new international socialist order at the recent United Nations Conference on the World Financial and Economic Crisis. The scheme involves world government financed by global taxes, http://www.aim.org/aim-column/u.n.-to-emerge-as-global-irs/another cause that is very popular with George Soros.

Zelaya Attempted Honduran Referendum Vote Fraud

an attempt by former Honduran president Manuel (Mel) Zelaya to fix the results of a planned referendum via programmed computers on the very day he was ousted.

Are you taking notes, ACORN? And now for the rest of the story:

On October 13, 2008, Zelaya said at a Soros sponsored conference on drug trafficking held in Tegucigalpa: " Drug use ought to be legalized as a way to combat violence." He proposed creating a regional counternarcotics plan that would displace the US-led efforts in Colombia and Mexico. It was in this conference that Soros presented his plan for a paradigm shift within democracies to accommodate legalization.

After Zelaya's removal from office, Honduran Foreign Minister Enrique Ortez told CNN en Español that Zelaya, a friend and emulator of Hugo Chavez was implicated in transshipments of drugs from Venezuela to the U.S. and that the DEA knew of the activity.

Hey, Mr. Excitable,

Can you name a single country in the world that has announced support for the new leader that was placed into power by the illegal military coup in Honduras? Certainly, if Zelaya is such a Marxist, there must be plenty of right-wing countries supporting the new government. Can you name a single one? Remember, despite his girth, Rush Limbaugh is not a sovereign nation.

Can you name a single one? I bet not.

Just curious, Burr... What makes you feel Obama is a racist? If a cop tried to arrest you for burglarizing your own home, you wouldn't get upset, right?

Now don't take this as a personal condemnation. I'm just trying to understand why you feel he's a racist. Do you also believe he was born in Kenya?

Just trying to pin down the nature of your complaint...

Curious,

CrAcK Head ObaMao Supports FARC - Marxist Drug Cartel in Columbia

October 15, 2008 - The Third McCain-Obama Presidential Debate

MCCAIN: Well, you know, I admire so much Senator Obama's eloquence. And you really have to pay attention to words.
[...]
Now, on the subject of free trade agreements. I am a free trader.
But let me give you another example of a free trade agreement that Senator Obama opposes. Right now, because of previous agreements, some made by President Clinton, the goods and products that we send to [democratic] Colombia, which is OUR LARGEST AGRICULTURAL IMPORTER OF OUR PRODUCTS, is -- there's a billion dollars that we -- our businesses have paid so far in order to get our goods in there.

Because of previous agreements, their goods and products come into our country for free [Tax free - Americans save money]. So Senator Obama, who has never traveled south of our border, opposes the Colombia Free Trade Agreement. The same country that's helping us try to stop the flow of drugs into our country that's killing young Americans.

And also the country that just freed three Americans that will help us create jobs in America because they will be a market for our goods and products without having to pay -- without us having to pay the billions of dollars -- the billion dollars and more that we've already paid.

Free trade with [democratic] Colombia is something that's a no-brainer. But maybe you ought to travel down there and visit them and maybe you could understand it a lot better.

OBAMA: Let me respond. Actually, I UNDERSTAND IT PRETTY WELL. The history in Colombia right now is that [MARXIST] LABOR LEADERS have been targeted for assassination on a fairly consistent basis [see below] and there have not been prosecutions.

And what I have said, because the free trade -- the trade agreement itself DOES HAVE labor and environmental protections, but we have to stand for human rights [for marxists] and we have to make sure that violence isn't being perpetrated against [marxist] workers [What about marxist perpetrators?] who are just trying to organize for their [marxist] rights, which is why, for example, I supported the Peruvian Free Trade Agreement which was a well-structured agreement. [NOTE: The Peruvian FTA was based on the Andean Trade Preference Act. In 1991, under the George H. W. Bush administration, the United States enacted the Andean Trade Preference Act. The program was renewed in 2002 by the George W. Bush administration as the Andean Trade Promotion and Drug Eradication Act. OBAMA did nothing! He is an obfuscator!]

MCCAIN: Well, let me just [say] that... Senator Obama doesn't want a free trade agreement with our best ally in the region but wants to sit down across the table without precondition with [communist dictator] Hugo Chavez [a murderer], the guy who has been helping [marxist] FARC [drug cartell], the terrorist organization.

Free trade between ourselves and [democratic] Colombia, I just recited to you the benefits of concluding that agreement, a billion dollars of American dollars that could have gone to creating jobs and businesses in the United States, opening up those markets.

...I don't think there's any doubt that Senator OBAMA WANTS TO RESTRICT TRADE AND HE WANTS TO RAISE TAXES. And the last president of the United States that tried that was Herbert Hoover, and we went from a deep recession into a depression.

We're not going to follow that path when I'm president of the United States.
http://www.debates.org/pages/trans2008d.html

In 2003 Colombian President Alvaro Uribe accused Colombian NGOs of “politicking at the service of terrorism.” “Every time a security policy is carried out in Colombia to defeat terrorism, when terrorists start feeling weak, they immediately send their spokesmen to talk about human rights.”

In 2002 over 40 Democrat members of Congress signed a letter to Secretary of State Colin Powell alleging "human rights violations" by the Government of Colombia in its war against the drug-running, marxist guerrilla terrorist Colombian Revolutionary Armed Forces, FARC, established as the military wing of the Colombian Communist Party. This letter, published worldwide and used as pro-FARC anti-

Government of Colombia propaganda, made no mention of marxist FARC's thousands of murders, atrocities and support from Cuban Marxist dictator Fidel Castro and from Venezuela's Marxist caudillo Hugo Chavez. The letter urged Secretary Powell "to take our concerns into account when determining whether to approve additional military aid for Colombia this year."
http://www.ciponline.org/colombia/02072301.htm

The daring rescue this past summer of French-Colombian politician Ingrid Betancourt and 14 other hostages (including three Americans) by Colombian commandos is cause for rejoicing. As Colombian President Alvaro Uribe put it, the rescue mission was "an unbelievable military achievement." It marked yet another huge victory for Colombia in its war on terrorism and another embarrassing defeat for the country's main leftist guerrilla group--known by its Spanish acronym, FARC--which had been holding Betancourt since 2002.

During the six years of her captivity, Colombia was transformed. Murders, kidnappings, and terrorist attacks have all plunged dramatically. The FARC has been devastated by combat deaths and desertions; its remaining forces inhabit remote camps deep in the Colombian jungle, far away from the urban areas. As a result, foreign investment is pouring into the biggest cities. The World Bank has lauded Colombia for its economic reforms, which helped GDP grow by 6.8 percent in 2006 and by more than 7 percent in 2007.

When we consider the progress made under President Uribe (who was first elected in 2002), it is appalling that the U.S. Congress has refused to approve a free trade agreement (FTA) with Colombia, ostensibly due to concerns over violence. By any serious measure, Colombia is a far less violent place today than at any time in recent years. Democratic House leaders argue that Colombia has not done enough to stop attacks on trade unionists. That depends on the meaning of the word "enough": According to official Colombian statistics, murders of trade unionists declined from 196 in 2002 to 26 in 2007. Uribe established a special government-funded program to protect union members from violence, and there is no question that their safety has increased enormously.

Unfortunately, American labor unions--a bulwark of the Democratic party--are strongly opposed to the free trade pact. (Never mind that the Free Trade Agreement would mostly benefit U.S. farmers and exporters.) If the deal has any chance of winning congressional approval, it will happen after the 2008 election.

Like most Democrats, Barack Obama has come out against the Colombia Free Trade Agreement and has chastised the Uribe administration for not doing more to reduce violence. Though Obama speaks often of his desire to improve U.S. credibility abroad, the Democrats' treatment of Colombia is having precisely the opposite effect. Uribe is our closest ally in Latin America. If Congress is willing to humiliate him, what message does that send to other countries in the region?

If Obama saw the results on the ground in Colombia, he would be less inclined to denounce Uribe over human rights. John McCain was in Colombia last summer (the same week Betancourt was rescued).

Since 2000, the United States has spent billions of dollars on "Plan Colombia," an aid package designed to help Colombia stamp out narcotics trafficking. Though it was expanded by President Bush, Plan Colombia began as a Clinton administration initiative that enjoyed strong bipartisan backing in Congress. In other words, close cooperation with Bogotá is not a "Bush policy."

Colombia is located in a region where Communist Venezuelan leader Hugo Chávez is trying to spread radical populism. Americans should affirm their support for a robust U.S.-Colombia partnership--even if it angers some prominent socialist Democrats, Liberal Fascist Neo-Communists and the marxist AFL-CIO crowd.

In other words, ObaMao does not give a damn about working Americans. NO! The only thing he cares about are his marxist comrades in the Communist Party International:

Recovered Emails Detail the FARC's International Support

Email messages linking the Colombian Marxist guerilla insurgency (known by its Spanish acronym, FARC) to POLITICIANS, UNION ACTIVISTS AND LEFT-WING POLITICAL PARTIES IN NORTH AMERICA have revealed a network of supporters spanning several continents, and have kept tensions high between Colombia and some of its neighbors.

http://www.worldpoliticsreview.com/article.aspx?id=2742

ObaMao doesn't want to save no stinkin' white ass blue collar union workers. HELL NO! He wants to save the MARXIST MURDERERS who run the Communist Unions and who have ties with the drug cartel, the Columbian Marxist FARC, who are running cocaine into the noses of your sons and daughters.

In his own book - In his own words 0baMa0 admits to being a CrAcKhEaD!

In the early days of the War on Terror, back when the United States was only fighting one war, in Afghanistan, Deputy Secretary of State Richard Armitage made a bold statement: “Hezbollah may be the ‘A-Team of terrorists,’” Armitage said, referring to the Lebanese-based, Iranian-controlled organization, “and maybe al-Qaeda is actually the ‘B’-Team.”

http://www.cbsnews.com/stories/2003/04/18/60minutes/main550000.shtml

Hezbollah has certainly been killing Americans for longer than al-Qaeda has — beginning in 1983 with the truck bombing of the Marine barracks in Beirut which killed 241 Marines. As recently as June 2006, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State David Satterfield told reporters that Hezbollah teams were involved in attacking U.S.-led coalition forces in Iraq.

http://www.washingtoninstitute.org/templateC05.php?CID=2716

Now, in an alarming new development, the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) has broken apart an international drug smuggling and money laundering ring which links Hezbollah to the Colombian cocaine cartels though a Lebanese operative named Shukri Mahmud Harb.

http://www.jamestown.org/terrorism/news/article.php?articleid=2374525

This is the first time the U.S. has tied a terrorist organization to a major cocaine cartel. “The profits from the sale of drugs went to finance Hezbollah,” says Gladys Sanchez, the chief investigator for the special prosecutor’s office in Bogotá. The DEA took the lead on the investigation, which went by the code name Operation Titan.

According to documents unsealed by a federal magistrate in Miami last week, Harb, who lived in Bogotá and went by the alias “Taliban,” acted as the money man between the cocaine cartels and the terror organization. Described as a “world-class money-launderer,” Harb’s illegal financial transactions have spanned the globe — from Latin America to Asia — with a cut being diverted to fund terror.

“Harb traveled frequently to SYRIA, Egypt, and Lebanon, and his arrest occurred when he was about to leave Bogotá for Syria,” the Miami Herald reported last weekend. Also arrested in Operation Titan were 21 individuals in Colombia and “90 others in Panama, Guatemala, Lebanon, Hong Kong, and the United States.” According to the Colombian special prosecutor’s office, investigators analyzed more than 700,000 intercepted phone conversations from 370 tapped cell phone lines. Two other Middle Eastern men were also charged — a Jordanian named Ali Mohamad Abdul Rahim and a second Lebanese national named Zacaria Hussein Harb.

http://www.miamiherald.com/news/southflorida/story/762200.html

This new partnership will no doubt raise complications for President-elect Barack Obama in his proposed plans to open diplomatic talks with Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad. “Hezbollah in Lebanon is a proxy of Iran,” says former Middle East CIA operative Robert Baer
http://www.npr.org/templates/story/story.php?storyId=95285396 in his new book, The Devil We Know. “It follows to the letter Iranian orders.”

http://www.amazon.com/Devil-We-Know-Dealing-Superpower/dp/0307408647

This means that Iran is co-sponsoring Hezbollah along with the only global organization able to consistently smuggle tons of illegal goods into every single industrialized nation in the world including America — on a daily basis. Toss the Colombian cocaine cartels’ newest mode of transport into the mix — stealthy semi-submersible submarines, or “drug subs” — and the national security ramifications in the Iran-Hezbollah-Colombia cocaine cartel triumvirate grow exponentially.

...these drug subs are built in the “FARC-controlled jungles of Colombia” and have rapidly become a dangerous and “highly effective asymmetrical vehicle of conveyance.” As the war on drugs and the war on terror begin to increasingly overlap...

http://pajamasmedia.com/blog/drug-subs-david-and-goliath-on-the-high-seas/

Which is exactly what the terrorists — ‘A’-Team and ‘B’-Team members alike — already know.

Just curious, Burr... What makes you feel Obama is a racist? If a cop tried to arrest you for burglarizing your own home, you wouldn't get upset, right?

Now don't take this as a personal condemnation. I'm just trying to understand why you feel he's a racist. Do you also believe he was born in Kenya?

Just trying to pin down the nature of your complaint...

Uh, Burr, did you read the actual police report? Crowley admits in the arrest report that the arrest was not valid enough to justify holding Gates. Handcuffing someone and taking them to the station when you know that the arrest won't stand is hardly the actions of someone in the right.

I think if a black cop came into your house and attempted to arrest you for burglarizing your own home, screaming offensive statement would be the least of your reactions.

If you're honest, you'll admit that you wouldn't put up with that crap!

Are you a racist, Burr? Think about it.

Tenn. state senator quits after affair with intern

By ERIK SCHELZIG, Associated Press Writer – 39 mins ago
NASHVILLE, Tenn. – A Tennessee lawmaker resigned from the state Senate on Tuesday after his extramarital affair with a 22-year-old intern was revealed by an investigation into an extortion case.
"Due to recent events, I have decided to focus my full attention on my family and resign my Senate seat effective August 10," Sen. Paul Stanley wrote in his resignation letter.
Court records show that Stanley, 47, told agents investigating a blackmail case that he had a sexual relationship with intern McKensie Morrison. Her boyfriend, Joel Watts, is charged with trying to extort $10,000 from Stanley in April in return for explicit photos of Morrison that Stanley had taken.
The senator, a married father of two who represents suburban Memphis, had signaled he would remain in the legislature, but he said Tuesday that he decided to step down about an hour before resigning letter.
Stanley had stepped down last week from his position as chairman of the powerful Senate Commerce Committee.
Stanley was elected to the Senate in 2006 after serving eight years in the state House.
A special election will be held to fill the seat in the Republican-controlled Senate.
Stanley's legislative proposals were largely focused on pro-business issues, but he also sponsored failed measures to ban gay couples from adopting children. He also spoke out against funding for Planned Parenthood because he said unmarried people should not have sex.
"Whatever I stood for and advocated, I still believe to be true," he said during a radio interview Tuesday with Memphis radio station WREC-AM. "And just because I fell far short of what God's standard was for me and my wife, doesn't mean that that standard is reduced in the least bit."
Meanwhile, two newspapers in Florida shed light on Morrison's past. The Orlando Sentinel and the Daytona Beach News Journal reported Morrison's husband is serving a seven-year prison sentence for attacking an elderly acquaintance with a hammer. Her husband filed for divorce last month.

Morrison and her husband both told police the 75-year-old acquaintance offered Morrison $50 for sex and tried to put his hand up her shorts when she refused.
Morrison's phone numbers are redacted from her legislative internship application, and efforts to reach her were unsuccessful Tuesday. Her father said he didn't want to talk about the situation.
"It's a family matter, and I'm going to approach it that way," Will Morrison said.

The old YALE (brand name) lock on my front door dates back to 1947 when my house was built.Once in a long while, I have to ''break into'' my own house.I know what I need to do to fix the old lock because I have removed it a few times before and I checked it out.I needs braze weld a little bit of brass on that little brass flip flop lever thingy and carefully file it down untill it works as good as new.

"Mike"

Uh, Burr, did you read the actual police report? Crowley admits in the arrest report that the arrest was not valid enough to justify holding Gates. Handcuffing someone and taking them to the station when you know that the arrest won't stand is hardly the actions of someone in the right.

I think if a black cop came into your house and attempted to arrest you for burglarizing your own home, screaming offensive statement would be the least of your reactions.

If you're honest, you'll admit that you wouldn't put up with that crap!

Are you a racist, Burr? Think about it.

Mike (who will never know how it feels to be black in America!)

Yup Mike,
I am a Racist. I don't like no body, black, white, yellow or red that don't do it my way!!!

And if it had been me I would have thanked the cops, offered coffee and told them how much I appreciate them looking after my house and YES, IT HAPPENED TO ME A FEW YEARS AGO.

And they got black polish all over the wall when they do that thing of going from room to room. I didn't clean the house, I sold the house!

Thanks cops for doing a job the rest of us don't want to do.

You seem misinformed, RHF. Gates did not forget his keys. The door was jammed. Both he and his driver couldn't get to open even with possession of the keys. They both had to push on it to get it to open. Don't you read the news?

Do we forfeit are rights to be secure in our homes if we have to push on a jammed door?

I think not.

RHF,

You make a lot of arguments suggesting that the man put into power by the military coup is the legal president. Really. Then it ought to be easy to list at least one other country in the world that opposes the old President, since you suggest his illegality is beyond question.

Please, RHF, name another country that supports leaving the current President in power. Just one ought to be possible...

If you forget/or misplace/lose the key(s) to your own home, or if the door is jammed and you are breaking into your own home and if a cop shows up,,, the best thing to do is be polite and explain the situation and show some identification to the cop.You can also tell the cop to check with your neighbors to prove you live in that house, or apartment, whatever.

You seem misinformed, RHF. Gates did not forget his keys. The door was jammed. Both he and his driver couldn't get to open even with possession of the keys. They both had to push on it to get it to open.
Don't you read the news?

Do we forfeit are rights to be secure in our homes if we have to push on a jammed door?

I think not.

The divorced woman who moved into the house next door to me about a year ago, her mom works for a security company.Her mom installed an electronic security system in that house.Either the divorced woman and her shack up boyfriend sometimes don't remember the code to the front door or they misplace the keys/whatever,,,,, once in a while I see her or her boyfriend ''breaking into'' that house.She has a little girl about five years old.She opens the bathroom window and she lifts her little girl up to that window so she can go inside and open the door.That boyfriend of hers goes through the bathroom window too.Once in a while when I am working on my old trailer in my back yard I see them ''breaking into'' that house.

There isn't any. Walter Cronkite was a journalist first, a member of that "Greatest Generation", and one whose skills were honed by his having been around and up close to most of the significant events of the last century. Cut from the same mold as Ed Murrow. I remember him being asked in an interview a few years ago what he thought of many of today's major network news anchors and he referred to them as "news readers" rather than broadcast journalists or reporters.

Just put a pretty face on camera and have them read prepared copy from a TelePrompter. (Oh yeah, and make sure they make frequent use of the the word "literally".)

I'm not being fair. I'm not sure about the "trust" factor but I think there's no one better out there right now than CNN's Christiane Amanpour. (Before that I would have said CNN's Bernard Shaw but he's long gone.) And CBS' Mike Wallace, Dan Rather and Charles Kuralt were pretty good IMO in their prime. And that's my baby-boomer's .02 worth. Los Angeles has more than 15 million people in the metro area. Not counting Telemon, who appears to have fallen off the face of the earth.

Very simple job to recap an HQ-129X. If the "local guy" is savvy on his parts sources he should be able to buy all fresh caps (even custom made multi-cap cans) for $25. I've recapped a '129X in a single evening...1 to 2 hours. The bigger question is will he also realign it? THAT can be where the time starts piling up but it's an essential part because with new fresh electrolytics and paper caps you are changing the dynamic parameters of everything in the receiver. Also the high value resistors are probably way out of tolerance by now and need to be checked, which doesn't mean checking them with an ohmeter cold; they often need to be warmed up to operating temperature to see the effective resistance drift from their design resistance.

The power cord project is a 5 minute job. Since the '129X is not an AC-DC receiver make sure he replaces the power cord with a 3-wire.

There are a lot of guys out there who call themselves repairmen who are actually just cosmetologists. Making an old receiver "look good" is a very small part of it and it would behoove you to try to ascertain that this individual knows his stuff went he starts dicing and slicing inside.

Good luck.

You are not required to carry ID in your own home. The cop was out of line. He has to give the occupant of the house the benefit of the doubt. That 9-1-1 call conveyed serious doubt that a crime was in progress. Suitcases, indeed!

You must be a product of the Liberal Fascist PubliK school system.

THE most important anti-Communist country of all - The Holy See - The Vatican

http://www.frontpagemag.com/readArticle.aspx?ARTID=35738

The Roman Catholic Archbishop of Tegucgalpa, Cardinal Oscar Andrés Rodríguez Maradiaga [Created and proclaimed Cardinal by John Paul II], has been steadfast in denouncing intervention by Venezuelan strongman Hugo Chavez into Honduras on behalf of now ousted leftist President Manuel Zelaya.

For his exertions, the international left has labeled Rodriguez the “cardinal golpista” or coupist cardinal. The prelate also reports regular death threats against himself. Undeterred, Rodrigues insists he is not necessarily a supporter of every aspect of Zelaya’s ouster, especially his deportation. But he is adamant that the Honduran Congress, Supreme Court and military, backed by most Hondurans, accurately saw Zelaya as subverting the constitution, with support from Chavez.

“You must know that we are struggling against a very powerful, very well-financed, campaign, which is being steered by Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez -- to the extent that agents of the Venezuelan secret services are active in the country and are organizing the supposed popular protests against the removal of President Manuel Zelaya,” Rodrigues told a German newspaper. “Weapons have also been brought into the country. Thank God that up to now more blood has not been shed. But not a day goes by without my receiving a death threat."

For this kind of defense of Honduras, Cardinal Rodriguez has been accused of following his "gods" of "economic power and the armed forces." One leftist El Salvador journal berated him for having "set himself against the people" and "against the poor," and for blessing "those who shoot and kill the people." It further intoned: "The preferential option for the poor is certainly not new, nor it is exclusive to the theology of liberation, it is simply the nature of Christianity."

"Preferential option" was the buzz phrase for church revolutionaries back in the 1970's and 1980's who discerned God's will in the Sandinista insurgency and other Marxist rebel groups throughout Latin America. Chavez's Bolivarian revolution, and its political saplings throughout the region, including Zelaya, have revivified old church leftists in North and South America anxious for a cause. Naturally left-leaning U.S. church officials, with support from some missionaries, have demanded Zelaya's return. They set themselves against Cardinal Rodrigues and most Catholics and Evangelicals in Honduras. The alignment is not dissimilar to the 1980's, which U.S. church leftists inspired by Nicaragua's Daniel Ortega aligned against Nicaragua's anti-Marxist Cardinal Obando y Bravo, who courageously resisted the regime.

Evidently, Cardinal Rodrigues did not want to wind up like Obando, struggling to uphold the church against a hostile revolutionary government supported by outside forces. The Catholic Church is "determined to resist foreign powers again taking control of this country: this time, in order to "Bolivarize" it," Rodrigues told the German newspaper. "The agents are already working against the church, using the same methods that we have come to know from Venezuela. Last Sunday, holy mass could not be held in any of the three churches in downtown Tegucigalpa, because gangs had ransacked the churches and threatened the faithful." Of course, similar Sandinista-mobs had disrupted Nicaragua's churches 20 years ago. Then, Fidel Castro and, ultimately, the Soviets, were the patrons of Latin revolution. Today it is Venezuela's Chavez.

"There passes no day in which the Venezuelan government does not spread such hints on television, on radio and in the internet," Cardinal Rodrigues warned about direct intervention into Honduras. "Here in Central America the recollection of the 70's and 80's is still very alive: civil wars, guerrilla battles, hundreds of thousands dead persons." The Cardinal would prefer not to return to those days, though they were halcyon times for church activists who celebrated Marxist revolution as salvation for the poor. Rodrigues called the OAS "completely discredited" for backing Zelaya, and said "nobody can explain" why the U.S. has backed Zelaya.

Argentine peace activist and Nobel Peace Prize winner Adolfo Pérez Esquivel publicly denounced Cardinal Rodrigues. “The road you have chosen of being an accomplice to the military dictatorship is not the way of the Gospel,” he proclaimed. “The shepherd who abandons his sheep and allows atrocities and supports dictatorship to defend his economic and political interests, is not worthy of being acknowledged as a Pastor of Christ and for His people.”

Meanwhile, Cardinal Rodrigues told an Argentine newspaper that Zelaya had withdrawn $2 million in cash form government reserves for his planned referendum to prolong his rule. “Why so much money for a poll?” Rodrigues asked. “Since when do governments do business in cash? This initiative was plagued by rampant corruption. There was no money for the victims of the earthquake, but there was to buy votes." Rodrigues said Zelaya’s regime had been “maintained by money from Hugo Chavez and that’s that."

Leftists like Adolfo Pérez Esquivel evidently do not object to Chavez or Zelaya purloining from the people on behalf of revolution. But critics of that kind of revolutionary thievery are chastised for surrendering economic “interests.” Seemingly, Cardinal Rodrigues will not be intimidated by angry, pseudo-Marxist rhetoric. He’s probably heard it all before.

Cuhulin,

Obama is the President. He was born in Hawaii. Even if he wasn't, his mother was a US citizen, making him a US citizen. You "birthers" appear as the nuts you seem to be! Saying he's not the President doesn't do anything to overcome the fact that the majority of US voters voted for him. You fruitcakes seem like sore losers that can't accept the fact that you lost the election. Even RHF realizes the futility of denying Obama presidential status.

Grow up.

I wonder if the Obama-bots are tasty Soilent Green?

I can just see them marching directly into the Government meat grinders,

No, he was born in Hawaii. Only lunatics think there's any doubt at this point.

Seriously, get some help. Going through life like you are can't be any fun, even though you amuse a lot of other people very much.

I just wiped my very old IBM Stinkpad and installed DamnedSmallLinux.

Surprisingly more agile than Windoze on the same hardware.

With the black eye MS took from Vista, if Windows 7 isn't a dramatically better O/S than XP, they're going to have potentially irreversible PR problem going forward.

And considering the tortuous process MS has released for migrating from XP to 7, it looks like this will be another great year for Apple.

Walt Mossberg has a great column about it.

What a shock! Any publication that doesn't support your far-right inclinations has to be, by intuitive definition, a socialist rag. I'll put their credibility up against the credibility of your sources any time.

Dude, the most hilarious thing in this newsgroup are your daily re-

You didn't really think that I haven't already seen this bule-haired, batty "interview" did you? Out of all the people in the world, the Buffalo news comes up with some batty old lady that makes about a dozen unsubstantiated and unverfiable claims. In the news and police business that's called hearsay. Let me know when you turn up a real set of witnesses who remember the virgin Ann from pregancy until Barry was a year old. Make certain that the CLAIMS are verifable and substantial okay? Make sure that you post it right here okay? ===>>>

Burr,

Check out this URL:

http://www.boston.com/news/local/breaking_news/2009/07/911_caller_in_g.html

If you read the article, you'll see that the original caller said nothing about the men being black and reported they had suitcases.
Yet, Officer Crowley, in his report, justifies his actions by saying the caller reported "black men with backpacks." It sure seems like Crowley LIED on the report to be able to deny that he was profiling.

How else could you explain that inconsistency, Burr?

Also, if you listen to King's entire interview with Powell, you'll hear Powell claim he is constantly discriminated against for simply being black, as evidenced by his story about security at the Reagan Nat'l Airport refusing to believe that he could be a Nat'l Security Advisor because he was black.

Read to understand.

The 911 call did not mention race. Crowley mentioned it in his report when he was TALKING directly to her.

"She went on to tell me she observed what appeared to be two black males with backpacks on the porch of Ware street."

Well, for a Harvard professor (black, white or otherwise), he certainly doesn't appear to be the brightest bulb in the box.

Mr. Gates angrily said "He [the cop] followed me into the kitchen without my permission".

Um, Mr. Gates, here are at least two possible scenarios:

The cop could have felt you were going into the kitchen to get a weapon, or...

The cop was there on a 9-1-1 run that said TWO men were breaking into the house. One (or two) men could have been waiting in the kitchen and turned it into a hostage situation.

So, the cop, operating with the information he had AT THE MOMENT, was no way going to let you in the kitchen alone. Simple Police Procedures 101.

Gee, that makes sense...Just out of curiosity, why haven't you pointed this out to any of the hundreds of off-topic conservative rantsters that have posted in this newsgroup over the past month? Hasn't ObamMao been making dialy off-topic posts for months? What did I uniquely do to justify "ranting" against off-topic posts?

Doesn't make a bit of difference where he was physically born as long as mom was a U.S. citizen -- and no one seems to be questioning that.

Well, shouldn't your statement end the birther bull$shit FOR ONCE AND FOR ALL?

For the sake of this discussion, even if he was physically born in Kenya (or Timbuktu or where ever), he would be an American citizen by virtue of his mother being a citizen -- and nobody is questioning her citizenship.

The complete timeline of the life of Barack Hussein Obama Soetoro Obama, from his birth in 1961 through his first 100 days in the Oval Office.

Here are the people and the events that shaped the life of Barack Obama… from his birth, through childhood in Hawaii and Indonesia, high school, college in California and New York, Harvard Law School, his community activism, his entry into Chicago politics, the U.S. Senate… and the election that may enable him to transform the United States of America into something unrecognizable. Intertwined with Obama's life is a cast of recurring characters—many of them unsavory—that the media chose to ignore but whose connections to him are described here in all their incriminating detail.

No facts are left out and no rumors are left unexamined in this hard-hitting book. Here is the evidence that was kept from the voters when they were starving for information during one of the most important election campaigns in American history.

This is a no holds barred timeline that will either confirm you were correct not to vote for the current temporary resident of the White House… or leave you wondering why you did.

I have been taking two Estrogen tablets every day for about three weeks now, the bottle I bought at the GNC store has a one month supply, I will buy some more before that runs out.I do believe my arms/skin is smoother.I have stopped chewing my fingernails, I want them to grow long so I can manicure them to look like wimmins fingernails.

I see those Latisse commercials on tv every once in a while, especially tonight on the DIY channel.

What it is, I have almost no eyelashes to amount to anything.I want to get my eyelashes to growing, just like in those Latisse eyelashes commercials on tv.

I would probally have to find a cheap doctor and get him or her to write me a prescription for Latisse.

Nope, the constituion says "natural born citizen", which has been interpreted as being on US soil. McCain was a natural born citizen because his father was on active duty. A law was passed in the 1950's extending natural born citizenship to the children of millitary personel on active duty.

Ted Kennedy and FDR Junior were both born in Canada, which is why they never ran for president.

Arnold Schwarzenegger is a "naturalized" citizen which means he can't run either. Expect a constitutional ammendment to be proposed in the next 4 years. He's a republican but is married to a Kennedy, so he may be a "unity" candidate.

The president should always capitulate to right wing fringe kooks.
Bush did it for 8 years!

I want to see the Kenyan birth certificate that proves he's from there. Not a hand written piece of paper, a bona fide document cerfified by the Kenyan authorities.

The onus of proof is on you, the kooks. By ignoring you and exposing your lunacy, Obama is playing you assholes like a fiddle. He can only win out of this because you idiots are fringe loonies who look like bozos. Even the clown who started this thread is a notorious Nazi who detests all things that aren't fascist.

And don't forget to spend lots of money on bumper stickers. Somebody is getting rich off of you. Probably World Nut Daily, the National Enquirer of the Internet.

Run by the same raving kook who claims that dinosaurs walk the earth today as he says they did 6,000 years ago when the mighty Christian sky fairy created the universe by blowing into a handful of dust.

The two are hardly mutually exclusive.

Anyone still denying Obama is a US citizen is using the Constitution to masquerade their own blatant racism. Not even RHF is that crazy.

So, if Obama's mother was a US citizen, why do you keep posting links to sources suggesting Obama is not a bona fide US citizen? Consistency Consistency means a lot in Mississippi.I spent two months in Kentucky (Fort Knox) in 1963 when I was in the Army.I know for some Kentuckians Consistency means a lot to them too.

Captain Kyunkendahl (spelling) said, Y'all get the hell out of here and go to the hospital! Interesting.

So you are saying that if a pregnant American citizen, for whatever reason (vacation, airline attendant), gives birth overseas, that her child would never be able to be president? Just because the mother happened to be on vacation?

Is this an "interpretation" of the law or an actual law? If an "interpretation" (opinion), is this opinion treated as being cast-in-concrete, and as carrying the same weight of a hard and fast actual law?

Actual (and factual) citation please, if you have it.

> Ted Kennedy and FDR Junior were both born in Canada, which is why

Even a cursory search of several web sites shows that Ted Kennedy was born in Massachusetts. Pardon me for saying so, but this seems to put somewhat of a dent in your credibility. Possibly Ted, with two brothers having been assassinated, saw the handwriting on the wall and didn't run for that reason (or for Chappaquiddick), but certainly NOT for "being born in Canada". Also, maybe FDR Jr. just didn't want to run for any number of reasons.

> Arnold Schwarzenegger is a "naturalized" citizen which means he can't run...

Thank you for pointing it out, but I am fully aware of the implications and meaning of "naturalized".

Again, a citation please for a child being born out of the country to an American citizen.

I have heard some commentators claim that the US Supreme Court has never ruled "ex cathedris" on the relevant definition of a "natural born citizen". However, I seem to recall that most, if not all, of the justices were present at Barack Obabm's inauguration and Chief Justice John Roberts administered the oath of office, so they probably accepted his constitutional eligibility to be President.

The birthers will never be satisifed. They will probably tell you that all of the evidnece has been fabricated, that the birth certificate is a forgery, etc. They probably do not accept that the People's Republic of Massachusetts is a part of the United States.

Nobody seriously challenged George Romney's eligibility, even though he was born in Mexico to parents who had chosen to abandon the United States and emigrate to a foreign country. I would not be surprised to hear that they had also renounced their American citizenship.

A law passed in the 1950s probably could not have conferred "natural born citizen" status on John McCain because that would be "ex post facto".

This was true even if the plane were a US carrier and had not yet landed in a foreign airport.

Natural born, by law, has nominally meant born of US parents (or parent, as long as paternity/maternity has been established by the age of majority).
This includes children born of US parent(s) overseas.

Why are U wondering? He already released his actual official state certified birth certificate. Case closed.

I can't speak for the State of Hawaii, but I do know that there are, under no circumstances, available the original California birth certificates. I still have a photocopy (which is not legally accepted for purposes of identification) of my original certificate (most poeple don't even have that much), and when a copy of one's birth certificate is ordered from the state, one gets a document that looks almost exactly like the Hawaiian Certificate of Live Birth.

That is not what my high school civics teacher said, but she was not a constitutional lawyer, and neither anm I. The statement in the US Constitution is very short and simple (I would think it is hard to misinterpret, but logic does not necessarily apply to the interpretation of the law.)

Besides all that, the ex post facto clause has been totally ignored by SCOTUS for at least the past two decades anyway. They've been ruling on the basis of vox populi in many instances.

No. Even though he was not born in the United State, John McCain was automatically a citizen because both his parents were already citizens (and met the other requirements like 5 years residency, etc.).

What law? I think I read the relevant parts of the 1952 Immigration and Nationality Act. I do not remmber it using the words "natural born citizen" in any of the sections describing when foreign-born children are automtically considered US citizens. If I missed it in this law, where was it? Or can you cite another part of the US Code that confers "natural born citizenship" and distinguishes that from some other form of citizenship that comes automatcally with birth? I could only see automatic citizenship and citizenship acquired by naturalization.

J Feng,

NO YOU ARE WRONG - John McCain was Born to American Parents on a US Military Base that was
By-Treaty "US {Sovereign} Territory and thus was US Soil : Therefore John McCain was By-Law
a "Natural Born" US Citizen.

For John McCain all Three Elements came into play :
1 - Parent Active Duty US Military
2 - Both Parents US Citizens
3 - Born on a US Military Base {US Territory By-Treaty} Result : Natural Born US Citizen*
* Note # 3 was the Key Element to John McCain being considered a "Natural Born" US Citizen -versus- US Citizen.

FWIW the US Contitutional 'requirement' is "Natural Born" US Citizen; not simply a US Citizen.

In the 0500-0700 UTC timeframe, I can only pick up Radio Havana Cuba on 6010, not 6000 kHz. Anyone know if this is a transmitter problem, or an intentionally dropped frequency by the broadcaster?

6010 is coming in moderately strong but with fading on my Kaito 1102 with the whip. I'm in Northern California. RHC is also coming through on 6060 for me, but not 6140 or 11760.

RHF,

Thanks for another heaping dose of your illogic! I did not say that criticizing Obama was racism. I said "birthers" screaming that Obama is not a US citizen (when everyone knows his mother was a US citizen) is proof of racism. Since I don't remember anyone criticizing Bush in such a childish fashion as suggesting he was not eligible to be President, Your logic, as usual, implodes in on itself.

But, using your bizarro logic, look up "Conservatism is mental disorder". Guess what? More hits! By your own bizarro standard, you just lost! (As usual!)

X-D,

Mike

There is not even a proposal yet, but you seem absolutely sure that it will take all resources from the elderly and mandate their assisted suicide. Which proves that it is simply impossible to reason with a propagandist, such as yourself.

Next, you'll be trying to tell us the Obama's health care program will force all of to have 666 carved into our foreheads.

You're a BS artist, RHF.

Can you provide links PROVING that the final bill worked out between the House and Senate will do any of these things? no, of course not. Except, maybe, by linking ack to your own earlier nonsense.

And if everyone is covered by the new plan, why would you wish to keep Medicaid and Medicare as separate programs. Wouldn't that be repetitive and wasteful spending?

How can anyone give you any credibility when you try to create the false fear that everyone over 50 will be euthanized. Your logic is, as always, is a joke.

That's not an insult, it's an easy observation for anyone reading your posts. Oh, excuse me, you got the Bushwacker on your side!

Exactly what kinds of birth records does Hawaii provide?
Posted by Mijgreb on Thursday, February 05, 2009 12:00:00 AM
Generally, folks don't know that Hawaii law, even in 1961, provided for multiple kinds of birth records, most of which are not what people think of when they think of birth certificates. The following is a description of those, including certificates for people not born in Hawaii. Go figure!

1. In the State of Hawaii, back in 1961, there were three different birth certificates that were obtainable:
a. If the birth was attended by a physician or mid wife, the attending medical professional was required to certify to the Department of Health the facts of the birth date, location, parents' identities and other information. (See Section 57-8 & 9 of the Territorial Public Health Statistics Act in the 1955 Revised Laws of Hawaii which was in effect in 1961).
b. In 1961, if a person was born in Hawaii but not attended by a physician or mid wife, then, up to the first birthday of the child, an adult could, upon testimony, file a "Delayed Certificate", which required endorsement on the Delayed Certificate of a summary statement of the evidence submitted in support of the acceptance for delayed filing, which evidence must be kept in a special permanent file. The statute provided that the probative value of the Delayed Certificate must be determined by the judicial or administrative body or official before whom the certificate is offered as evidence. (See Section

c. If a child born in Hawaii, for whom no physician or mid wife filed a certificate of live birth, and for whom no Delayed Certificate was filed before the first birthday, then a Certificate of Hawaiian Birth could be issued upon testimony of an adult including the subject person) if the Lieutenant Governor was satisfied that a person was born in Hawaii, provided that the person had attained the age of one year. (See Section 57-40 of the Territorial Public Health Statistics Act in the 1955 Revised Laws of Hawaii which was in effect in 1961).
2. In 1982, the vital records law was amended to create a fourth kind of birth certificate for children born outside of the Territory or State of Hawaii. HRS Chapter 338 was amended to add a new section authorizing the Director of the Department of Health to issue a birth certificate for a person NOT born in Hawaii either as a Territory or State, upon sufficient proof that the legal parents of such individual had declared the Territory or State of Hawaii as their legal residence for at least one year immediately preceding the birth of such child.
3. The language of the statute clearly applies to births in the days of the Territory of Hawaii, so also births in 1961.
4. A press release concerning numerous questions raised across the country as to whether or not Obama was a natural born citizen was issued on October 31, 2008 by the Hawaii Department of Health by its Director, Dr. Chiyome Fukino.
5. In that very carefully worded press release, Dr. Fukino said that she had “personally seen and verified that the Hawaii State Department of Health has Sen. Obama’s original birth certificate on record in accordance with state policies and procedures.”
6. The intentional ambiguity of that statement raises more questions that it answered.
7. That statement failed to resolve any of the questions being raised by litigation across the country over the issue of Obama’s birth and qualifications for the office of the President of the United States, including:
a. The specific type of certificate was not identified. Could it be the certificate for someone born outside of the State of Hawaii?
b. Being “on record” could mean either that its contents are in the computer database of the department or an actual “vault” original. If the latter, those are the words used to describe what is there. The data base record could have been entered based on a birth record for someone born outside of Hawaii.
c. Therefore, the value as prima facie evidence is limited and easily overcome if any of the allegations of substantial evidence of birth outside Hawaii can be obtained and verified with a Court Order.
8. It should also be noted that in the face of all this litigation, the simple presentation of Obama’s vault birth records would put the questions to rest.
9. Obama has not taken this approach to a single one of the cases, but instead has hired legal counsel across the country at no small expense to defend the claims with motions to dismiss on standing and similar procedural grounds.

10. Such response to the request for proof that he is qualified to serve as President of the United States of America only serves to raise more questions about this election.

Much like RHF himself, that line does not compute. We all remember, from 1963, that Superman got himself in deep trouble when he 'repaired' a ruined house belonging to a Bizarroean. He hadn't realized it looked just the way it was supposed to.

Surprisingly, that is exactly the the way thing work in RHF's Prosacian existence. He seems oblivious to the way the world actually is.

The statement that Blacks, Jews, Sikhs or any other identifiable group can NOT be racist is completely absurd. They are all more than capable of competing with the best Redneckism has to offer.

The only thing Americans are knowing is that birthers/birthtards are off their rockers, and need help. They won't get any. It BC "story" IS over, but the laughing will continue until the birthtards switch to some other delusionary nonsense to obsess over.

Whatever that might be is something someone should start a betting pool for. Might be fun.

Yes, is IS over, deader than a doornail over, dead horse decomposing into skeletal remains over. Nothing remains. Obama went further than ANY previous candidate for POTUS in the HISTORY of the republic by publicly releasing his official certified birth certificate and PROVING BEYOND ALL DOUBT that he is a natural born citizen. No one else had EVER done this. That's why you rightards are so kooky, complaining Obama hasn't when he's the only one who has.

NOTE - McCain was born in Panama, a court suit was filed against McCain because of it. The Federal

By-Birth, since both Parents are American Citizens and his Father was on ACTIVE Duty in the US Military

Equality Between Men and Women in Islam
I would be thankful if you give my article 5 minute of your value time. THANK YOU.

Equality Between Men and Women in Islam

Islam establishes the principle of equality between men and women in all aspects of life that they are equal in, because both of them are equally human. It does however distinguishes between them in some areas, taking into consideration the natural differences between them and the special qualities that each of them has.

Equality between men and women in Islam is derived from the following considerations:
1. Equality in their human origins: Islam conclusively establishes that all human beings have a common origin. This fact is mentioned in many verses of the Qur'ân:
- O Mankind, fear your Lord who created you from a single soul and created from it its mate and brought forth from the two of them many men and women.

- O Mankind, verily we created you from a male and a female and made you into nations and tribes so you may know one another. Verily the most honorable of you with Allah are the most righteous.
2. Equality in their common destiny:

Islam also establishes that all of mankind is going to return to Allah who created them, and everyone – male and female – is going to be recompensed for his or her worldly deeds. They will receive well if they did good and they will be requited with evil if they did evil. Allah says:
- And every one of you will come to Him alone on the Day of Resurrection.

- A human being will have nothing except for what he does. And his deeds will be seen. Then he will be recompensed fully.

- So their Lord accepted of them their supplication and answered them: 'I will never allow the work of any of you to be lost, male or female. You are from each other.

- Whoever works righteousness as a believer, whether male or female, we will truly give a good life and We shall pay them a reward in proportion to the best of what they used to do.

That's a lie. First, it's unclear whetther he was born on the base or in Colon, but regardless, a militreay base in a foreign country IS NOT US SOIL, you stupid dipshit.

> So it is a non-issue.

It is a BIG issue because Congress RETROACTIVELY in 1937 made McCain and other CZ birthed babies US citizens. This means a legal argument can be made that he was NOT a natural born citizen AT THE MOMENT OF HIS BIRTH.

You're a moron.

Um, yes it is. Just as an embassy is. It may or may not be only by lease agreement, but it IS considered US soil, and is fully under US control.

You idiot, a military base on foreign soil is NOT considered US territory IN ANY WAY. You're simply wrong.

You better tell these commanders that, then, as well as the Republic of Korea, representatives of which are not allowed on any base here without specific permission from said commanders. There are, of course, a great number of Korean support staff on the US Army bases here, but none whatsoever on the Air Force bases, and very very few on the Navy or Marine Corps bases. No Japanese nationals are allowed on any base in Japan, as far a I have seen (they do have visitors centers OUTSIDE the gates of some US bases in Japan).

Also, talk to the SCOTUS about it, since they have determined on at least two occasions that GITMO is US soil.

Bases are leased. Just because the lease is part of a diplomatic treaty does not mean the property is soverign. Ships ARE soverign from old rules. Embassy perimeter is like a ship, US territory.

Bases have different contracts, rules, procedures, security, etc. depending on how old. Gitmo is different from most for obvious reasons, but is not soverign. Diego Garcia is leased. Japan and Germany are different from Panama. Philippine bases were vacated instantly. Some countries like to have the bases near, some don't.

I knew you would be the one to break your promise.

What? I can't say "I agree" or "well said"....because you're going to scare me. <sigh> You're too easy

Why would I want to jump in and type my view on something like this, knowing that your derelict butt is going to respond to me? I made it clear as anyone can say that I don't want to deal with someone like you, you made a promise....and of course....you broke it.

We all understand in here Mike,
you have all the answers, you're never wrong etc.
etc. etc. etc. MKay? I just can't believe with such a self righteous attitude and your inner person that you teach our youth of today. Pretty scary IMO.

No, it is not, nor is a Navy ship "US territory." Wow, you folks are just plain gullible dumb. You don't accept a Hawaii-authenticated birth certificate which the STATE itself comes out and assures you is real, but you'll swallow any garbage about a military base in Iraq being US territory. What can account for such overwhelming stupidity

They already know it, stupid ass. NO commander thinks of his base in Baghdad as literal US soil. Gwd, stop taking your redopican pills and WAKE THE FUCK UP.

Because we LEASE the BASE. Just like YOU can't come in to MY house, idiot.

So fuckin' what? This does not make them US soil.

Immaterial. Our lease of land for foreign bases DOES NOT CONVERT THEM
TO US SOIL, you blithering idiot.

Why do you "think" Congress had to pass a statute in 1937 to retroactively make McCain and other CZ babies US citizens AFTER they were born?

No, they did not, you fuckin' idiot. We LEASE Guantanamo like we LEASED the CZ.

No wonder you dopes will never win another election.

Handy Shortwave Chart

Band allocations and time zone conversions for the USA. Includes broadcast bands used outside the USA. For multi-use bands, primary usage is shown.
Some stations operate outside official bands. Information is from Oct 2005 FCC rules and Jan 2006 NTIA manual, see Chapter 4 of:
http://www.ntia.doc.gov/osmhome/redbook/redbook.html

Frequencies are in kHz. Usual spacing in shortwave broadcast bands is 5 kHz. Frequencies above 10000 kHz tend to propagate better during the day; frequencies below 10000 kHz tend to propagate better at night.

Please e-mail suggestions and corrections to billmc@agora.rdrop.com.

Phone line as SW antenna

WARNINGS AND DISCLAIMERS

Connecting unapproved devices to phone lines may be illegal in your area. Telephone lines present a potential shock hazard. Do not use this antenna for transmitting. Use at your own risk.

INTRODUCTION

This article describes how to use a phone line as a shortwave receiving antenna. Performance will vary depending on the kind of phone line you have. Overhead lines usually make okay antennas, while underground lines | usually don't. Phone lines carrying DSL service may be unsuitable because | DSL operates over a wide spectrum. A phone line antenna will generally pick up more power line noise than a dedicated antenna, so don't expect to | use it for DX work. Nevertheless, I found that it outperformed the
| telescopic whip antennas built into many portables.

A reader sent in this suggestion: If you're concerned about connecting the phone line directly to the receiver, try wrapping the phone cord several times around the receiver's telescopic whip antenna instead. Performance may not be as good as a direct connection, but it will probably be better than the whip antenna by itself.

Someone else wrote asking about lightning protection. I haven't thought much about it because thunderstorms are rare in my area. Most phone lines have lightning arrestors on them where they enter the house, but the lightning arrestors may pass enough energy during a lightning strike damage a receiver. My suggestion is to disconnect the antenna when not in use if you experience frequent thunderstorms.

HOW TO DO IT

The simplest connection is a single capacitor between the phone line and receiver. The capacitor eliminates all phone line voltages, including | ringing, so that they will not harm the receiver. The capacitor should
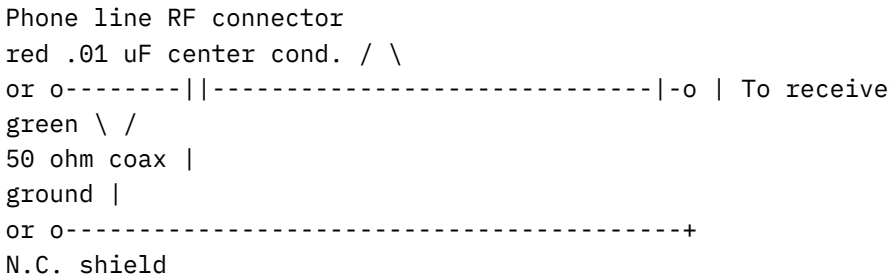
| be rated 250 volts or higher.



N.C. = no connect. I originally connected the phone line ground (yellow wire) to this terminal, but reception was better without it (if you do this, play it safe and put a .01 uF capacitor in series). If another ground is available, you can connect it to this terminal.

If you are picking up local AM or FM radio stations on the shortwave bands, it is likely that your receiver is overloaded. Inexpensive and portable receivers usually lack the filtering needed to eliminate this interference, but you can make your own filters. Filters can also be | purchased from shortwave dealers (see below for recommendations).

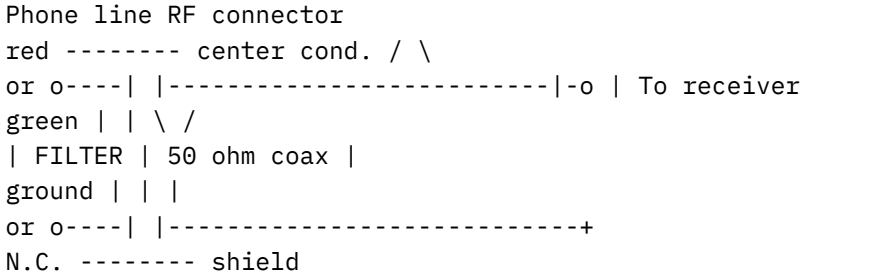
A high-pass filter can be used to remove signals below the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from local AM stations and presents a high impedance to the phone line at audio frequencies so that the phone line remains balanced.

A low-pass filter can be used to remove signals above the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from FM and TV stations, as well as VHF 2-way radio transmitters. If you use both filters, connect the output of the first filter to the input of the second (don't forget to connect their ground terminals together). It doesn't matter which filter is connected first.

These filters also work well with random wire antennas. Just connect the antenna in place of the phone line.

The filter(s) should be connected to the phone line in this manner:



| RECOMMENDED FILTERS
| If you don't want to make your own filters, the following have good | performance, are well-built and affordable:
| Model 400 BCB interference filter (3.5 MHz highpass)
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/filtersrf.html#bcb

| Model 420 HF lowpass filter (30 MHz lowpass)
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/filtersrf.html#3
| (scroll down a bit to see the model 420)
| If you have a random-wire antenna, the following unit will provide | impedance matching and lightning protection (connect antenna to 450-ohm | terminal):
| Model 182A beverage matching unit

FILTER PLANS

The original credit for the high-pass and low-pass filters goes to Paul Blumstein and John Shalamskas, respectively. Edited versions of their articles are included here:

Date: 09 Jan 91 00:54:08 GMT
From: paulb@harley.TTI.COM (Paul Blumstein)
Subject: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

The following ascii-schematic diagram is a high pass filter that will filter out Broadcast Band (MW) stations. I found it a great boon to my shortwave listening since local MW stations overload my ATS-803A front end & appear in SW, especially with a long antenna.

If you remember my antenna saga, I went from 50 feet to 150 feet & had overload problems causing me to cut back to 50 feet. (Even at 50 feet, I still have some MW interference). I took the advice of Gary Coffman and looked up filters in the ARRL Handbook. With the filter in place, I intend to try to increase my antenna length again.

Anywho, here is the filter, for interested parties.

--------||---+----||-----+----||-----------
} }
{ {
} }
-------------+-----------+-----------------

The outer capacitors are 1500 pf ceramic disks.
The inner capacitor is 820 pf ceramic disk.
The squiggly things are coils (two total). Each one is 2.7 uh.
(a close value will do).

From: bill@videovax.tv.tek.com (William K. McFadden)
Subject: Re: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

I built the filter that Paul Blumstein posted recently and measured it on a gain-phase analyzer. Here are its characteristics:

100 kHz -120dB
500 kHz -68dB

1000 kHz -38dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2100 kHz -3dB

The source and load impedances were 50 ohms. Because the filter has five elements, the attenuation is 30dB per octave. The measurements confirmed this.

This filter seems to be a good compromise between interference attenuation and passband response. There is very little attenuation in the 120m band and above. It could use a little more attenuation at the upper end of MW, which could be done with more stages or a higher cutoff frequency. Alternatively, you could build two of these filters and put them in series. (Since two 1500pF capacitors in series are really 750pF, you could eliminate one cap.)

Just for fun, I put 470 ohms in series with the input to see how the filter performed with an antenna mismatch. The response was:

500 kHz -60dB
1000 kHz -35dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2300 kHz -3dB

These figures are normalized to the passband response of -15dB, which is due to the impedance mismatch between the source and load and would have been there without the filter. Hence, the filter works almost as well in spite of the mismatch, which is good news to those who use long-wire antennas.

From: johns@uhunix.uhcc.Hawaii.Edu (John Shalamskas)
Subject: Construction of filters for SW reception

Several people have asked for construction details of the filters I built for my DX-440.

The high-pass filter helped some, but in my location the VHF/UHF broadcasters are also causing problems. So, I dug out the ARRL handbook and chose a 7-element Chebyshev low-pass design that is -3 dB at 35 MHz, -20 dB at 43 MHz, and -50 dB at 64 MHz (all calculated; it works well in practice!)

LOW-PASS FILTER (Rejects FM, TV, etc.)

chassis ground

I had to do a little more improvising at this point. I used .33 uH instead of .36, and .66 uH instead of .42, but it works fine.

The 5-lug terminal strips were perfect for these circuits, since there are 4 lugs plus a grounded lug. All "ground" connections go to the lug that is mounted to the chassis, and the other 4 lugs are used for each of the connections on the signal line. One terminal strip is used per filter. Since both filters were necessary to clean up the hash, I am going to put them both into one box when I get the time.

signal in ------- filter 1 -------- filter 2 -------- signal out

There is no difference between ends. They are "bilateral" which means you can't possibly hook them up backwards. (In the above schematics, left and right ends are interchangeable.)

COIL WINDING

You can make the coils yourself using this formula:

L = 0.2 * B^2 * N^2 / (3B + 9A + 10C)

L is the inductance, in uH
A is the length of the coil, in inches
B is the mean diameter of the coil, in inches
C is the diameter of the wire, in inches
N is the number of turns

For small wire, you can assume C = 0.

Parts for the filters can be obtained from the following source:

I have learned RHF (actually recently), that there is no one that is going to change their beliefs by anything I say, or you say etc. etc.

That's why it is easiest to just let them babble away amongst themselves. The energy a few in here use, to post nothing but vitriol and consistent arguing isn't going to change anyone's mind, so why bother.

I still enjoy reading, from time to time, "some" of it, but I'm not going to be pulled into it by posting a long in depth response because all that does it cause someone else to come out guns blazing on the other side. Waste of time IMO.

Oh lord, a member of my fan club. This group is only big enough for one internet legend, he resides in Louisville and the other isn't you....lolol.:-D

Do you want me to bring "my boys" from the knife newsgroup over here to chase you out - - like they did to you over in rec.knives yesterday?

Everyone in rec. knives has already alerted me to the fact that you are one of the biggest trolls on usenet, me personally, I think you're Steve Kramer's sockpuppet. Either way, pull up a seat and make yourself at home.

My "detailed" post about Kramer really touched a nerve with you eh? :-D Gotta love human nature.

Just a neutral observation here...

You talk about someone else's "credibility", not realizing what your bad grammar, bad punctuation and bad spelling says about YOUR credibility (and I.Q.).

Look, you won't stop me from posting SW-related info. I can understand if off-topic posts bother you, they bother me, but as long as the dxWaste, Bushholes and ObamMao's continue to make 20X the off-topic posts that I do, I'll post a few off-topic of my own to balance their weird and twisted crap. The fact that none of their crap bothers you, the fact that you have not recently posted in this NG, the fact that you are not intelligent enough to properly spell and use grammar, all combine to convince me that you are a sockpuppet for one of the group's regular right-wing crazies. Don't forget to kiss your knives

This guy was on C-span Books today. Fascinating concept, It is Semi Fiction. EMP is real, the story is fiction, set 1 second after a nuclear device sends out an electro-magnetic pulse....and the world goes quiet...

New York Times best selling author William R. Forstchen now brings us a story which can be all too terrifyingly real...a story in which one man struggles to save his family and his small North Carolina town after America loses a war, in one second, a war that will send America back to the Dark Ages...A war based upon a weapon, an Electro Magnetic Pulse (EMP). A weapon that may already be in the hands of our enemies.

Months before publication, One Second After has already been cited on the floor of Congress as a book all Americans should read, a book already being discussed in the corridors of the Pentagon as a truly realistic look at a weapon and its awesome power to destroy the entire United States, literally within one second. It is a weapon that the Wall Street Journal warns could shatter America. In the tradition of On the Beach, Fail Safe and Testament, this book, set in a typical American town, is a dire warning of what might be our future...and our end.

Chase me out? Your "boys", trolls that they are, have chased most people out of rec.knives and s.c.t. Haven't chased me out though.

Everyone? Or just your troll mates? In fact, the ONLY discussion going on in rec.knives is between your troll mates. Thanks for helping to kill off a damn fine newsgroup.

Nope, it was more about your "detailed posts" attracting your troll mates that did it. They were "mostly" leaving rec.knives alone until you stirred them up. Now they are back again in full force, thanks to a moron! (Yes, that's you)

At least the posters here will know what you do in other newsgroups when you're getting bored trolling this place!

Gregg,

Busy creating sockpuppets this morning? This same condemnation, virtually word-for-word has been posted by you before. This one shows up with a new name that's never posted before. You are so transparent!
You perceive vicious attacks from the right (daily exemplified by dxMoron) as humorous retribution. The biggest joke of all is you thinking that your behavior somehow makes you a better Christian.

There are plenty of people in here that I get along with and even respect. You, of course, will never fall in that category. Most of my off-topic posts are simply one-line URLs. It's mainly people on the right that can't stand it when someone responds to the lies and BS that you right-wingers seem to think this NG exists for. Well, I, for one, am tired of your silliness and I'm not going away. If you don't like my off-topic posts, you better start begging your friends to stay on the topic of shortwave.

Now, go back to playing in your Cincy-Nasty.

G'Day Mate,

Mike

But most people on the right can't tolerate it when someone starts responding to their BS. It's like beaming sunlight onto a vampire's face, they're in so much pain that their limited reasoning capacities shut down entirely. All they're left with is junior-high put-downs.

Hang in there Mike. Gregg is a loser for sure. He has been creating havoc over on rec knives with a bunch of his trolls. Hadn't thought they might be his sockpuppets but now that I think of it.. could be!

I thought rec knives was the only place he played the fool but it seems

Health care is a game-changer. The permanent game-changer. The pendulum will swing, and one day, despite their best efforts, the Republicans will return to power, and, in the right circumstances, the bailouts and cap-&-trade and Government Motors and much of the rest can be reversed. But the government annexation of health care will prove impossible to roll back. It alters the relationship between the citizen and the state and, once that transformation is effected, you can click your ruby slippers all you want but you'll never get back to Kansas.

Mike,
What is your hard on for me? I don't bother you,
I don't talk to you. You reneged already on your promise to leave me alone. Now, someone else comes in here and says something you don't like and you insinuate it is me.

Is it that you know that I truly know how you are,
as do others in here, that you feel so threatened that once again you have to include references towards me in every other post of yours?

Why do you include to "have a nice day" Mike?
You know and I know that you don't mean it. Right there shows what a liar you are, though on a small scale, but it does show that.

I would be ashamed and embarrased, as a "normal" person would be, to know that you were shown to EVERYONE on usenet that you lied to everyone about having a phd. and not only that....lol...you were busted SMOKING AND TURNING YOUR STUDENTS on to marajuana and were charged in a court of law.<shaking my head>

I will try this again. PLEASE - leave me alone Mike. Lord, I just cannot believe you are actually a teacher.....lol...I really don't know what else to say about you...you are a freeking trip. Pound salt pal.

Bushy,

You don't respond, because you lack the ability. Every time you've tried, all you do is resort to insults. You seem to lack the cognitive ability to defend your weird and twisted amalgamation of right-wing politics, end-time religion and worhipping Steve Lare.

Please go back to your knife goup. They tell me that it's lonely there without you and your sockpuppets constantly insulting and trying bully everyone else.

See? You can't respond to either the arguments or the insults. All you can do is run back to your slander. I was never busted for "turning my students." I have never been arrested or spent a minute in a jail cell. I am not gay, my brother did not die of AIDS and I have never been accused of incest with my daughter. You righttards will burn in hell for your lies. Trust me, my employers have run the background checks. I now teach at two different colleges. I'm an award-winning teacher and a Department Chair. Are you just jealous because you lack an education?

This is your game. You beg to be left alone and then keep firing under your sockpuppets. I can even pull up your silly posts where you admitted using multiple screennames but claimed that you had "no control" over it. "Persistent, but not very smart" is the best thing I can think to say about you.

Have a nice day (somewhere else!)

Hey Cuhooey!

How's that dog of your's doing? Haven't seen you post about her in awhile.

Got a new Jack Russell Terrier up in KY. (Replacment for our beagle that died of old age.) These JR's sure got enough energy. I'm used to dogs that sleep more than I do...

Hope that MS heat's not too bad!

Threaten you, you know I do...lol...that's why when you lay your head down on your pillow, you can't think of anyone else except me and Steve and RHF and the others that laugh at you. Dude, I don't need God to know how you are. It is so extremely simple and actually fun in a way, to go back and watch you pull this same act YEAR AFTER YEAR....post after post. You threaten and bully people every freeking year Mike, this isn't rocket science, and when someone doesn't back down from you - - you get your panties in a wad and have to wear looser panties and it upsets you because you want to wear the shiny tight ones. FWIW - I don't mean that "literally" - just a figure of speech- you've said way worse than that.

There you go again. You are a liar Mike...lol...come on pal, quit it. You're killing me here. I won't be a phoney like you.
I REALLY - REALLY don't hope you have a nice day. I mean, I don't hope you croak or anything, but I hope your day is unpleasant. The Lord will deal with me for feeling that way, and I'm sure later on...I won't feel like that. But right now as I type, I would be lying to say otherwise because AGAIN - I am spending MY TIME in dealing with you because I feel like you are FORCING me to do so and I'm really starting to take this personal Mike.

Mike, are you going to deny that you didn't get busted getting high with your students? I mean, come on, do I have to go back through the archives.
Do other people just simply make this stuff up about you and there is nothing behind it, it just simply did not happen?

I know about when you lied about you having a phd.
I mean, do you think I just came up with this? Do you ever wonder why Steve includes it in his sig. and in just about every response to you? If there is simply no validity to that, then that is "truly" slander. But you won't go after him about that or being busted with your students because it is simply the truth.

>I am not gay, my brother did not die of AIDS and I have never > been accused of incest with my daughter.

What in the freeking world are you babbling about now? Dude, I don't know if you're a butt slammer or not, and quite frankly, I could give a flying you know what if you like having your butt penetrated or not.

I have no idea about your brother or if you even have one, nor do I care. But I could find out if I had to. And I have no idea about incest with your daughter, where are you coming up with this crap Mike? I don't know if you have a daughter or not. But I could.

Unlike you, I don't sit by my monitor and write down every little specific one may say in a post in here and then bring it up eight years later, like you do. THAT - is how I know the type of person I am dealing with in dealing with you, because you do that (not just with me either, MANY people)
- and you are vicious when you do that.

>Like I said before,
You righttards will burn in

I don't care if they have run 100 checks on you Mike.
Knowing what little bit I do know about you though, just through this group, I am befuddled and flabber-gasted- that you teach the youth of today. Damn, if you don't like a student, he/she doesn't stand a chance and that sucks IMO.

> I now teach at two different colleges. I'm an award-winning

Michael, I say this with as much sincerity as I can feel. I don't care if you were up for the Nobel Peace Prize, I mean, can I be any clearer? Apparently your credentials are sufficient enough to be a teacher, good job. But to have all the hate and vitriol that you truly have deep down in your heart, dude, it's going to get the best of you if you don't get it in check.

Why do you always assume one is jealous of you when you respond to them in anger Mike? Why would you assume someone you don't see eye to eye with has " a lack of education"?

Just because one doesn't spout off about his education (or make one up like you did) or doesn't speak of his profession or studies, doesn't mean he/she lacks education. I know enough about you already Mike (just because months ago I thought you were getting too personal) - that you would crap your pants and scream stalker if you know what I know about you. You don't know what I have studied over the years and the types of people I have had to deal with.

WTF? Mike, there is nothing else I can say. It's funny though, that depending on your "victim" of the month/year....that you always accuse them of firing off other user names just for you. I am not going to spend any extra money on a newsreader just to mess with you and you're pretty arrogant to think otherwise. You PROMISED me that you would leave me alone and I told you that I wouldn't address you either - and I stuck by my promise, but I KNEW you would be the one to break it. It's like you can't help it. Then you can always say
"oh, you created a sockpuppet etc. etc."
Damn, you got me screwed either way.

If I wanted to call you those nasty names Mike, believe me when I tell you, I would flat out call them to you under my name. I don't sweat you, actually to be quite frank, I'd love to meet you in person out in a field with no weapons of any kind whatsoever and the promise that no cops would be called and flat out see if you would say the same crap to my face...lol....because I know you would shit your pants. Then if your testerone level kicked up a notch, then I am sure you would deal with it like the usenet badass you try an portray in here, but that would be a terrible mistake on your part.

I can even pull up your silly posts where you > admitted using multiple screennames but claimed that you had "no > control" over it.

shaking my head - haven't we went over this before? I don't know how many groups you post in.
I post in the UFC/Knife/shortwave/Reds and survival newsgroups. I used a different monicker that had to do with the group I posted in, ALWAYS calling myself Gregg. All anyone had to do was google ANY of those names and it all came back to me. Gregg. When you made a big deal about it, I got rid of all of them. You know what I mean, you use the same thing I do. For some reason, it still will show up "Bushcraftgregg" even though I deleted that, some times it will show just "Gregg" which is how I set it up in my "preferences" or whatever it's called. I'm not going to mess around with it anymore just to suit you. I will just throw this in here while I am at it, why is it I have no problems in the Reds or the UFC or the survival newsgroups? There's been a few misunderstandings but NOTHING like this group with you or all the sudden over in the knife group with a legendary troll who followed me here.

You know why? Because no one gets that personal in those groups and if there is a misunderstanding, it is dealt with and there truly is no hard feelings. Another thing and the main thing IMO, especially the knife/UFC/Reds newsgroup - NO ONE brings up politics - nothing like in here. Hmmm, imagine that.

I spent more time on this post, than I think I ever have before on usenet. You should feel special, seriously.

I will respond to whatever you say in response to this, but damn Mike, can't you go mess with Steve or Burr or anyone else but me? Sorry guys, nothing personal. ;-) But really, take your paranoia about me and loose it. You play nice and I will play nice, I can't be any plainer, I don't think.

Bushy,

You are one scarey guy. If I can PROVE you were posting under a sockpuppet, tracking back to the exact same IP address, will you take you testerone and leave, not to return under another sock? Internet forensics is an amazing field.

Forget it, I think everyone knows you wouldn't. You seem to be maybe the only person I've ever met more delusional than Steve Lare.

Here's my suggestion:

Let's all stick to talking about shortwave. Radical, I know. Everytime ObamaMao posts a political-leaning URL, I'll post one, too. Every slander or insult gets a response.

Too radical?

OK, let's take baby-steps. Can we try it for a week? Just you-and-me.

A meeting?

Naw, I'm not going to meet someone who calls himself a Christian but wants to meet in a field without witnesses so he can make me "shit" on myself. That type of person sounds dangerously psychotic enough to avoid. But, I am willing to meet you face-to-face around other people, either in a church or a bar. Like real men. Not drooling, vengeful, threatening assholes.

Are you man enough to do that? We should, before our lawyers have to. Sure seems like you're getting close to internet harrassment. You've pushed me to the point where I do want to meet you face-to-face. And to prove I'm not threatening you back, I insist we meet in the presence of others. Didn't you previously post that you are in Louisville a lot? I can easily make it to Cincinnati. I got relatives there, too.

But in the interim, Bushy, whether you take me up on a weeklong trial of shortwave-only posts or not, you need to calm down. You're the one that sounds like they're on drugs, and to be honest, your last post read like someone having a meth rage.

So, chill and set the pace. Keep responding like the last post and things may escalate.

Have the type of day you choose! But do try to get outside.

I needs to git back to work on my trailer.I bought a 2'' by 6'' board I am going to fasten across the back of my trailer below the roof rafter.I am going to square it up and put it on there with exterior wood glue and three inch long screws.That area is where the two rear doors of my trailer will be after I make them out of three quarter or one inch thick pressure treated plywood.

Like I said a LONGGGGG time ago. Just don't use my name in any response in here. There is no reason to Mike.

Regardless of what you say, regardless of what you think, I will not respond to you unless you start your crap again.

Lets see how long you can stick to it this time. I'm done and I hope you are also. Sheesh, most usenet excitement I've ever had, normal for you, not normal for me. I hope I'm clearer than I was the last time I said all this. We shall see.

Dude, you can post whatever you want, just leave my name out of it. So you're saying if Obama guy posts something, you're going to say something about me?

I'm sure you didn't mean that, but that is what it

Just responding to what RHF leaves out: The whole collapse was caused by actions that took place before Obama came to power. Obama's actions are the ones that have brought us back from 50% of that collapse.

The collapse of 401K was not caused by Obama. What he has done is restore 50% of its value.

Watch for the slight of hand! The stimulus has restored 50% of the loss in your 401K without adding to your taxes. Check your paystub.

The unemployment was caused by an economic collapse generated from policies in effect before Obama was inaugurated. Think how much worse it could have been without the stimulus policies, the first round of which came under Bush with Republican Party support!!!

"Insane" is, of course, the best possible discriptor for your logical attribution capabilities. The collapse came from Bush. Obama's policies (which used to be Republican policy), have not only kept the collapse from being much worse, they've dug us 50% out of the hole. Even that liberal-rag, the Wall Street Journal, admits that's true. And no big new taxes. What a bargain!

And which alternative Republican proposals to improve the economy are you supporting? It's easy to be blaming when you refuse to take part in building.

Luv Ya, RHF,

Mike

What disaster...that this sounds like a cool book? Did you ever read "The Stand" by Stephen King? Good book, but what are the chances of a

Probably a little more than dead bodies coming back to life and eating

It still sounds like a good book....

BTW, what measures were taken to mitigate it? The local hams still turn on their neighbors touch lamps with legal rf power....that's real mitigation there....

Dr. Gates' run-in with the police may not been one of his best moments, but Gates is on the most intelligent social critics in academia. I know you've never read a single page of his work. But, I have. And I'd consider the greatest of compliments to have my intelligence compared to his.

The fact that you think it's an insult shows how limited you are, Steve. Look him up in Wikipedia. That's as close as you ever come to knowledge.

So, thanks!

Gates has proven himself to be a dufus! Prone to fly off the handle at any given moment.

So, psycho-graphic analysis of your behavior in rec.knives shows the image of someone wanting to suck up to the juvenile antics of a bunch of hard-as-nails ex-military types.

Well, that was sure a surprise!

You're in RRS to do the same thing and you see Steve as being in the mode of your other role models. Though your image of Steve is certainly a little out-of-date.

You are sycophant.

I'm responding to someone else Mike that doesn't know anything about this group. Get lost and leave me alone like I asked.

If someone else from rec.knives posts in here and you respond to them, it is my duty to give them the heads up. Would you rather me do it behind your back?

That's the way you would, but not me.

The Unique Qur’an
Sorry for not sending anything related to this group but it might be something new to you.

The Unique Qur’an

Unique features of the Holy Qur’an

1) Revealed in Arabic - The Qur’an was revealed in Arabic. Arabic is still a living language spoken by more than 200 million people around the world. Most of the other languages of scriptures like Aramaic, Greek, Sanskrit, etc are either dead, hardly used as a tongue or pushed to some corner of university studies. Arabic has survived in the same form miraculously for more than 1400 years. A language undergoes dramatic changes every 400 years. For e.g English during Shakespearean times was completely different from the way it is spoken today. That was just 300 years back, but Arabic has survived for a much longer period.

2) Free from Inconsistencies – The Qur’an is the only religious scripture in the world that is completely free from both external and internal Inconsistency. All the religious scriptures whose followers claim to be revealed from God suffer from inconsistencies and contradictions.

3) Compatible with Modern Science – The Qur’an is the only religious scripture in the world that is completely compatible with modern established scientific facts. Most of the scientific facts mentioned in the Qur’an, which was revealed more than 1400 years have been discovered by man only in the past 100 years.

4) Prophecies – All prophecies that are mentioned in the Qur’an have come to pass as exactly described in the Qur’an.

5) Memorization – Atleast a million people around the world have memorized The Qur’an cover to cover in its original language, most of whose native tongue is not even Arabic. There is no scripture in this world that can make such a claim. Most people who have memorized a few chapters in their holy scripture do so in a language that is not the Original language of the scripture.

6) One Version – The Qur’an has been preserved in its original complete form since it was completely revealed without even a full stop moving from its place. This is a unique miraculous feature of the Qur’an, made more amazing by the fact that God in the Qur’an promises to guard it from corruption and even after 1400 years it is exactly preserved as the way it was before. Most other scriptures have been altered over time.

7) Revelation – The Qur’an’s revelation history has been recorded and preserved more or less accurately by historians. The history contains the time of revelation, place of revelation and the situation during which the chapters were revealed and other such data. Most of the scriptures that claim to be revealed don’t have the recorded history of how and when the scripture and its chapters were revealed. The followers of such scriptures blindly claim it to be from God only on faith.

Chronology – The ordering of the chapters in the Qur’an do not correspond to the chronology of the revelations as received by the Prophet Muhammad(pbuh) i.e. the first chapter in the Qur’an is not the first revelation that the Prophet Muhammad(pbuh) received and this is further proof (for people of intellect) of the fact that the Qur’an is not written by man.

MWB - Obama/Bush/Clinton can not Write Laws as President : They can either Vote an Act of the US Congress into Law or Veto It.

All Bills and Monies originate from the US Congress.
* House : Foley-4Y/Gingrich-4Y/Hastert-8Y/Pelosi-3Y
Senate : MItchell-5-Y/Dole-3Y/Lott-5Y/ Daschle-1Y/
* Lott-1Y/Daschle-1Y/Frist-5Y/Reid-3-Y

Bills are Write 'in' Congress
* Blame Congress -not- the President

Bills are Pass 'by' Congress
* Blame Congress -not- the President

Bills become Law only when the President Signs them.
-but- Congress Wrote Them

-and- Congress Passed Them
* Blame Congress -not- the President

Federal Laws Originate in the US Congress.
* Blame Congress -not- the President

Federal Spending {Funding/Budget} Originates with the US Congress.
* Blame Congress -not- the President

Presently Nancy Pelosi [D-CA] is Speaker of the House and the Democrats have the Majority Control of the US House.
* Blame Congress -not- the President

Presently Harry Reid [D-NV] is Senate Majority Leader and the Democrats have the Majority Control of the US Senate.

You could've backchanneled him. Instead, you launched new insults after promising that you'd leave me alone, if I left you alone. Your word was as meaningless as you are. This just shows how you'll never adhere to the standards you set for others. I don't need to insult

Well, there's mitigation and there is "important" equipment.

If there is a nuclear (nu-Q-lar for G.W.Bush) blast, I don't think a cheap-ass junk Chinese touch lamp will be very high on our list of worries.

Yes they did. They [the WSJ] claim the slide started in 4Q '07/1Q

All of the above (and even the liberal rag WSJ) puts it squarely in

For any of you that may have this radio and have accidently blown the RF transistor (Q1) via static discharge, here is the suitable replacement and procedure for those "do it yourselfers".
Hope this saves you some money.

FET Replacement for DE1103/KA1103 ALSO ETON E5 AND GRUNDIG G5

All credit should go to the VE6TVT on eHam.com review forums:

He discovered that a Philips BF861B N-Channel Junction FET is a suitable replacement for a damaged RF preamp (Q1) circuit in the DE1103/KA1103.

I Having carelelessly my DE1103 shocked into silence on a dry winter's day, I had nothing to lose, and decided to try it. The swap worked for me also, and my DE1103 performs as well as my KA1103 which was purchased as replacement.

The steps are simple, but careful handling and a light touch are needed.

- Remove all screws in the back of the unit (includes 1 in batt compartment) and 6 more.

- Open the case partway and disconnect the white wire and the ribbon red/yellow wires on the white plastic connector.
Lay the front of the radio down next to the back, face down.

- Remove all screws which fasten the circuit board down, and slide it out gently. Gently flip it up and and lay it down parallel to the top of the case. Be careful not to damage the tiny wires that connect it to the ferrite rod antenna.

- Flip your workboard upside down, and you'll see the RF preamp - a small black rectangle the size of a sesame seed in the area labeled Q1, just to the left of the antenna mount. It is attached at 3 solder points.

- Remove the old FET Q1, replace with the new one, and reassemble.
(This is very tricky unless you have the right tools and a steady hand. I have neither - I was just determined and very lucky. "Next time" I will get some proper tools first.)

Philips BF861B N-Channel Junction FETs can be found regularly on eBay -- usually in a batch of 100 for around $8 US.

Thanks again to VE6TVT for this discovery.

Good luck, and happy listening!

Cuhulin your old cars and trucks may be the only thing running after the North Korean EMF Pulse Fries the Electronics in all the new Cars and Trucks within 200 Miles of the Air Blast. An EMF Pulse at the Afternoon Rush Hour could create Grid-Lock for a 200 Mile Radius and strand Millions of People between Work and Home as the Sun goes down and leaving them to face the Dark and the resulting Terror of the Night. Add to that the fact that the CellPhones most likely would not be working as the CellTowers would all be disabled.

Dave yeah the US Federal Government is Safe but . . . Are You and Your Family ?

When the North Korean / Iran EMF Pulse Fries the Electronics in all the new Cars and Trucks within 100 Miles of the Air Blast. Say the North Korean / Iran EMF Pulse is timed for the Afternoon Rush Hour when most people are On-the-Road Home : It could create Grid-Lock for a 100 Mile Radius and Strand Millions of People between Work and Home as the Sun is going down; thus leaving them to face the Dark

the fact that their CellPhones most likely would Something I haven't tried as yet but will by next week. My E5, which I just purchased used, mainly has noticeable loss of sensitivity compared to my G5 on the AM broadcast band. It's also an earlier version, lacking the anti-static diodes. From the schematic, Q14 (12SK544) appears to handle the initial gain for the AM loop antenna therefore it's more likely to be the weak link or C111(47uf) at the source lead. Q1 boosts initial gain from the whip for shortwave.

I just came across this article while searching the web and thought it may be useful to those in the group, hopefully to save a few dollars on repairs
PS... Anyone needing the schematic in pdf form please contact.

WEED Radio on 6930 USB at 0615 - 0626* UTC. Best in narrow USB at exactly -0.5 PBT, where the audio really rose out of the noise to a nice level. At 0616, the "Loralei" song from Queen (I believe), an old 1930's depression era song, "Hear the Curfew Blow," last song was a Big John-style country rap, titled "Mean." Several WEED IDs with heavy reverb effect and off at 0626*. (Bryant-KY, Eton E1, Aug 2)

Yes, you WERE arrested! The following story indicates that one of the charges you originally had was 'interfering with arrest' (YOURS):

<http://media.www.wsusignpost.com/media/storage/paper985/news/2001/11/16/News/Prosecutor.Bryant.Must.Appear.To.Plead-2105036.shtml>

There are other stories out there as well regarding this incident.

 Well Mike, (you don't mind if I call you Mike do you?) over on rec.knives and soc.culture.thai we have more than our share of nutters the Krypto Kid aka Krypsis being one of many.
We had a real douzy in Steve (Kombat) Kramer but he's drifted off to places unknown (good thing but we do miss him) so we content ourselves with fools like the Krypto Kid.
In the days to come you will meet most of the troops and you can sort out the good and the bad, meantime keep taking your medication and call me in the morning.

Cheers

Larby.

ps Wait till I get the Mad Mullet and the Dope from Dublin over here, you'll see some REAL crazies.

Morning banscanning only found Chinese firedrake-style jamming on two frequencies: 15150 (pretty decent at SIO-353) and 14430 (extremely weak, music barely audible). (Bryant-KY, Eton E1, Aug 2)

The association of radio broadcasters said 13 stations had stopped transmitting, following an announcement Friday night by government broadcasting watchdog Conatel that 34 radio outlets would be closed because they failed to comply with regulations.

A guy who used to live next door to me had to retire from the Army because of diabetes.He used to get regular snail mail knive catalogs.I think the name of the knive catalogs he used to get is Knive World, something like that.

I have an assortment of old knives, nothing to crow about though.Pocket knives, kitchen knives, and table knives.The usual kinds of knives most everybody has.

They are jamming different broadcasters on different frequencies. I believe that both frequencies I listed this morning iare used to block broadcasts from the Falun Gong-associated broadcaster known as the "Sound of Hope,"

Hope you have a nice day in the Far East,

Mike

Old and modern day Diesel engines start and run on compression ignition, no electric spark plugs ignition is involved.But, with all of that electronic crap on modern day Diesel engine powered vehicles nowadays, who knows?

I own a 1965 four cylinder Mercedes Benz Diesel engine I bought from J.W.Whitney company back in the 1970s.I was going to put it in an old International walk in van I used to own and make a camper vehicle out of the van, but I never got around to doing that.That old International walk in van was rusting away too fast anyway.It used to be a Dolly Madison snaks/cakes delivery van before I bought it.
Guy Madison the movie actor guy (I don't remember his real/given name) saw a Dolly Madison delivery van and he renamed himself Guy Madison.

So, I see how it's going to work. Bushy says he just wants me to leave him alone. so what does he do? He pollutes the group by bringing in his rec.knife friends to further increase the noise level and make his insults for him. Let's all send a big thanks to the Bushwacker. His word is meaningless.

Begone knife-clowns. We need thee not. Return to your cages! Let Bushy

The Judicial System in Islam : Its Legal Basis and Islam Ruling
Please forgive us for any disturbance, but we have an important subject to address to you regarding FAITH, and we Don't intend to overload your email with unnecessary messages…

The Judicial System in Islam : Its Legal Basis and Islam Ruling

By The Editorial Team of Dr. Abdurrahman al-Muala (translated by islamtoday.com)

Defining the Judicial System and its Legal basis

The judicial system in Islam is a system for deciding between people in litigation with the aim of settling their disputes in accordance with the injunctions of the Divine Law, injunctions that are taken from the Quran and Sunnah.

All of the Messengers of God (may God praise them all) acted as judges. God says:

"And remember David and Solomon, when they gave judgment concerning the field when people's sheep had browsed therein at night, and We were witness to their judgment. And We made Solomon to understand the case. And to each of them We gave good judgment and knowledge." (Quran 21:78-79)
God also says:

"O David, verily we have placed you as a successor on Earth, so judge between people in truth, and do not follow your desires for it will mislead you from the path of God. Verily, those who stray from the path of God have a severe punishment because they forgot the day of reckoning." (Quran 38:26)

Prophet Muhammad, who came with the final and eternal Message, was ordered by God to pass judgment in disputes just as he was ordered to spread the word of God and call people to Islam. This is mentioned in the Quran in a number of places. God says, for instance:

"So judge (O Muhammad) between them by what God has revealed and do not follow their vain desires, but beware of them lest they turn you away from some of what God has sent down to you." (Quran 5:49)

God also says:

"…And if you judge (O Muhammad), judge between them with justice. Verily, God loves those who act justly." (Quran 5:42)

And He says:

“But no, by your Lord, they shall have no faith until they make you (O Muhammad) judge in all their disputes and find in themselves no resistance against your decisions and accept them with full submission.” (Quran 4:65)

The Sunnah also provides for the legal basis of the Islamic judicial system. It is related by Amr b. al-Aas that the Prophet said:

“If a judge gives a judgment using his best judgment and is correct, then he receives a double reward (from God). If he uses his best judgment but makes a mistake, then he receives a single reward.” (Ahmed)

God’s Messenger said:

“You should not wish to be like other people, except in two cases: a man who God has given wealth and he spends it on Truth and another who God has granted wisdom and he gives verdicts on its basis and teaches others.” (Saheeh Al-Bukhari, Saheeh Muslim)

Many scholars have related to us that there is consensus among Muslims on the legal status of the judicial system in Islam. Ibn Qudamah says:

“The Muslims are unanimously agreed that a judicial system must be established for the people.”
The Islamic Ruling Concerning the Judiciary

The jurists agree that the duties of the judge are an obligation that must be carried out by society. If some members of society carry out this duty, it is sufficient for everyone. If, on the other hand, everyone neglects it, then everyone in society is sinful.

The proof that these duties are obligatory comes from the Quran:

“O you who believe! Stand out firmly for justice...” (Quran 4:135)

It is only necessary for a small number of individuals to perform judicial duties since judicial concerns come under the broad duty of enjoining what is right and forbidding what is wrong. It is not obligatory for every individual to carry out this duty as long as some people are doing so.

The affairs of the people will not be correct and upright without a judicial system. It is, consequently, obligatory for one to exist, just like it is necessary to have a military. Imam Ahmad, one of the greatest and most well-known scholars of Islam said:

The duties of the judiciary include enjoining what is right, helping the oppressed, securing people’s rights, and keeping oppressive behavior in check. None of these duties can be performed without the appointment of a judiciary.

A judicial system is a necessity for the prosperity and development of nations. It is needed to secure human happiness, protect the rights of the oppressed, and restrain the oppressor. It is the way to resolve disputes and ensure human rights. It facilitates enjoining what is right, forbidding what is wrong, and curbing immoral behavior. In this way, a just social order can be enjoyed by all sectors of society, and every individual can feel secure in his life, property, honor, and liberty. In this environment, nations can progress, civilization can be achieved, and people are free to pursue what will better them both spiritually and materially.

Look Steve, I've given you the complete scenario several times. It's in the archives. I'm not playing this game with you again, just because you're boozed up, again. You haven't posted a log in weeks. Truth ne told, I've always kind of looked at you as a leader in this group. Maybe a dysfunctional leader of a dysfunctional family, but someone whose vast experience made it worth tolerating his alcohol-generated tantrums.

Live up to that potential, Steve. Right now, you're not.

From the rec.knives side...
(and yes, I do see the crossposting)

We inherited the real clowns "nurk_fred" and "LarbGai" from soc.culture.thai years ago. They aren't part of the real people on rec.knives. Because of them, our once vibrant froup has become a wasteland.

"Bushy" is a recent new clown who's joined in the "nurk_fred" and "LarbGai" show. He's the one who's added rec.radio.shortwave to the crossposting k00kfest.

My apologies to you and your once-fine group, Any suggestion for dealing with this infestation? Given the fact that rec.radio.shortwave is already a wasteland (largely due to one alcoholic on a disability),
I fear for the future of this group.

Additionally, could you refer us to a translator service which might enable us to decode the nonsense in their posts?

With great gratitude for your thoughtful warning!

Yeah, we got a doooofus here by the name of Michael W. Bryant who not only lies about having a PhD, he also lies about being arrested for smoking pot with his STUDENTS.

You've been at this same story since 2001. For eight years I have provided the explanation to you time and tiime again. But you won't listen, I won't waste my time, again! I guess you're too drunk to remember.Why don't you go play mumbly-peg with your knife buddies, while you wait for your next disability check.

Sad. Too sad for words.

The explanation for all of this is the fact that you're a liar, boy.

If you feel otherwise then may I suggest that you have Mommie call the LAWYERS tomorrow.

You will not get rid of them posting but if you use your filters and ignore them at all times you will stop seeing their posts. The trouble with that is when your reliable group members are goaded into replying to them, then you see and are tempted to reply.
They arrived to heckle a group member called Steve Kramer in the end he left and the last time that name turned up was on a cancer support group.
When they found that out their reaction was to hound him (and the rest of the group) on the support group. They are not Trolls they are scum. If the guy using the cancer group was Steve he could be dead now but because Krypsis name starts with a K and he posted against them this all blew up.
The other answer to them is if there are moderated forums for your interest just use them. That's what I have decided to do. Trying to get them blocked is now just a waste of time because the posting addresses they use do not give a toss, they just want numbers.

DaveT,

Thanks. It's always nice to know that your first impression of someone is spot on. There are lots of great moderated Yahoo groups that do make it seem silly to deal with some of the overaged juveniles that make Usenet their portal to reality.

Thanks, again, for having the courage to come over here and warn us.

"crazy juvenile" is not only lying about having a PhD, but lying about being arrested as well.

I can't remember seeing a post from Telamon for quite awhile. Telamon, you out there, buddy? Just give us a shout out, OK? Anyone else know anything about where Telamon's been?

Just curious,

Mike

Maybe he got smart and unassed this newsgroper.

Hey, tomorrow, phone JT and Dave at www.supertalkms.com (their radio squawk show, I think they have a toll free call in phone number) and ask them why the hell doesn't the city of Jackson run those mosquito spray trucks anymore? My arms and hands and face feel like thousands of needle pricks all over.It is TERRIBLE! out there in my back yard.As HOT and HUMID it is, I am going to have to start wearing long sleeve shirts out there! Tomorrow, I am going to plug in my phone and call the Foresty supply store in Jackson and ask them if they sell those little mosquito net thingys I can wear on my head under my baseball cap.I have a very old Pith helmet too, I can drape the net over that if I have to.

The latest I can remember was a mile-long battle he was having with BDK around July 4th. Anyone heard from him since then?

Maybe, but Bryant is simply looking for a way to suck-up. It's a juvenile debate technique.

He really needs to have Mommie call the LAWYERS tomorrow, and perhaps they'll talk some sense to her that she might pass along to her wayward offspring.

Well, this takes ham radio and SWL'ing to a new high...or new low, depending on your point of view.

1) Turn on your rig and computer in the evening.

2) Go to bed.

3) Get up the next morning and see what your ~computer~ heard/worked.

Interesting technology, but why bother? :-(

I'm kind of with you there. There's something that it makes it special to stay up to strange hours and deal with the ergonomic uniqueness of interacting with each radio. I own almost 50 shortwave radios, and I enjoy pulling each of them out and using as many as frequently as I can. Though, I think I may start trying to decode more digital signals...

Because I've checked out the history of rec.knives enough to see that type of behavior you seem to specialize in. Words are more than written symbols. The emotions you seem to spread cause people to want to run. You're like a virus. Like a Crystalline entity. You leave bruised emotions as a trail that you're proud of.

I transmit as well. It's a real-time propagation data collection and How much of the Kit is assembled? I see it's just about all surface mount, and it's a modular kit.

For $200 more you can get a tested and assembled K3. There is very little info for the K3 on their web site.
Looks to me its not much of a kit.

Cheers

They are jamming different broadcasters on different frequencies. I believe that both frequencies I listed this morning iare used to block broadcasts from the Falun Gong-associated broadcaster known as the "Sound of Hope,"

Hope you have a nice day in the Far East,

Mike

Morning from the "Far East" it's 6:21am and raining. I bought a home gym for days/weeks like this so I can workout in the carport when I can't get to my plates and bars out side. Also have a cycle spinner so I can cycle in the carport when it rains.

May try DXing afternoon when I have/take time to sit down. Need to check the antennas for limbs again. This retired life is hard but I keep doing my best to enjoy it. I stay so busy I don't know how I ever had time to work all those years.

Life is great and my health is holding up so I'll stay off my donkey and enjoy.

Have a happy,

Burr

Oh yeah, the tune "Loralei" was most likely by the band 'Styx'... don't think Queen ever did it or covered it, right offhand.

Lord, another day, another wasted post on a wasted teacher. I'm not going to "back channel" him, see- that is the way you operate.

You better hope I don't "back channel" Fred or the boys over rec.knives because you have absolutely no idea what you are getting yourself into.

If I "back channeled" him my "numerous" and dude,
I do mean "numerous" information/ file / certified journal transcripts from the court (rather cheap out there BTW) and all the "players" in your Weber State fiasco along with names of EVERY person involved/ questioned along with a couple girls at the time, that are now married, you don't want me to go there. <grin> <snicker>

Like I told you earlier in response to me being

Kombat Pinkie Klammer is a Legend here at UseNet

He's kicked Bronsons @$$, rode roughshot over a group of motorcycle youths in Osaka, put up $100K in a foreign country for a biz license, tried to single handedly ruin Cheesey Bobs Yogurt and Pickle business (and got arrested on Jan 8th 04), and flooded UseNet with every sock puppet imaginable. his quotes are things of legend.

But I think Pinkie might have some competion from the FAKE ph.dufus Dr Mikey.

Ph.dufus wrote re; the Harvard Professor Gates recent arrest,

"I know you've never read a single page of his work (Prof Gates). But, I have. And I'd consider it the greatest of compliments to have my intelligence compared to his."

Dr Mikey I think the phrase should be that you "consider it the greatest accomplishments to have YOUR stupidity compared to his".

ANYONE that would verbally accost the police for running down a lead on a potential breakin of your own home is about as stupid as it gets. of course you already know that Mikey. and admit it, you can't fix stupid; smoke another bowl dufus!

1. You broke your own promise. You kept it going after offering to stop.

2. I don't know what you're rattling about, but it sure sounds like a threat.

3. Why couldn't you have backchanneled your friend, instead of choose to ratchet up the conflict after swearing that was the last thing you wanted?

You appear incapable to keeping your own word. Period. Everyone has seen your offer and what you did in violation of your own promise.

Thanks bringing your troops with you. I'm sure we'll hear a lot of shortwave-related info out of these low-life.

You have so much to be proud of, loser.

OK <sigh> I apologize Mike for my post to Fred. OK?
Like I said earlier, I felt it was my responsibility to let Fred know who you were.

LOL- Oh quit it. I don't rattle pal. You know 'exactly' what I am talking about.

Take it however you you want. Michael, let me explain something to you. There is no reason, as you say to "threaten"....I do what I do and I know what I know because I went to school for it and have "associates" so too speak, networked throughout the states.
Many, I don't think much of, and I am sure the feeling may be mutual on their end about me at times.

But in dealing with a bully such as yourself and for months - actually years, I have asked you to leave me alone.

Do you want me to start dropping names in here, names of people that there is absolutely no way whatsoever I could ever know? But names you know.<grin>

Welcome Brett, my brethren. This fella you are "conversing" with was a "Debate Coach"
so you may have your hands full. <grin>

You all brought down the Bangkok Banger so I feel "he" is now in good hands. Remember, I am bringing the wings to the gala, all you can eat, and I may bring all the suds you and The Society can handle if you continue to be entertaining. :-D

Hey Fred, you have to update that list again, sorry.
DXAce (Steve) is a big contributor to this group and has had MANY epic battles with our teacher in here.

Actually, I don't know how he has done it all these years, but he has. Just saying. ;-)

No dickhead - when the troll (Krypsis) from rec.knives came over you decided to join in and converse.

Like I told you in another thread Mike, I am being "extremely" gracious to you. The bullshit you've started with me and others over the years, put it this way, if I was ever in as much trouble (that is documented) as you were and you did what I
do/did for a living....lol....you would have spilled the beans on me a long time ago, because it is your nature. You know I'm a nice guy and you have mistaken my kindness as my weakness, and that was a terrible misjudgement on your part.

You know the story of the frog and the scorpion, it is just your nature. It's not mine, but it's nice to know everything I DO know about you.

I don't need them to fight for me, like I told you, I would welcome it face to face and put you in an arm bar or rear naked choke and in twenty to thirty seconds make you say "bitch."

You're the big bully in rec.radio.shortwave and a few of my friends decided to come over and see what all the noise was about....and then they met you. They are trained at sniffing out bullshit and they sniffed long enough that the trail went right to you.

Like I have BEGGED you for years, just leave me alone because I can truly become your worse nightmare. Can I be any plainer? I have nicely asked you for years, but you have took it as my weakness, it isn't.

You may like to lead your internet life with the constant stress and bickering but I don't, but if you want to play, I definitely welcome my friends from rec.knives .....they love to play.....actually you could say thrive on it.

Actually, I don't consider them trolls, I consider them
"friends"....guys I would like to kick back with and have a coffee or cold one with, because I respect what they did to (IMO) the biggest bullshitter in the history of usenet IMO.

I hope you will back off.

Who the heck is someone called "nobody"? I have NEVER EVER started a thread in the history of my life that I crossposted to a group than the one I was reading it from.

When there is a thread in rec.radio.shortwave and I am replying, if I notice it, I get rid of any other groups the thread has been posted to other than the one I am reading.

Now I know you are a bullshitter also.<rolling my eyes> Human nature, gotta love it.

Bwahahahha- Mike you REALLY must see a head doctor...lol. ANYONE who doubts me, just google this klowns posts. It is UNBELIEVABLE, he can't go three to four months without starting turmoil in the shortwave newgroup.

It goes back for yearsssss....lol. He'll bring up something someone said five- seven years ago about a family member DYING or committing suicide and then ask "how so and so is" (the DEAD person) years later to the person he doesn't like.

In real life, it's easy to deal with someone like him. But he hides behind his keyboard because he feels "he has been wronged by society" because when he was a teacher at Weber St. and head of their debate team, he got busted with his students...lol...for burning weed with them and fired...lol.

He's past middle age and obese and out of shape, not a particularly attractive gentleman and his life is passing him by and he is so mad at the world that he can't see straight, so he gets on usenet and argues and bullies people and has actually chased off some posters.

But then he will nicely ask you "how are you doing"?
"Have a great day" or feign concern for a poster who maybe hasn't posted in a week. This dude is clinically IMO a sociopath. <shaking my head>

I have been tempted at times to simply stop reading or posting because of this jackball, but that is exactly what he wants.

Hi Guys,

Am new here, but after searching around on the net I read a lot of positive reviews about this particular site; particularly in regard to beginners to shortwave radio having their queries answered by guys with a lot of expertise in the subject matter. Well anyway, now that introductions are out of the way, I just have a question regarding the Kaito brand of radios. I have spoken to several people who HAVE had first hand experience with these, and I have heard nothing but glowing reports in terms of their build quality, design, auto scan and preset features, plus the fact that the particular model I AM looking at purchasing also has the advantage of dual conversion receiver technology.

Now the model I have fallen for, the KA1103, is currently available for a price of less than $90 US! From what I have been told, a Kaito model for this type of price IS a steal, and I have been advised that for a beginner such as myself, the price represents tremendous value and getting used to the Kaito won't be as steep a learning curve as some other, more feature-rich models (such as the type most of you guys would have).

What I DO need to know, however, before I make the purchase, is am I able to try 'AM DXing' and listen to medium wave stations' with a model such as the one I have my heart set on? Sorry guys for the long post, but it's just that I have so many questions and am trying to learn as much as I can as fast as I can so that I am able to really get stuck into things and get on the airwaves asap heh.

Thanks so much in advance for your advice and guidance,
Brian Anasta

4287. Antenna Options - Way Too Many!!! Help Needed Please

Hi again Guys,

In conjunction with my previous query (thanks so much too for the emails guys, the info provided is proving extremely useful in terms of which radio to purchase) the question of WHICH antenna to hook up to the Kaito (IF that is the unit I decide upon) is somewhat baffling considering the huge variety of antennas out there. At the moment, I have my heart set on either an external outdoor wire antenna or an active antenna to give me greater capabilities in terms of listening to more obscure broadcasts. Now what I am needing to know is if any of you guys have had any experience with the McKay Dymek, Datong or MFJ range of antennas? In particular, I am very much considering the MFJ-1020B Active Antenna, as from reports I have read, this particular model is not only very reliable in terms of build quality, but also because it has a range of between 300KHz to 30MHz, which if I am correct, would allow me access to international short-wave as well as HF bands. Please correct me if I am incorrect on this assumption guys. Also, would anyone have any info on whether this particular model unit would work as an amp/pre-selector too?

Thanks so much everyone for your time and advice,
Brian Anasta

Bob, you "seem" like an OK guy at times, but your constant references about Batavia (of all places) shows what a ding dong head you are.

Are you even familiar with that town? Nothing there Bob, not to say it's not a quaint town, but I do not reside there, not in the past and definitely not in the future.

Mikey,

Remember to have Mommie call the LAWYERS this morning.

One place for them to start would be to have the WSU Signpost issue a retraction of their reporting that you were 'arrested'.

Please get back to us when they issue the retraction.

In the meantime, in lieu of having that faux 'PhD' behind your name, you could put 'MBA' (Michael Bryant Arrested), it'd look classy!

First, let me apologize to Steve Lare and the guys from rec.knives for anything I've done that's made them so mad. I really just came in here because I love shortwave radio. I didn't come in here to make fanatical enemies.

It seems that no matter what I do, it inflames some people because I simply post shortwave logs. Even posting logs is seen as part of my evil plan to ruin the newsgroup.

I'm gone. Last time I went, I was gone for two years. From 2005 to 2007. That can be checked in the archives. This time I won't be back. It's your newsgroup, guys, do whatever you want.

Again, I admit my responsibility in fanning the flames and I'm too tired to dodge the knives anymore. I sincerely apologize to all involved, and will leave. As a matter of fact, I'll be turning off this AOL address within the next few days.

I'll miss many folks in here, even some that I grew to respect though often disagreeing with them.

Good-bye and good reception,

Mike

Actually Fred, if the troll Krypsis didn't come over here because of my "spot on" post about the Bangkok

Banger over in rec.knives, you would have never had the priviledge of meeting the good people of this group and your new friend - the highly decorated teacher. <grin>

If he would have just left everything alone and not taken the cheese from the mousetrap, it would have been life as usual and he would have went on "trying" to impose his will on this group.

Now don't get me wrong, he's not the only in here that acts like a prick, you've already been introduced to Dob (notice- he didn't answer about his attitude/ response to me that you mentioned), but actually he is harmless. He is a "follower."
He is a friend of Mikey, they are bestest of buddieroes.

This group is great at times, I will read it (when our teacher either isn't posting or is too high to post) and everyone gets along and everything is on topic except the Obamo hater/haters that consistently post things about him.

But human nature takes a hold, he just can't handle the group being calm and related. He'll act like he is, and post "supposedly" the stations/freqs. he's listening to. It's like, he can post that, then he can "really" get to what he really wants to espouse in here...lol.

I can just see it, I can feel it...lol. I hope your stay and for the others is a good one, it's a great group, with great people. Maybe you guys can pickup a shortwave radio and let us know what you hear (from some of you guys) from your exotic locations. Many in here would be more than happy to help you.

Brenda Ann in S. Korea, who is a wizard when it comes to bringing radios back to life or making them better and treats everyone with respect, though at times, some try to yank her chain. / RHF - who provides the links or help to any questions one may ask, especially newbies. / Telamon - Provides help or his opinion to a topic, be it on or off topic and very well spoken. / DXAce - who provides much appreciated updates to different schedules and is IMO a "legend" in the DX community, with MANY many countries logged and verified, which takes skill and time. / SC - a somewhat new, but nice addition to the group with his logs and help. / Peter Maus - One of the rocks of the group IMO, who doesn't post as much as I wish he would. Always has great things to say. / John Plimmer in S. Africa (if I am correct) who is another "legend" in the DXing community and is extremely well respected here. When John talks (IMO) we listen.

There are many more I have missed, but it doesn't take away from their contributions in here.

I just don't want you to think that this group is fried just because of the actions of a few. Follow me?

Peter,
Sorry if you walked into the bar room and smelled gun powder. It's a long story and I really don't feel like typing out everything over the last three days.

Just check the archives, but pay attention to the dates to keep it all straight. Many new characters entered the fray so too speak, it makes for some interesting reading.

Sorry about the questions and confusion.

Steve, I will just ask you this one time.

Do you feel I got carried away in any way at all or went too far in these last three days when it came to Bryant?

I won't take it personal if you say "maybe"....
Just curious on your take and I won't ask again.

You may be surprised, really.

Only regular old

You don't have to be a knife collector. But you kinda took me as a guy that carried some steel with you.

If you carried on your persons a good folder (nothing expensive unless you wanted $25-35) you would be surprised how often you'd use it.

Cleaning your fingernails, opening mail, underneath the hood of all your vehicles...cutting an old radiator hose etc. etc.

I don't know what I'd do without my pieces I carry on me. I carry a 4 1/2 " tactical folder on my right pocket and the same size serrated folder on my left pocket (for chordage or rope).

Then I carry my K-Bar that is 14 1/4" overall length with a 9" blade with a custom made sheath mounted in the small of my back. Simply invisible, totally undetectable for anyone looking and at times I actually forget it's there.

The two folders I use are for chores that I may need a blade for but my K-Bar (unless I'm in the woods bushcrafting) is strictly for self defense, you can't be too careful nowadays.

You should get you at least a folder to clip on the inside of your pocket, you'd be amazed how handy it would come in. After a month of carrying and using it, you would wonder how you got by without one.

Just responding to what RHF leaves out: The whole collapse was caused by actions that took place before Obama came to power. Obama's actions are the ones that have brought us back from 50% of that collapse.

An Arrest {a Charge} must be 'entered' before a Plea can be given to that Charge and a Verdict can be Rendered to that Charge.

BA,

Versus the MFJ-1020B Active Antenna -consider-http://universal-radio.com/catalog/sw_ant/1131.html

LF Engineering H800 Skymatch Active Antenna
-why- An "Outside/Outdoor" Active Antenna is generally preferred to an 'Indoor' Active Antenna because in most locations most of the time it will provide clearer strong signals with less noise.
-result- Better Signal-to-Noise (S/N) Ratio from the Antenna Output to the Radio's Antenna Input.

Yes Gregg, why don't you tell him how you were trolling over at rec.knives and decided to invite your troll mates in here to destroy this place just like they have done to s.c.t and rec.knives. Come on now, don't be modest.

This sounds bland but the reason there are so many antenna solutions is because in most cases, the antenna isn't the problem. It's interference or obstacles or the radio itself. An example is the longer the antenna, it will both pick up signals better and all kinds of noise better also. Placement of the radio and antenna is the key. Sometimes running a insulated coax cable from your radio to an antenna outside might help.

Experiment like crazy. I found the best solution for me is to simply run about 30 foot of cable speaker wire out of my door across the yard.

Cheers!!

 I see you are on the way out of here Mikey and we've only just met.
Are you French by any chance?
You see they are bullies that run as soon as someone stands up to them which is what you appear to be doing now.
I would prefer that you stay and have a bit of fun now that that old lunatic Krypsis has decided to poke his oar in.
(He has deprived quite a few villages of their idiots in his time I can tell you.)
Anyway if you slink off good luck to you and your fake qualifications, but if you stay feel free to join in the hi jinks.

Checked 9445 Khz today at 2200 UTC to see if Air India was readable with broadcast to Europe in English. WOW what a powerful signal + 40 db over S9. News to 2212, then "Last Week in Parliament" followed by music to signoff at 2230 UTC.
Most unusual to hear such a powerful AIR signal here in S.Ontario.
All you 'resigning types' out there get back to the shack and turn on your shortwave radios. It really is 'Lotsa Fun.' Then let us know what your hearing, and about your radios, antennas, etc.
That's what RRS was originally all about. And while your at it, forget politics on the site, as that stuff is 99% BS anyway. My 80 plus years

Yeah, that's true. Gregg and his troll mates seem to miss Steve Kramer terribly. They are always pleading and begging for him to come back.
Their lives are so dull without him. I imagine Gregg's miserable life just took a similar downturn now that Mike has gone.

And you refuse to acknowledge the answer. The answers don't fit your kooktard conspiracy world. But just to kick some sense into you here goes:

1. 2007, Obama's campaign releases a certified copy of his Certificate of Life Birth which gives has Obama as being born on Aug. 4, 1961.

2. Hawaiian Department of Health spokesmen state that it has Obama's "original birth certificate on record in accordance with state policies and procedures."

3. All court cases to date concerning Obama's BC and his validity to be President fall flat on their asses.

4. McCain's lawyers find nothing.

5. Kenyan birth certificate circulated by dumbass Orly Taitz is shown to be fraudulent.

All evidence goes against Obama being born in Kenya and that includes Berg's mishandling of Sarah Obama's comments. You don't even have a shred of reasonable doubt; you just don't like the answers.

Which begs the question: are you just a kooktard or a dumbass racist?

Enjoy your delusions!

I would vote he's both, it takes something more than one or the other to

*This Is Very Simple*******

I responded to a post about Kramer in rec.knives

You decided to be a prick and come over here and start trouble, just like you do. It's you being you.

I invited the fellas over here BECAUSE OF YOU.

While over here, they noticed that there was ANOTHER troublemaker in the midst and he just couldn't help jumping aboard and then you vanished like a fart in the wind and sat back laughing your ass off and then decided TO COME AGAIN to start crap. <rolling my eyes> It is very easy to see how it went down, it's not rocket science pal.

Here is the bottom line Krypsis, if you would not have taken issue with my post in rec.knives about the biggest bullcrapper in the history of usenet, and then decided to come over here, things would not have escalated the way they did.

It's very simple to see. It is all there in the archives, so don't play like I am the guilty one here. If you would have stayed there I wouldn't be talking to you RIGHT NOW in REC.RADIO.SHORTWAVE ding dong head.

Most of them are dodges, not answers. Berg did not 'mishandle' her comments. The translator present in the room swore otherwise, but you would Something else that will help along with what they

That solved the only problem that I originally had

Don't get excited greg. One of Krispy's more endearing little habits is to edit a message so it appears that the O.P. was wrong and then respond to it making himself look like a shining knight.

I caught him at it some time ago and accused him of being a liar whereupon he disappeared for a while. Now he is back. Just cut and paste from the original message to demonstrate what he is doing and then lambaste him for being a liar. He'll disappear again.

Cheers,

Dear RHF, SC Dxing and Bushcraftgregg,

Guys thank you so much for the extensive information you have provided. I have spent a good part of this afternoon reading over your posts several times to try and get my head around everything you have all mentioned. RHF, I took particular notice of your comments, particularly as you gave a wonderful overview and list of links pertaining to both the pros and cons of external wire antennas as well as the active antenna variety. Now, after checking on several of the links provided, AS well as grabbing myself a couple of books from the local library (the superb Shortwave Listening Guide Book, authored by Harry Helms is a must have for beginners I believe) this morning, I have several queries. Firstly, I am concerned that if I settle on the active antenna, AM I at risk of picking up much more noise and interference? Secondly, if I instead choose the external wire type of antenna, isn't there a much greater chance of problems and issues due to extensive overhead high voltage powerlines in my area? The more I read, the more confused I become....arghhhh heh.

Thanks so much guys and sorry for being a painful newbie at all this,
Brian Anasta

Hey Guys,

Was just browsing the online stores and noticed this little beauty. Currently on sale at only $250 on one site and looking at the features it looks like quite a bargain. Now, I have been told from a guy at my local electronics outlet that this particular Sangean unit works beautifully with external antennas. Furthermore, as well as having a significant number of memory pages, the unit also possesses tremendous medium-wave performance, which is something that IS very high on my 'must have' list. Considering this unit has much better coverage than the Kaitos, I think for a beginner such as myself, it is going to give me fewer problems in terms of getting used to it, with another advantage being the supplied longwire which is FREE with the unit.

So after much consideration, I have whittled the choice down to 2 - those being this Sangean or the beautiful looking Grundig G6 Aviator (Special Buzz Aldrin Edition). Is gonna be A very tough choice to settle on just the one!

Kind regards,
Brian Anasta

Good, at least you admit to inviting them over here. That much we've established.
Funnily enough, I see them giving me heaps... not! I see them giving rec.radio.shortwave heaps at YOUR instigation. Remember, you've got them attacking your enemy, not mine. Trouble is, they are an uncontrollable bunch of prats and now they are attacking everyone here who has a clue.
That, by the way, doesn't include you. You are the most clueless prat

Well, I must admit it was quite funny watching you get "hoist by your

Since you're such a clueless prat and won't have a clue what that means, I'll give you a couple of URL's to research. I hope the language on those websites isn't beyond you as I notice words of more than two syllables there.

What, you mean they are behaving in here just like they do in soc.culture.thai and rec.knives! Wow, what a surprise! I guess YOU reap what YOU sow my clueless friend! Always look beyond the obvious consequences of what you do. Oops, sorry! Consequences is multisyllabic. You'll never work out what that word means.

If you hadn't taken up the Steve Kramer issue, the trolls would have stayed under the surface (and hopefully drowned) but, no, you just had to stir them up. It was you who researched Steve Kramer in the rec.knives archives, not me. Well now, looks like YOU got yourself a convoy of your troll mates HERE in rec.radio.shortwave. You invited them over, remember? You said you posted here, it was YOUR invite. YOU wanted them to attack Mike. YOU succeeded beyond your wildest dreams but now the laughs on you!

If you had kept your yap shut, the trolls wouldn't be here in rec.radio.shortwave. At least now the clued up posters here can see you for what you really are, an absolute arsehole! You're about as welcome as a turd in a swimming pool. Not only have you turned rec.knives back into a cesspit, you've turned your own stamping grounds into one. Too right Brian. I'm considering dragging my old Yaesu FRG7700 out of mothballs and firing it up with a longwire connected. I have a long block of land away from those nasty power lines and will get a really good signal here. I used to use a Yaesu FRA7700 active antenna with it.
It was OK on the higher frequency bands but lacked a bit at the lower end of the spectrum. It probably needs retrimming.

I wouldn't mind getting hold of a Yaesu FRG8800 in good condition as they can interface with my computer here.

Hey Krypsis,

I must admit I don't know too much about the Yaesu models, although on one website I found it was mentioned this brand is usually very good in terms of SSB reception, due in large to the stock filters. Just wondering Krypsis, do you ever experience any problems with the RX on the low bands on the 7700? I have heard that can be an issue with the Yaesu models, but as you sorta mentioned, there will probably be fewer issues with the later model FRG8800.

Kind regards,
Brian

Ah Krispy, I love your attempts at diverting attention away from your short comings, i.e., your lies.

I write that I caught you lying and what do you do? Argue that you didn't lie (causing me to dig down in the archives for the proof)?

Nope, you are too slippery for that. Instead you go slip sliding away with a story about how busy you are, being semi retired and all.

I'm amazed that you still have to work and are not yet retired. After all, 50 years in your country's service and you didn't reach the age of 70+, when many of your contemporaries are already under the ground, without having to continue slaving away? I have no idea what you did for Australia but I will say that you are no kind of a money manager.

But, to correct your misapprehensions, not that I think you will believe me (have you noticed how people who lie a lot tend not to believe what others say?) but I actually spend very little time each day on the Internet. Usually about 20 minutes between breakfast and going to work on the second boat.

Cheers,

You need a transformer to match the High Z random wire to the Low Z cable at most frequencies. Otherwise you will lose most of the signal (which may reduce overloading a cheap receiver). It's been my experience that a good antenna needs a good radio.

You just posted this at breakfast? Wow, there really must be a massive time difference between our two countries. It's now 11pm here and I could have sworn there was only a 3 hour difference between us. Maybe you have your breakfast at strange times, like 8 in the evening. That must mean you have a night job. What is it that requires you to be taking a ferry to work between 8 pm and 9 pm. I've got it, you're a pimp in the bangkok bars! Now that would explain a lot about you!

You know something even funnier? You and I are of similar age but you NEED to keep working to eke out your miserable existence in Bangkok. Let me see, 30 years as a yacht skipper at the Bangkok Docks, god knows how many years as an engineer in the wilds of Africa designing gorilla cages and even more years in Bangkok pretending to be a journalist. So, still pretending to be a journalist or have you gone back to the (Chao Phraya) "sea"?? The gorillas in Africa didn't want you back, that's obvious.

Hello Brian:

I own a Sangean 909, and it is very wellbuilt as well as being easy to use once you get used to it. Lots of memories which you can change as you wish.

There are some caveats, however. The radio is pretty deaf using only the whip antenna. A reel antenna (supplied) helps a lot, but an outside long wire is even better, as the dynamic range of the receiver allows for a much 'beefier' antenna.

Also the AM broadcast band is just so-so on my unit, while FM reception is very good, and has RDS (station name, tune name etc. if station uses this feature).

I had a 'Buzz Aldrin' G6 but took it back as there was heavy bleed through on SW from a nearby (3 miles) AM station. Got a Grundig G5 which does not have this problem and is a very nice RX, again with lots of memories (700). Again, however, I would now buy, instead, the Grundig G3, now available from Universal Radio and likely other dealers. Again, 700 memories and Sync detection using SSB, a nice feature to reduce fading and interference. Don't know yet how this features works in actual use (new radio), so it will be intersting to see.

My main RX is a Grundig Satellit 750, a real nice receiver, but a bit pricey at $299 and my antenna a Hustler 5BTV vertical ground mounted. Radio has Tons of memories, but no Sync detector. I'm very happy with it. It is fairly large as a portable,butr I use it as a desktop. Good carry handle, too.

Good luck with your choice of receiver, and Good Listening from SW4ever...

Yes, my magnificent Icom IC-7700 has been sold. It was definitely the finest and best radio I will ever own, but at the end it was a huge overkill in my small town and not being able to go to the coast for DXpeditions sounded its death knell. It would not run on batteries and at 35kg's/80lbs packed it was just too heavy to take anywhere.

So it will be replaced with an Icom IC-7600, a portable radio that will run on 12v DC auto batteries. It has many of the fine features of the 7700 and is quite pricey at $4000, but aw shucks, you only live once and you can't take it with you. Unfortunately the dealer has no stock in Joburg and it may be a few months before he gets new stock in, So I will just have to be patient and hope the ball and chain doesn't get her hands on the boodle from the 7700.

Also I will sell the old Icom IC-756PROIII that I am currently DXing with, and that will be replaced with a laptop and Perseus SDR - then I will be fully up-to-date with the world's other top MW DXer's.

Later in August it is DXpedition time again, this time the beautiful Jongensgat, so I hope for good weather and wonderful propagation.

A question John,

Not having dealt with much of this in the past, but would it be possible, and/or less costly to have someone here in the USA purchase what you need and ship it to you?

Yes Ace, I have bought a lot of radio's that way out of necessity, like my Drake's, but the hassle factor and risk is huge. The local Icom agent is quite fair in price and of course it comes with a full Icom warranty. My pal Guy has also bought a lot of stuff which got paid by PayPal, but the cost is huge.

Customs here are terrible and often the parcel disappears for weeks and then you get demands for extra documents etc = hassle, hassle hassle. I don't need it at my grand old age anymore.

- Dear RHF, SC Dxing and Bushcraftgregg,
- Guys thank you so much for the extensive information you have
- provided. I have spent a good part of this afternoon reading over your
- posts several times to try and get my head around everything you have
- all mentioned. RHF, I took particular notice of your comments,
- particularly as you gave a wonderful overview and list of links
- pertaining to both the pros and cons of external wire antennas as well
- as the active antenna variety. Now, after checking on several of the
- links provided, AS well as grabbing myself a couple of books from the
- local library (the superb Shortwave Listening Guide Book, authored by
- Harry Helms is a must have for beginners I believe) this morning, I
- have several queries.

- Firstly, I am concerned that if I settle on the - active antenna, AM I at risk of picking up much more noise and
- interference?

Yes Active Antennas can be Noisy so you usually have to do two things to get them to preform well :

1 - Placement / Location
a - Find a Location above the Peak of your Roof by 5~10 Feet that places the Vertical Antenna Element away from the envelop of Noise that may surround your House.
b - Find a Location in your Backyard 15~25 Feet away from the envelop of Noise that may surround your House.

2 - Grounding - Most Active Antenna need to be well Grounded via the Support and Coax Cables using a 21 Foot piece of free-stand 'metal' Top-Rail and an 8 Foot Ground Rod at its Base http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.shortwave/msg/e4d9abcf73ef3971

- Secondly, if I instead choose the external wire type of
- antenna, isn't there a much greater chance of problems and issues due
- to extensive overhead high voltage powerlines in my area? The more I
- read, the more confused I become....arghhhh heh.

Yes there is the 'potential' for Power Line Noise pick-up with an backyard Random Wire Antenna.

The Far-End-Fed Shortwave Listener's (SWLs)
Inverted "L" Antenna
http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.shortwave/msg/22cfc6b9cb2447c0
1 - Inverted "L" Antenna
2 - Ground Rod at the base of the Antenna
3 - Matching Transformer at the base of the Antenna 4 - Coax Cable feed-in-line from the base of the Antenna into the Radio Shack

hope this helps - iane ~ RHF
- Thanks so much guys and sorry for being a painful newbie at all this,
- Brian Anasta

What is it? About half an hour ago a white car/carvan parked on my street, catty corner across the street from me.A dude and two women got out of the vehicle and they were going door to door.The vehicle was parked there for about twenty minutes and then the dude got back into the vehicle and drove off.I was in my back yard working on the back end of my trailer.I am not sure if they saw me, I came back into my house through the back door (in this neighborhood, I have to keep my doors locked at ALL times) and I looked out my front door.Those two women were talking to my neighbors next door.I wonder if they are going around and GPSing all of the houshes around here? Oviously, they are some of DUMBASS'S BUTTKISSERS!, so are my neighbors too.

Haven't you heard.? Barack is actually an alien from Krypton, sent here when their sun was going to go supernova (his coming was even predicted by the ancient Egyptians!). They also sent a wayback machine so Barack would be able to go back in time and plant those birth announcements in the Star-Bulletin and the Advertiser. Bob, in old style conventional MW DXing, persistence was indeed one of the criteria, plus operator skill and experience. The radio is down about fifth on the list of requirements.

However the Perseus SDR has changed the whole outlook for MW DXing and perhaps has taken a lot of the persistence out of the equation.

The top prime time on a DXpedition at the coast is the magical TOH top of hour just around sunrise. With a conventional radio you may snaffle up as many as four ID's if you are good, but since Perseus records the WHOLE MW spectrum for later playback, you can thus capture everything that is going, perhaps twenty rare stations or more.

So the Perseus has changed the whole ballgame and I've got to get into that.

The Icom 7700 sold for $6250 and the 756PROIII is up for $1900 asking.

My Kaito/Degen 1103 has worked fine for a couple of years. If you are free from electrical static the AM band works just fine. My receiver receives well on the AM/FM band.

A perfect example of what I previously was mentioned, "the Krispy Side Step" right around the subject and down a side road away from what you can't answer and Shazam, the subject is changed.

I have included an excerpt from my post. If you reread it you will note that I stated "Usually about 20 minutes..." You immediately reply exactly as though I had written "Always".

In other words, rather then answer what the other party has written you respond to what you "interpret" them to have said.

In short, you attempt to bend things to bolster your arguments - lying it is called and apparently it is very much a part of your technique as I see that you do it in all, or nearly all, of your posts.

A very Lewis Carroll sort of conversation.

I wonder where you get the "30 years as a yacht skipper"? Made it up yourself, I suppose. Or, the years at the Bangkok Docks, which do not exist, or the "wilds of Africa" which I have never visited.

To put it more bluntly Krispy, you tell lies.

Is this what you learned to do in your 50 years of government service? Tell lies? "My 50 years as a government liar", by Krispy. Jesus! What a thing to carve on a tombstone.

I have the KA 1103 newer brother, the Grundig G5. It's really the same radio inside.

The AM is good on the radio and like others have said, stopping interference inside your house is the main culprit in AM dxing. You find a good place and your have a good radio.

Yes, I did read that correctly. It is you who has difficulty with meaning. (http://www.thefreedictionary.com/usually)

I can only interpret (http://www.thefreedictionary.com/interpret) your postings based upon what you write. That you have difficulty comprehending the English language, this being reflected in your written

Schweik, it is you, ably abetted by your troll mates, who are adept at

Try to remember what you post to other usenet newsgroups using other pseudonyms, Schweik. Liars need a good memory and it seems this is one key feature you lack. Best you give up the lying as you get caught out every time.

If you recall, I have oft repeated that I have had 55 years in the public service. Either you cannot see this or you are now lying. Which is it to be? Either way, hone up those archival research skills.

It is possible in this country to work beyond 65, even in the public service. All the rules were changed by the Liberal Party when they were in office previously. It was at my employers behest that I remain in the service and, in accordance with this, I was made an offer that was impossible to refuse. At the end of 5 years, at age 70 and after 55 years, I elected to retire. No amount of inducements could make me stay on. I did however accept an offer to act as consultant but that is on my terms and I keep my own hours.

I know in Thailand, all public servants must compulsorily retire at age
60. They do not have an option. Is that what is befuddling your view?
Just to refresh your memory, Schweik, I don't live in Thailand. I can live quite comfortably here and don't need to eke out a miserable existence in the developing world.

Ya Bob, I like to turn the knobs.

I DX for myself, I enjoy what I listen to and I don't care what anyone thinks about "my-way"

I started DXing with an Oat Meal box, my little Sony 7600 with a 100 feet of wire was my main friend in NAM, we spent a lot of time together.

I have an antenna farm here and I had one in Ca. also.

Loving it,

I'm old school myself in many ways, however, when I returned to the SWBC hobby circa 1981 or so, the one thing that got me was digital readout and recording capabilities.

I was able, using the FRG-7700 that I purchased from Gilfer SW , to set the radio to a particular frequency, set the timer, and have the next day a recording on cassette of what happened on the frequency.

A whole new world of DX'ing!

I do get and understand your 'gill net' analogy.

A resounding riposte!

But of course, like the rest of your posts it is a weasel worded attempt to alter meanings. I write "Usually" and you interpret it to mean "Always". And you use that as an excuse?

So in Australia "Usual" means "always"? Strange, but I do know a number of other Australians and they always say Usual when they mean usual and never when they mean always.

What will you interpret next? Up is down; right is left? Krispy you Whatever are you going on about? Lying again are you. and here I keep reminding you that it isn't nice to lie. Tell me, what am I bending?

Or is that another interpretation? "Bending" means telling the truth in Australia?

Well, obviously I have forgotten so why don't you remind me about the 30 years at sea, the Bangkok docks and Africa. I'm really interested in hearing your side of the story.

I will have to apologize. You may have written 55 years but I really don't have sufficient interest in you to pay close attention to your

Why in God's world are you rambling on about the retirement age in Oz, and the Liberals and your masters wanting to keep you chained to the wheel? It certainly is not germane to the conversation and what in the

You certainly are adapt in bring non relevant topics into the thread.

That's the way to do it Brian, that is exactly what I did when I started. I went to the Barnes & Noble store and picked up the "Passport to World Band Radio" and a issue of Popular Communication and Monitoring Times and read like a mad man and started reading this newsgroup.

I

You have to tell us a little more to help. What is your setup like? By that, I mean - do you have a home or apartment? Do you have access to any tall trees etc. etc.

> Secondly, if I instead choose the external wire type of

Read - read- read. The best part of the hobby IMO (other than getting a new receiver) is maintaining my antennas or putting up a new one.

Just start with throwing twenty feet of wire outside and go from there. I don't have any experience with the Kaito that you referenced too before, so I don't know if a long length of wire will overload your receiver or not, but you'll easily be able to tell if it does.

I am somewhat lucky in that I live wayyy out in the country so I have never had the problems that many have spoke about in here. But there is always (99% of the time IMO) a solution, no matter your setup.

I used to use a Yaesu FRA7700 active antenna with it.

I've never really owned an active antenna, I wouldn't mind have one though. The closest I have to it is the old Radio Shack Amplified antenna which works well but not really needed out here.

I'm hoping to one day be able to do that, interface a receiver with my computer. I've read the pros and cons of it, but I think the pros outweigh the negatives.

You are the one who is attempting to alter meanings. In case it had escaped your notice, it is I who inserts the URL's which would lead you to an in-depth definition of words you use but don't seem to understand.
It remains a pity that you can't even link to a URL. Possibly it is your false pride that makes you unwilling to go there!

I did include a URL so that YOU could learn the true meaning of "usually". It seems that you are incapable of learning so I will post the relevant information here.

Well, Bangkok docks and Africa were your story. Since you are now in

So get over me then! For a person who doesn't have "sufficient interest" in me, you are displaying signs of a severe compulsive/obsessive disorder. Every time I post, you post a reply. If that's not compulsive/obsessive, then I don't know what is. It is remotely possible that you have a "crush" on me but I'd have thought that a "man" (I use the term loosely) of your years would be well beyond that sort of childish behaviour by now.

Yes, I agree with you. Germane (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Germane) certainly does not have anything to do with the topic at hand. I never was a dab hand at chemistry so I really don't know why you included "germane" in this discussion.

You "supposedly" live in Thailand. You seem to be confusing Thailand for other countries.

I mentioned it in passing because you just can't seem to understand what retirement age is and that "I" retired at 70 after 55 years of service.

Good job John, that is a pretty good chunk of change.

I got my Hammarlund 129X with Heathkit Q Mutiplier back yesterday, totally recapped and realigned. The fella even added on for me a new digital readout for an extra $30.00

Total cost $152 - why the extra two dollars I will

Brian the 909 also goes by the name of the Radio Shack DX-398, that is where I got mine. I had a hundred dollar credit from the store and then they sent me a "gift certificate" for my birthday.

Between that and a couple small birthday gift monies I purchased the 909/398 from the shack.

I was never so dissapointed in a purchase as I was with that. I knew after a month or so either I was going to return it or send it off to Radio Labs and that is what I did.

I absolutely could not believe the difference in that radio once they did their mods, the different filters made it a "real" receiver and one that could be used for UTES and other sideband listening.

They put a speaker in it that just blew away the stock speaker and added another external antenna jack. They modded the RF gain and there were some other mods they included in their package, plus changing the LCD to a real nice indigo blue.

Too bad all that wasn't done to the piece to begin with straight from the factory, if it would have, it'd have been a great receiver, but stock....nah baby
nah. I keep that radio now in my pelican case along with my rung of wire and headphones/batteries in my BOB (Bug Out Bag).

As long as they're being being cool in here there won't be a problem. If Brian is really looking to get back in the hobby and Krypsis is talking about getting his receiver out of the closet, it seems we picked up two new members.:-)

Lost one and picked up two, that's a + 1 ratio. Now we just have to get you to get a receiver of some sorts. ;-) Oh lord, I can see it now, before you know

4427. Software Defined Receivers (SDR) Questions

Hi,

Just curious:

How popular are these software defined receivers (SDR) these days for general sw listening in the price range of, say, up to $ 1,500 ? The kind that work with one's PC.

Haven't thought about them in quite a while.

Is WinRadio still the standard for these kind of things, or are there now others also offering them, that are comparable, or better ?

Still, there's something really nice about twisting knobs, I guess, but this old fashioned concept really dates me.

For a $ 1,500 budget what would you get ? Why ?

(for MIL and AM up to 30 MHz mainly; possibly some VHF/UHF if capable)

Thanks,
Bob

Dear Bushcraftgregg,

Thank you so much for your post, particularly your advice regarding the 909. Greg I had pretty much decided on getting the 909 over the next day or so, but after reading your post, I am now more than a little hesitant. The problem is, being very new to the hobby, I am somewhat reluctant to have to get any modifications done to a new unit just off the shelf. Firstly, I would not know where to start in terms of the kinds of mods I would need to get (although you have kindly mentioned the mods on yours, such as the RF gain, filters and external antenna jack etc). Secondly, I guess I don't really want to have to wait any longer to get my new unit out of the package and into action. Therefore I just really want to buy a unit where I can get on the airwaves almost immediately.

After reading through your post again Gregg, and looking at some further reviews which DO back up what you have said, I have decided to instead go for the Grundid G6 Aviator. It has received mostly positive reviews, and it really is a beautiful looking little unit to look at (the Buzz Aldrin special edition). Not my first preference, but after weighing up my options, I have decided to go for the Grundig instead. If you have any experience with this Grundig unit Bushcraftgregg, or can offer me any advice or guidance about its performance etc, I would be very much grateful to you.

Well sorry for the long-winded post. Have a lovely evening mate and bye for now.

Kind regards,
Brian

Hi Bob,

I do believe the WinRadio units offer excellent value and features in their receivers. A friend of mine recently invested in the WR-G305i, and he has nothing but praise for it. Along with a frequency range of 9 kHz to 1800 MHz, the WR-G305i also has a software-defined VHF/UHF receiver on a PCI bus card. The spectrum analyser (real time) is a real positive and a DRM decoder is also available as an extra option to provide some added grunt to the unit.

Definitely worth a look Bob as I'm pretty certain something like this would well and truly suit your needs.

Kind regards,
Brian

I'm not familiar with the setup, but I have heard of a unit known as a Perseus(sp) which a number of DX'ers are using.

I have no idea about the Grundig, but know that you can purchase this 909/398 straight from RadioLabs with the mods already done along with a satisfaction guarantee.

Here is the link for their website, and like I said, the difference was day and night.

Quite simply, you are a liar.

Of course, you are free to post a URL showing "my story" about the Bangkok docks or Africa to attempt to support your stories, but I doubt that you will even try.

What I anticipate you will do is discover a typo, a misspelled word, or anything else that you can wave to distract attention from the fact that you lie.

I made a mistake. You are not pitiful, you are despicable. You lie.

It was around 1997 or 1998 when I bought a Sangean 909 AM/FM/Shortwave radio, at the same time I also bought a Select A Tenna, both items from C Crane company in Fortuna,California.

I tried out that Sangean 909 radio (it was the top of the line, highest priced model radio,) and the Select A Tenna for one week.HUMPH! neither one of those items showed me Sh.t! I packed them up and I sent them back to C Crane company!

I also tried out that Select A Tenna (it was the lowest price model about $52.00/$57.00, sompin like that, when I bought it) with many of my other radios.

Save your money! Hard times are ahead.

Those ''people'' at the Weather channel HAVE to SUCK UP to fed govt/fed govt DICTATES what they MUST say, if they want to keep on getting that fed govt grant money.

I don't know what kind of grass that is that has taken over most of my front yard, but it looks nice enough.Last few weeks, it has gotten to where I have to rake up those big clumps of cut grass that looks like horse caca on my front yard.(I don't want a grass bagger lawn mower) Also (I like to say that word, also) it is very hard on my old 3.7 horsepower Briggs & Stratton engine on my 22 '' cut walk behind/push and drag lawn mower, it is also very hard on me too because I have to push my tired old lawn mower forward and back and forward again, my front yard gets mowed three times when I mow it.I reckon I might check the pawn shops (I luvs pawn shops, most of my old tools, I bought at pawn shops, but they are Good tools) near doggy's couch and see can I find me a lawn mower with a 6.5 horsepower Briggs & Stratton engine.

HELEN THOMAS, “First Lady of the Press”!

In this wonderful, 17 minute Journeymanpictures portrait, Thomas is asked what keeps her going:

“Outrage. That’s my adrenaline. Outrage, anger at injustice.”

Thomas commenting on the White House briefings:

“Going to the briefing now, everyone will just repeat what the administration wants you to say. There is very little challenge and even if there is, they back off. They give you the robotic answers.”

“What I wish that every press secretary would understand: We pay them. People can handle the truth, but what they can’t handle is lies. One lie after another.”

Most recently Helen Thomas proved her mettle again by criticizing the Obama administration, accusing it of “a pattern of controlling the press” and calling its lack of transparency “really shocking”.

White House Encroaching on First Amendment

“I can only imagine the level of justifiable outrage had your predecessor asked Americans to forward emails critical of his policies to the White House. I suspect that you would have been leading the charge in condemning such a program -- and I would have been at your side denouncing such heavy-handed government action.”

As someone who was once rushed to a hospital in the middle of the night, because of taking a medication that millions of people take every day without the slightest problem, I have a special horror of life and death medical decisions being made by bureaucrats in Washington, about patients they have never laid eyes on.

On another occasion, I was told by a doctor that I would have died if I had not gotten to him in time, after an allergic reaction to eating one of the most healthful foods around. On still another occasion, I was treated with a medication that causes many people big problems and was urged to come back to the hospital immediately if I had a really bad reaction. But I had no reaction at all, went home, felt fine and slept soundly through the night.

My point is that everybody is different. Millions of children eat peanut butter sandwiches every day but some children can die from eating peanut butter. Some vaccines and medications that save many lives can also kill some people.

Are decisions made by doctors who have treated the same patient for years to be over-ruled by bureaucrats sitting in front of computer screens in Washington, following guidelines drawn up with the idea of "bringing down the cost of medical care"?

The idea is even more absurd than the idea that you can add millions of people to a government medical care plan without increasing the costs. It is also more dangerous.

What is both dangerous and mindless is rushing a massive new medical care scheme through Congress so fast that members of Congress do not even have time to read it before voting on it. Legislation that is far less sweeping in its effects can get months of hearings before Congressional committees, followed by debates in the Senate and the House of Representatives, with all sorts of people voicing their views in the media and in letters to Congress, while ads from people on both sides of the issue appear in newspapers and on television.

If this new medical scheme is so wonderful, why can't it stand the light of day or a little time to think about it?

The obvious answer is that the administration doesn't want us to know what it is all about or else we would not go along with it. Far better to say that we can't wait, that things are just too urgent. This tactic worked with whizzing the "stimulus" package through Congress, even though the stimulus package itself has not worked.

Any serious discussion of government-run medical care would have to look at other countries where there is government-run medical care. As someone who has done some research on this for my book "Applied Economics," I can tell you that the actual consequences of government-controlled medical care is not a pretty picture, however inspiring the rhetoric that accompanies it.

Thirty thousand Canadians are passing up free medical care at home to go to some other country where they have to pay for it. People don't do that without a reason.

But Canadians are better off than people in some other countries with government-controlled medical care, because they have the United States right next door, in case their medical problems get too serious to rely on their own system.

But where are Americans to turn if we become like Canada? Where are we to go when we need better medical treatment than Washington bureaucrats will let us have? Mexico? The Caribbean?

Many people do not understand that it is not just a question of whether government bureaucrats will agree to pay for particular medical treatments. The same government-control mindset that decides what should and should not be paid for can also decide that the medical technology or pharmaceutical drugs that they control should not be for sale to those who are willing to pay their own money.

Right now, medications or treatments that have not been approved by the Food and Drug Administration are medications or treatments that you are not allowed to buy with your own money, no matter how desperate your medical condition, and no matter how many years these medications or treatments may have been used without dire effects in other countries.

The crucial word is not "care" but "control."

My new ''Don't drive on my yard'' fence I recently built, part of it anyway, is three pressure treated 2'' by 4''s six feet long, two feet of each post is two feet in the ground, each post is eight feet apart from each other.Tomorrow morning, I am going to the Lowe's store and buy two sixteen feet long pressure treated 1 inch thick by sixteen feet long boards and I will nail those two boards horizontally to the three posts, Cool, eh? There is a tree line along my back yard, both sides of my back yard.My new ''Don't drive on my yard'' fence and my other ''Don't drive on my yard'' fence I had to build a few months ago on the other side of my yard is to keep those damn DUMBASS B HO BUTTKISSERS from driving on my yard.

4465. Our Love of Shortwave and Ham Radios - Your Story

Hey Guys,

Just for a bit of fun, I thought I would start a new threat about how, and why, people here first started their hobby/love affair with shortwave and or ham radios. I guess I will be first cab off the rank, seeing as this thread is my idea heh.

Although I am only relatively new to the hobby, I think part of the fascination for me is being able to have the ability to listen into a huge variety of wonderful and wacky broadcasts from many regions of the world. I have been quite an avid listener using my friends simply beautiful AOR AR8600 Mark II, and I guess you could say from that, the urge to get my very own unit was well and truly born. I also believe it is a wonderful way to meet lots of friendly and interesting people (as I can say I truly HAVE here on rec.radio.shortwave). Just from my short time here, I can already feel a tremendous sense of camaraderie amongst enthusiasts, and the willingness to offer each other guidance and pass on one's knowledge is something I haven't experienced on other discussions boards to date.

Well guys, I would really love to hear some of your stories - how long have you been listening to shortwave, why did you start, and what are some of your more memorable listening experiences?!

Kind regards and I hope everyone here has a fantastic day/evening,
Brian

I noticed that renovations began a few days ago at the historic Voice of America transmitter facility in West Chester, Ohio. The ultimate goal is to convert the building into a radio museum.

There's a photoblog at http://voapark.blogspot.com/

"The Voice of America Bethany Relay Station is located about 25 miles north of Cincinnati, Ohio. It went into service in 1944 and transmitted news of World War II on shortwave radio frequencies using 200,000-watt transmitters built by the Crosley Corporation."

Good post Bruce, I was up there last week. I wished they never closed that station.

My early memories as a child of that place with my Grandpa and my Dad are ones I will never forget.

What an ominous sight that place was at nighttime back in the day, and of course right by there is the Huge WLW tower, I love the design of that tower.

I remember as maybe four or five years old and my Mom and Dad took me up there for the first time after leaving my grandparents.

I was in awe of that place, my Dad explained to me what that place was all about and that they "let people hear from all over the world about the United States." The signal apparently, was so strong being right there pulled off the side of the road, that I guess it bled over a certain part of the AM spectrum because that was the first time I heard the VOA and I know my Dad didn't have a shortwave radio in the car.

I just checked at your link. That is great, especially the sign where Hitler called our city and the VOA........"Those

Dear Bob,

Well what can I say, apart from many many thanks for posting your story. I can't tell you how much I enjoyed the read, particularly your reminiscing of days gone by. I had a good ol' chuckle to myself when you mentioned your neighbor's 'glow in the dark' ham....what a sight! heh. Bob I find it fascinating (and maybe this is due to me being new to the game) that one can sit in their own backyard shed and listen to simply fascinating broadcasts from all corners...modern technology never ceases to amaze does it!

Just in regard to your question Bob, I will be 66 years young this year and I only wish I had of discovered the outright joys of shortwave radio and hams many many years ago. Well I intend to make up for a lot of lost time regardless, and am eagerly awaiting the purchase of my very first unit tomorrow afternoon - the Grundig G6 Aviator (Buzz Aldrin Special Edition). I hope to contribute my own listening experiences over coming days and months once I have my hands on this little baby heh.

Kind regards and all the best Operator Bob (Echo Charlie 42), little on-air handle)

Hello Dearest Friends,

Oh Lord, how do I thank you for all the blessings I have received over recent days. The joy that is building up inside me has suddenly exploded like a geyser. I honestly cannot remember feeling this wonderful and free since I hopped around the fields of my Grandparents
farm in Austria picking tulips for the village fair. Even though I am 60 years of age, I feel as though I am somehow reborn, or better still, like a withered flower now in constant bloom. Well I have had the most wonderful day.... I guess I had better explain to you all.

After my morning bowl of porridge, I set off for work feeling on top of the world. Not long after I arrived, my dear wife phoned me with the most joyous news...I was to become a Grandparent once again.
After hearing this, there was no way in the world I could concentrate on my daily business dealings and meetings, so I decided to give myself a reward and head home at lunchtime.

I got home, and headed straight to my aviary. As I opened the door, amidst several of my beloved spotted turtle doves fluttering like angels flaoting down from heaven, I noticed 2 large eggs in one of the nesting boxes. I was overcome with joy at the thought of being a Grandfather once again.

This very thought awoke feelings deep inside me which I thought had vanished many years ago. I walked briskly into the living room where my wife was standing still in her dressing gown.
My eyes gazed upon her like a ravenous teenager on his very first date. As our eyes met, we embraced like two spirits suddenly set free and we both fell to the ground and made sweet love on the sheepskin rug. After we had finished our passionate rendezvous, I gazed up towards the mantlepiece and noticed the emails I had printed from our Forum Board. My heart skipped a beat again.

As the afternoon fell to the demands of the evening, my thoughts again turned to Thailand, and I quietly wondered what you all may be doing. In my heart, I knew I had to do something to put my mind at ease, and to show you all how much you mean to me. So I suddenly began writing a piece about some of you, which in some way, I hope will bring us all closer together. I plan to take tomorrow off work so that I can dedicate my mind, and my heart, to finishing the piece to send to you all very soon.

Well my Dear Friends around the world, please have a lovely evening/ day and know that I am thinking of you all.

Kind Regards and Sweetest Dreams
Khun Brian.

*More on Brians posts to come. Enjoy.

That was a great post Bob.:-) I remember back when Iraq was lobbing those scud missiles over into Israel and hearing Israel on shortwave.

I don't remember who it was that was talking but they said if Iraq didn't stop that "they would launch the biggest airstrike the world has ever seen."

That's a pretty clear statement IMO.

That is the beauty of the internet, I had no idea
the age of you guys....Bob/Brian and Krypsis.

I like to respect my elders because I know how much I loved to hear my grandpa tell me his stories and now, of course, my Dad.

Somehow, I have the feeling that the world as we know it now, won't be around when I am seventy.

Well, now, actually it was uttered by David Hannum, in reference to Barnum's part in the Cardiff Giant hoax. Hannum was a rival of Barnum's, and was displaying the 'original' Cardiff Giant at the time. Hannum sued Barnum as a result.

Zeeg Heil, Ya'll!

Brownshirt Member of an early Nazi paramilitary organization, the Sturmabteilung or SA (ï¿½assault divisionï¿½). The Brownshirts, recruited from various rough elements of society, were founded by Adolf HITLER in Munich in 1921. Fitted out in brown uniforms reminiscent of Mussolini's BLACKSHIRTS, they figured prominently in organized marches and rallies.
Their violent intimidation of political opponents and of Jews played a key role in Hitler's rise to power.

I've been obsessed with radio since the early '60s. My parents thought I was going through a phase. My first radio was a Truetone console, with a Magic Eye and a 12" speaker.

Dear Dave,

Wow, a Truetone eh! Now I have heard THEY were a classic piece....beautifully built, solid and with a great sound too. Dave do you still have it by any chance, would have to be worth a bit now as an antique provided it was still in good condition wouldn't it? I have read about the Zeniths and Silvertones being quite valuable and a collector's piece. I have also spotted a wonderful old Fairbanks-Morse, also with magic eye in my travels...gorgeous to look at even though it was not in the best of condition.

Kind regards and have a great night,
BK

Krypsis, no need to post bad thoughts. I really hope that by something bad happening (the Bryant episode).....that by you coming over here that maybe
you have met a group of people, that you may break

Larbgai ONLY has bad thoughts. Let me know when he posts something useful on this forum but I won't be holding my breath. He's number one in my killfile.

> hope that by something bad happening (the Bryant > episode).....that by you coming over here that maybe

The Bryant episode wasn't bad, at least for me. In fact, it reminded me very much of how Steve Kramer was harassed in s.c.t and rec.knives. You see, I don't particularly care what personality quirks a person might have and I never thought he deserved the hammering he received in those other forums. In my years of service, I've dealt with all kinds of people but never have I felt compelled to intimidate or harass anyone.
Watching larbgai and his mates destroy a perfectly good newsgroup in s.c.t was bad and very sad too. The epitome of bullying albeit remotely, the absolute cowards way! He should grow up!

I spend a lot of time in soc.culture.vietnam so his antics didn't directly hurt me but I used to enjoy reading s.c.t as I have many friends in the Thai Government. It was always interesting to gain insightful glimpses into the cultures of my overseas friends and associates. S.c.t no longer provides these insightful glimpses and more resembles a wasteland than a cultural discussion forum. S.c.v has its loons but, since most discussion is carried on in Vietnamese, the loons have difficulty disrupting anything we discuss.

> you have met a group of people, that you may break

I used to take my trusty old FRG7 whenever I was sent OS. It must have been one of the very earliest of them as I bought it in 1977. I see that they were only produced from 77-80. In the old days I was sent OS for a few weeks at a time but in recent years I rarely spent more than a few days sorting out issues so I didn't bother taking anything other than my Sony 7600D. The FRG7700 was much bulkier than the FRG7 anyway. That 7600D did a lot of miles with me until it met an untimely end. It got drowned on one of my OS forays and I never bothered replacing it. Damn tropical rainstorms! Interestingly, the 7600D seemed much more sensitive than any of the FRG's that I have owned. Maybe I should get another one of them.
> I wished I had that piece you do and I know there > are many in here that feel the same way, though > they may not say it.

There's plenty out there that would give a 7700 a run for its money these days.

I wish I had my old FRG7 back. I can go visit it as I sold it to a friend some 25 years back, mid 80's maybe, about the time I upgraded to an FRG7000. He won't part with it, unfortunately, but I can fully understand his reasons. There was one on Ebay a short time back but it appeared to be in a sorry state and I don't have the electronic nous to fix it. It went quite cheaply.
I've only broken out the 7700 once in the past ten or fifteen years and that was when I took it down to a Vietnamese friend. He wanted to tune in to his home country but could barely pick up anything. That said, his QTH was hardly ideal being in a gully with lots of factories all around. Too much noise and could only use the active antenna, a longwire being totally impractical in his location.
> Is there are any specific antenna other than a long wire....that you > have thought about putting up?

At my age, going any higher than a 2-step ladder is fraught with risk. My balance isn't what it used to be. My 70 year old neighbour fell off his roof a while back and it took him a good year to come good. Any longwire I rig up will, at best, be a "jury rig". I probably wouldn't be able to find my insulators, baluns, etc. so I will have to source some of them I will have to get a younger, more agile person to do the climbing however.

I am sure that won't be a problem, all you have to do is simply ask. There are many that would be

When I got back home from the Goodwill store and the Wal Mart food store and the GNC store (at the GNC store I bought a big bottle of Estrogen capsules and also a regular size bottle of Estrogen capsules, the smaller bottle, one half price off, and I bought a GNC Gold Card too) and the Lowe's store and unloaded my stuff, I went to the American Automobile Insurance office on Highway 80 and I paid $171.00 for my next six months worth of liability insurance for my 1983 Dodge van.I asked that woman in the office if she ever watches those Progressive insurance tv commercials.I told her that woman in those tv commercials is Fine!, I would like to marry her for the weekends.She said, Oh, you mean Flo? The brunette woman in those Progressive tv commercials, her name is Flo. Then I stopped off at the USA Pawn shop at the intersection of Ellis Ave and JR Lynch Road and I bought an almost brand new looking Troy Bilt lawn mower for $119.95 plus $8.40 Mississippi RIP OFF sales taxes.The engine on the lawn mower is a 6.5 horsepower Briggs & Stratton engine.

Most people don't realize that they spend hundreds or even thousands of dollars a year buying the heavily advertised (HA) brand products in the grocery and department stores. There is nothing in the grocery store that is rocket science. Many of the less advertised (LA) brands or store brands are just as good or better as the HA brands. You are paying for the brainwashing that many HA brand manufacturers put in their advertising campaigns. It is not difficult to make shampoos, conditioners, cleaning products and all those other products that can be found in your local grocery or department store. Why are you paying 4+ dollars for baby shampoo when you can buy the less advertised brand for half the money? Do you like wasting money? If the name brand products are better why would companies be spending billions of dollars in advertising? The answer is that they are not better. They are trying to convince you that the high price they are charging is some how justified by a better product. Even over the counter drugs like aspirin can be bought for half the price of the HA brands. This is a product that has been around for decades. The LA products are under the same FDA regulations as the HA brands. Save a lot of money and don't buy the over priced HA brands.

When you pay the higher price for the HA brands you are paying for the ridiculous high salaries of the CEO's, private jets, golden parachutes and for the billions spent on advertising.

Every time you go to the store you can save several dollars. Over time this can amount to a significant amount of money.

 Brian appoints himself to the "forum board".

Dear Everybody,

Well.....what can I say. Last night and today have been one of the MOST hectic periods in all of my life. I was up until 3am this morning typing away on the computer, trying the hardest I could to get everything organised for tonight's announcements. Unfortunately, I lost precious hours during today as I had to go into the city to run some errands for Mary. I also had to deposit some more money into Ning's Krung Thai bank account, as she has still not gone back to work at her nightly restaurant position. At least now I don't have to worry about whether or not she has food for money and rent, as hopefully the money I put into the account today will last her for a few weeks at least....one less thing for me to worry about at last. So, for now at least, everything is going along for me really well thank heavens.

Now...onto more pressing matters. As all of you would be aware by now, the online meeting/conference which took place between many members of the SCT Forum Board yesterday was held for two reasons. Firstly, to elect a committee to oversee the changes which will soon be introduced to the Board, and, secondly, to determine exactly what these new changes will involve for all subscribers. I have completed the final list of duly elected committee men and women, and I am PROUD to announce their appointments now. Congratulations everybody and I'm sure all of your hard work will do everybody proud. And remember our goal discussed yesterday, let's make this the best Forum Board on the World Wide Web.

"Full Names and Locations of Officially Elected Committee Men and Women":

Mr Sandringham Cruden - Thailand.
Mr Nicolas Cramer - The United States of America.
Mr Clayton Irving - The United States of America.
Ms Noi Panyarachun - The United States of America.
Mr Alexander Gitlits - Australia.
Mr Geoffrey Bee - The United Kingdom.
Mr Stephen Kramer - Thailand.

Ms Viviane Kowalski - Australia.
Mr Brian Anasta - Australia.

Secretary: Mr Brian Anasta.

Well everybody, at least we now have the committee publicly announced, and once I release the new guidelines over the next 24 hours, we can all start getting down to work to make sure our Forum Board is indeed the best there is.

Have a tremendous evening/afternoon everybody and speak with you all soon.

Kindest Regards Always,
Khun Brian [Secretary of the SCT Forum Board].

Hi Guys,

Just in regard to your comments, I must say when I used to live in the States many years ago, I would often be a regular visitor to the good ol' local Radio Shack store. It would be sort of a Saturday morning ritual for me when my then-wife and I were out and about running errands. While she was at the drugstore getting a few bits and pieces, I would make my way across the sidewalk to the 'shack' to peruse all the neat little gadgets available at the time. It would sometimes take my wife literally hours to drag my keister outta that store to go home heh. I wonder if that had anything to do with her now being my ex?! :)

Kind regards,

Hi Guys,

I couldn't wait to get home to post after running some errands and 'accidentally' dropping by the electronics store on the way home. Well boys, I HAVE finally taken the plunge and purchased MY very first shortwave unit....

The Grundig Aviator G6 (Special Buzz Aldrin LIMITED Edition), it's sleek and stylish, its lines are smooth, and its oh so sexy - and I am now the proud owner of one! :)

Well what can I say fellas, but I AM absolutely delighted to have finally purchased one of these little beauties. I hesitated for many days wondering if I was making the correct choice, but after countless hours of searching product reviews, as well AS lots of advice and guidance from a few of you guys from our group, I decided to go for it - and boy am I glad I did. Just taking it out of the box, this thing really does look the part. The build quality is excellent, it seems very solid and feels so good in the hand. There also appears to BE a significant number of neat little features that I am going to have many days of fun trying to work out how they all work heh. I now plan to spend the weekend searching through the rec.radio.shortwave archives to try and get a headstart in terms of setting this thing up and really getting the best out of it. It IS going to be somewhat of a case of trial and error on my behalf I would think, but it is very reassuring to be able to rely on the internet (and our group IN particular) as well as the various shortwave and ham radio learner books I have purchased over recent days so that I can learn as much as I can in the shortest space of time.

Sorry for seeming overly excited guys, but I really wanted to come here again just to say a big thank you to everyone who helped in my decision to purchase the Grundig as well as to emphasis once again how great it is to have a forum board such as ours where people like me can come and get expert advice so that we can really enjoy our 'toys' to the maximum! :)

Kind regards and I hope all of you have a wonderful weekend on the 'waves',
BK G6

Hi There,

Guys I've noticed a couple of subscribers (such as this particular poster) here complaining about one or two individuals posting various off-topic and provocative messages here on the forum board. Now I am not sure which news readers those guys here use to access new posts, but in many situations, I have heard the use of a downloadable program titled Thunderbird is extremely beneficial in filtering the chaff from the wheat so to speak. A close friend of mine from the States who was receiving some unwanted attention online recommended it to me some time ago on another discussion group and he noted that since using this ingenious program, reading any discussion forum had been nothing but hassle-free for him, not to mention loads of fun. If any of you NEED more information about Thunderbird, please feel free to drop me a line and I can pass on the web link to you. Oh I forgot to mention, the program is completely FREE to download too.

Reading ONLY the messages that YOU want to read - I like that!

Kind regards and happy listening over the weekend guys,
BK G6 (Proud owner of the Grundig Aviator G6 - Special Buzz Aldrin Limited Edition)

Thanks so much Bob! I must admit, since arriving home with it this evening I have had a hard time taking my eyes off it. I am a bit embarrassed to say this, but I kinda feel like a kid again with a brand new toy heh. I can't wait till tomorrow when I think the fun is really gonna start when I try to start picking up some stations. Once I get my head around all the functions and processes, I will then try experimenting a bit and try to find some more obscure broadcasts/ frequencies. I will let you know how it goes! :)

Have a wonderful weekend Bob,
BK G6

Will definitely keep in touch Bob. Actually, I was meant to be cutting the grass in my backyard tomorrow, but I think that MAY just have to wait another week now that I have this new toy to keep me busy grin

Kind regards and take care Bob,

G'day Guys,

I really hope I have found the correct newsgroup here, if not, my apologies. Assuming I have found the correct location, I am just here to explain a few things regarding Dad.

You guys don't know me, but I think you know Dad, or Brian Anasta to many of you. From what my Mum and I know, Dad used to frequent this newsgroup quite regularly, and according to many conversations with my Father, made quite a few acquaintances here also. I though it only right that I come here to let you know what has happened to Dad, as well as explain a few things which I think are important.

Dad, as you may be aware, is approaching 61 years of age, and for the past 9 or so months, has been experiencing the early signs of dementia. Oh don't get me wrong, he is still very active and still has all his faculties about him and is more often than not as sharp as a tack. Occasionally, though, he is prone to live in somewhat of a 'fantasy world', and Mum and I both try to keep a close eye on him to make sure he doesn't get up to any mischief.

Well to cut a long story short, a month or so ago, Dad decided he wanted to visit Thailand, as he has always held a fascination for South-east Asia, and Thailand in particular. Well even though Mum and I were against him going by himself, he was very insistent, and in the end, we had no choice but to see him go for his short holiday. It was only when he arrived home that the trouble started. Dad became very withdrawn and distant, not only towards his friends and colleagues, but also towards Mum, his wife of over 30 years. Instead of going to work, Dad would spend hours sitting at the computer, and at various times during the day, would go into town "to run some errands" according to him. It is almost like since he got back from Thailand, that he changed from the loving man we grew up with, to someone who seemed to have other things on his mind. he no longer wants to spend any time with the family, or Mum in particular, and it's breaking her heart, as well as mine and my Sister's, to see the family being torn apart for no apparent reason.

As a last resort, and at the wishes of my Mother, I have come here to try and find some answers. I absolutely hate myself for going behind Dad's back, but I can no longer see my Mum being mentally tortured the way she currently is. The only way I found out about this particular newsgroup was because Dad often mentioned he came here to get information about birdwatching activities in Thailand.

Thanks everyone and Mum and I would be really grateful for any information.

Huh?

Mr. Obama still has most Americans' approval.

I think the country's going in the wrong direction, but it ain't Obama's fault.

Good riddance.

Tandy ruined the once proud term "radio shack" by naming their chain of stores selling trinkets and low-quality consumer junk after the 70s. When RS was a real electronics store based in Boston they were great but that was in the 50s and 60s. Tandy really ruined it.

Since then I have done most anything to avoid going in one. The clerks are imbeciles.
The products, inferior. Anything you ask them for is met with a dumbfounded look.
They'd be better suited to wearing vests and greeting customers with "welcome to Radio Shack... would you like to try a bloomin' onion or start out with an appetizer?"

Maybe the bruised term "radio shack" can now begin its healing process and be used again with a semblance of respect.

I spent a couple hours between last night and this morning trying out my new Grundig G3, which I'm powering with four fresh alkaline batteries. I also own an Eton E5 which I got three years ago. So, I've been doing some comparisons between the E5 and the G3, but I should point out that the E5 is a few years old so it's not a perfect side-by-side comparison. With that said, here are my initial comments about the G3:

* Sync detect functionality is poor, working best on only the strong signals. Often, while the sync is activated, it will add squeal or muting to the audio signal, which is worse than not using sync at all.

* While listening to a ham frequency last night, I struggled to clarify the SSB signal with the BFO dial. Broadcasts were readable but maintained a robotic quality regardless of my efforts. The Eton E5 clarified the signal easily.

* Sometimes when I press the "3" on the keypad, I get a "4" instead.

* The radio has an unpleasant burnt rubber smell.

* When entering frequencies via keypad and pressing the band button to switch to the station, there's a longer muting pause than on my Eton E5.

* MW and SW sensitivity seems equivalent to my E5. I haven't really evaluated FM.

* VHF band is nice, but probably due to line-of-sight issues, I can only hear planes and not the atc tower at KSFO.

Conclusion: this radio doesn't offer me enough improvements over my E5, and in some ways, is worse. I'm currently planning to return it.

Initial reviews of this set are _not_ encouraging; especially the performance of the synchronous detector.

Actually, if I wanted something small for MWDX right now I'd go for the Tecsun PL-300wt/Grundig G8 ... or, even newer, the Kchibo D96L which has multiple selectable synthesized IF bandwidths in a $50 radio. The performance of both of these portables on FM is even better; bordering on the extraordinary.

This is not unusual. Undesireable, nonetheless, but not unusual.
An unstable local oscillator modulated by the micro variations in supply voltage due to audio load will make some SSB signals difficult to read. Too high an incoming signal can do the same.

BFO will not be as clean as, say, sync on in coming audio, because the phase of the BFO is not fixed to the incoming carrier frequency as it is with sync. So, you'll always have some of that robotic quality due to the ill defined relationship between harmonics.

Reducing incoming signal levels can help. Which will be difficult on your particular radio.

Generally, you'll hear craft aloft before you'll hear ground radio from the local FBO's or the tower. This is due, as you suggest, to line off sight issues, in conjunction with low output power. I hear planes from 75 miles way, here at the ranch. But the closest tower is inaudible on the same frequency only a few miles away.

If you really want to hear tower traffic, do a websearch for Live ATC.

Absolutely terrible number of images on the

And many airports don't use all those frequencies as you will find out.

Likely overload from nearby FM's and businesses. AV
Radios are low power.

Your avcomms are AM and narrow. If your images are fuzzy and smeared over a wide segment of spectrum, instead of centered on a fairly narrow channel, those are broadcast FM's.

Utopia Versus Freedom

"Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom." We have heard that many times. What is also the price of freedom is the toleration of imperfections. If everything that is wrong with the world becomes a reason to turn more power over to some political savior, then freedom is going to erode away, while we are mindlessly repeating the catchwords of the hour, whether "change," "universal health care" or "social justice."

If we can be so easily stampeded by rhetoric that neither the public nor the Congress can be bothered to read, much less analyze, bills making massive changes in medical care, then do not be surprised when life and death decisions about you or your family are taken out of your hands-- and out of the hands of your doctor-- and transferred to bureaucrats in Washington.

Let's go back to square one. The universe was not made to our specifications. Nor were human beings. So there is nothing surprising in the fact that we are dissatisfied with many things at many times. The big question is whether we are prepared to follow any politician who claims to be able to "solve" our "problem."

If we are, then there will be a never ending series of "solutions," each causing new problems calling for still more "solutions." That way lies a never-ending quest, costing ever increasing amounts of the taxpayers' money and-- more important-- ever greater losses of your freedom to live your own life as you see fit, rather than as presumptuous elites dictate.

Ultimately, our choice is to give up Utopian quests or give up our freedom. This has been recognized for centuries by some, but many others have not yet faced that reality, even today. If you think government should "do something" about anything that ticks you off, or anything you want and don't have, then you have made your choice between Utopia and freedom.

Back in the 18th century, Edmund Burke said, "It is no inconsiderable part of wisdom, to know much of an evil ought to be tolerated" and "I must bear with infirmities until they fester into crimes."

But today's crusading zealots are not about to tolerate evils or infirmities. If insurance companies are not behaving the way some people think they should, then their answer is to set up a government bureaucracy to either control insurance companies or replace them.

If doctors, hospitals or pharmaceutical companies charge more than some people feel like paying, then the answer is price control. The actual track record of politicians, government bureaucracies, or price control is of no interest to those who think this way.

Politicians are already one of the main reasons why medical insurance is so expensive. Insurance is designed to cover risks but politicians are in the business of distributing largesse. Nothing is easier for politicians than to mandate things that insurance companies must cover, without the slightest regard for how such additional coverage will raise the cost of insurance.

If insurance covered only those things that most people are most concerned about-- the high cost of a major medical expense-- the price would be much lower than it is today, with politicians piling on mandate after mandate.

Since insurance covers risks, there is no reason for it to cover annual checkups, because it is known in advance that annual checkups occur once a year. Automobile insurance does not cover oil changes, much less the purchase of gasoline, since these are regular recurrences, not risks.

But politicians in the business of distributing largesse-- especially with somebody else's money-- cannot resist the temptation to pass laws adding things to insurance coverage. Many of those who are pushing for more government involvement in medical care are already talking about extending insurance coverage to "mental health"-- which is to say, giving shrinks and hypochondriacs a blank check drawn on the federal treasury.

There are still some voices of sanity today, echoing what Edmund Burke said long ago. "The study of human institutions is always a search for the most tolerable imperfections," according to Prof. Richard Epstein of the University of Chicago. If you cannot tolerate imperfections, be prepared to kiss your freedom goodbye.

Krypsis, I know how you feel about them, "some" of it IMO you may have brought a little on yourself,
I'm not saying all of it...but maybe a tad.

I'm not saying your a bad guy either. But Larb/Fred and the guys have always treated me with respect.

IMO - Kramer is unlike ANYTHING I have ever read in usenet, a true physological study, he holds me almost spellbound in a weird way when I read his posts.

All Fred / Larb and the boys did, was bring out the fact that he is one of the most (IMO) incredible "story tellers".....and by that - I mean a truly disturbed individual who for whatever reason...just isn't happy enough with his life ....which I don't understand myself because he lives or had lived in some of the worlds most exotic locations. But for some reason

that only Kramer himself can explain - - it apparently just isn't enough.

The part Krypsis I don't understand, is why in the world would you "stand up" so too speak for someone like that? You may not like the way the guys are unrelenting, but that is exactly what it takes for someone like him.

I can be usenet friends with you and also with Larb and the guys. Just remember, this group is about shortwave radio and the entire spectrum and anything that goes along with it, not bullcrap. It gets old IMO and makes this group not fun when there is constant bickering. Mike pushed and pushed, not just at me either....he has/had done it for YEARS.

You guys don't know me, but I think you know Dad, or Brian Anasta to newsgroup quite regularly, and according to many conversations with my Father, made quite a few acquaintances here also. I though it only well as explain a few things which I think are important.

Dad, as you may be aware, is approaching 61 years of age, and for the past 9 or so months, has been experiencing the early signs of dementia. Oh don't get me wrong, he is still very active and still

I learned more about electronics from Allied Radio (100 N. Western Ave, Chicago) catalogs, than from any other single source.

Lafayette had killer stores in the early '60s.

I own a G6, it's a good little radio and works well with an external antenna. It is excellent on AM, shortwave, and FM.

It is a complete failure on the airband and longwave. sideband only works on upper SB.

Rumors abound about them being lost forever, or found again. To find out what really happened, I had a chat with Dick Nafzger, the Goddard Space Flight Center engineer who was in charge of coordinating all TV operations for the moon landing back in 1969, at the age of 28. He still works at Goddard as an engineer, and has been one of the leading characters in the tape restoration this year. The US will continue to have a War economy until it goes bankrupt (in a year or two), then the different factions will turn on each other. Before long, the US economy will be based on exporting farm produce, and on sex tourism for those Chinese men who go for 300 pound palefaces.

No future president will give up any of the autocratic powers Bush amassed. Moreover, Congress, during the Bush years, has proved itself to be as servile as the People's Consultative Congress of China. Get used to an autocratic future, folks.

Well, look back further than Kramer in history and you will see they are philosophy, whatever that "philosophy" might be.

Did you ensure that the posts you read were written by Kramer? I seem to recall the trolls were rather prone to faking posts by all and sundry back then. One could rarely be sure who wrote what post. Many subscribers left s.c.t about this time, and for this reason, never to return. All that remains of s.c.t's former glory are a couple of diehards. Certainly there remains minimal discussion that could even be remotely considered on-topic.

I particularly recall one poster, name of Sandy, who lived in Bangkok. He always posted on-topic stuff, typically about daily life there, and was never rude to anyone. Nor did he boast about his life in Bangkok. The mere fact that he was able to live quite happily in Bangkok was anathema to these trolls so they started hounding him. I've never worked out their justification for this and can only assume jealousy. Anyway, they soon began faking his posts and that must have been the last straw for him as he ceased to post not long after. If you had been reading his posts, it was easy to tell which were the faked posts as they were so totally out of character. This was the case for 3 or 4 previous on-topic posters as well.
> All Fred / Larb and the boys did, was bring out the

Bring out the fact? They "created" the fact... Whatever was posted by Kramer was distorted to hell by the trolls. Remember, if you repeat a lie often enough, it gains a "status" that can be easily mistaken for credibility.

> individual who for whatever reason...just isn't happy > enough with his life ....which I don't understand myself because he

I would have said the trolls were the ones who were disturbed and not happy with their lives. They show this disturbance with every post.

> lives or had lived in some of the worlds most exotic locations. But > for some reason

He seemed reasonably happy, certainly not "disturbed" in any way, when I met him in Chiang Mai some years back. We met at a mutual friend's home and he resembles in no way the person depicted by the trolls here. At the time I didn't know who he was as he was introduced only by his first name. Quite a large expatriate community in Chiang Mai and I know a few of them. I wouldn't call Chiang Mai exotic however. It was exotic when I first traveled there in the 60's but it has become just another metropolis nowadays. The tourists still venture there but it seems that all the "attractions" I see nowadays are "canned", very artificial.

> that only Kramer himself can explain - - it apparently > just isn't enough.

They took offence to Kramer having his business in Thailand identified as a tagline on his posts. It doesn't take much to attract the trolls attention. From what I saw, it was pure jealousy that HE could have a business in Thailand and they couldn't.

Like I said, Kramer is but one of many in the past the trolls have targeted and harassed out of usenet. Did you note the way they stepped in on Mike Bryant's case yet knowing little if anything about him. They are just wanting to pick fights because their own lives are so dull and miserable.
> I can be usenet friends with you and also with Larb

Well, when I first looked into r.r.s, I could have been forgiven for thinking a massive flame war was in progress. Also, if you recall, YOU moved into rec.knives and gave the trolls sufficient "fuel" to reignite the fires in that forum. That action of yours was the basis of my responses to you in that forum.
You need to be careful of the old adage that you seem to be applying here. That is, "My enemy's enemy is my friend." In this case, your enemy's enemy will soon become your enemy and the enemy of everyone else in this forum. Choose your friends wisely else you may find yourself as welcome in this forum as a turd in a swimming pool!

> old IMO and makes this group not fun when there > is constant bickering. Mike pushed and pushed, not

You could have chosen, as many did, to ignore it. That way, r.r.s would have remained harmonious. That is how we deal with such in s.c.v, give the trolls no air and they eventually get bored and move on. Most discussion in s.c.v is in Vietnamese anyway so the trolls would be pushing the proverbial uphill to interject in any meaningful way. The Vietnamese Government toss in their own trollish interjectors into s.c.v as well but these are well known. The word gets round and they are totally ignored.

> just at me either....he has/had done it for YEARS.

Like I said, ignore it. Respond to those posts you consider reasonable and ignore the rest. I notice that most in r.r.s indeed do exactly that.

Hi Weatherall,

Was quite interesting to read your comments regarding your new G3. If you have decided to return the unit, could I be so forward as to highly recommend to you the Grundig G6 Aviator. I HAVE the special Buzz Aldrin limited edition, and after playing with this thing all day today, I am extremely impressed with its quality AND features. This thing is also very easy on the eye, and several of my friends and neighbors have been blown away when I showed it to them. Now I am not too sure what your exact needs are, but I DO think you could do much worse than the G6, and heck, you know you are getting a quality product with the Grundigs also (in my humble opinion, the Grundig units ARE some of the best around). If YOU need any further information regarding the G6, please do not hesitate to ask me any questions either here on the board, OR, at my personal/private inbox address.

Kind regards and I hope everything works out for you,
BK G6 (PROUD G6 owner)

Hi MIke,

First off welcome to the board. You sound like a guy who knows what he IS talking about, so it is great to have a little more expertise here on RRS for the benefit off all! Now, in relation to your above comments, can I please reiterate what you stated in regard to the Grundig. I HAVE just purchased the G6 and on first impressions, this unit is simply fantastic. I have been testing it non-stop all day, and at THIS stage, I have nothing but praise for it. Also of note is the fact that it is also the special Buzz Aldrin limited edition, so in my opinion it could be worth quite a bit as a collectors item in years to come. Anyway summing up, for the price I paid for the G6, in combination with its build quality and range of features, I consider this particular unit to be in the top 5 of shortwaves currently available on the market.

King regards and welcome once again,
BK G6

Hey Guys,

Hope you're all having a super time with your units. I was just playing with mine and thought of a neat little idea for anyone interested. As many of you would now know, yesterday I purchased MY very first Grundig and have so far I been very impressed with it. I was thinking it would be great if any of you who also have the G6 could write a line or two about when you got yours, why YOU decided on the G6 and what impresses you most about the G6. Perhaps in the not too distant future we could even think about starting up an official G6 members club or something of that nature. Well guys, just a thought and will look forward to hearing YOUR G6 stories.

Kind regards,

After they get done with Three Gorges, I wonder if they'll try wind in the Taklamakan. That basin is 500 foot below sea level, with the Himalaya and Tien Shen mountains on each side. As the basin heats up, the hot air rises, and cold air flows down out of the mountains to replace it.

This happens every single day, and has for millennia. Its windpower you know will be there every day.

They are not going to have substitution. If that which now goes on in the USA ever gets to the point where it disturbs productivity, the warmer races will not be fed, housed, or had their homes heated. Both Chinese and Aryan races evolved in temperate zones over the last dozen millennia at least, and instinctively put up the resources to survive the winter. Darwin will sort it out.

4625. Nancy Pelosi's Nazis

Nancy Pelosi has a very florid imagination. In her mind's eye she is seeing people "carrying swastikas" at Town Hall meetings to protest Obama's Central Plan for American medicine. Which makes me wonder why all the swastika-carrying nutsies -- or Nazis? or just nasties? -- in Ms. Pelosi's imagination are not in favor of Obama's plan to control US medicine. It's a control freak's dream, after all, and the Nazis were totalitarian control freaks.

Can we get serious? One of the painful things today is the massive failure of history teaching in the schools and colleges, so that kids confuse Hitler's Nazis with the people who fought for freedom against them. Stalin and Hitler forged an alliance in 1938. Had Hitler not gone mad and invaded Stalin's Soviet Union, the Nazis and Soviets would have gone to war against the West together. And they would have won.

The Nazis were totalitarian romantics. That is why Hitler imitated and glorified Richard Wagner, the Siegfried mythographer who marked the very height of German Romanticism. That is also why the Nazis hated both Jews and Christians, and promoted a neo-pagan religion based on the Nordic gods and the glorification of killing and war. The Nazis were romantics -- just like the hippies in the Sixties. They loved going "back to nature," "the noble Savage," nudism, and the destruction of marriage and traditional families.

Obama's former good buds Bill Ayers and Bernardine Dohrn

[http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/individualProfile.asp?indid=2169
]
[http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/individualProfile.asp?indid=2190

are prototypical anarchist Romantics, people who are quite willing to kill for their cause. Hitler's Nazis were emotional revolutionaries with an endless craving to attack, subvert, control and co-opt all the existing structures of society. Oh, and yes, they had a Mass Cult of the Leader not unlike the idolatry whipped up for Barack Obama today. Obama's "Citizens of the World!" speech in front of 200,000 cheering Berliners had that very familiar look to it. That was not an accident, but a deliberate PR stunt.

The best explanation of Nazism ever written is Peter Viereck's Metapolitics: The roots of the Nazi mind. If you only give your kids one book this year, that should be the one. Viereck's Metapolitics was written in great fear and passion during the early days of Hitler's rise, when the author was still a graduate student of German history, and then revised two decades later. But it's one of those books that remains relevant because it hits the nail on the head. You can't get more accurate than Viereck did. A few years later Thomas Mann wrote an Epilogue to Viereck's book, endorsing its main conclusions. They both understood how deeply the Nazis were rooted in German history.

"Metapolitics" is the name the Nazis gave to their brand of politics, because in their minds they were trying to change the entire world, not just be another political party. Marxism is metapolitics; Nazism is metapolitics. And yes, some of today's political fantasists dream the same dreams. (Hint: Who do you think wants to revolutionize the world today?)

Metapolitics was very controversial even after World War Two, because it criticized European Romanticism, beloved by European and American scholars and writers. But Peter Viereck was right and his critics were wrong. German Romanticism of the totalitarian variety survived the Nazis, and just re-emerged as the [Socialist] Green movement in Europe. Nazism was always a "back to nature" movement anyway. After the Nazis were defeated, all the Wagnerian Romantics turned into Socialist Romantics. Often they were the very same people, like Martin Heidegger, Paul de Man, and even Jean-Paul Sartre. The 1968 student riots in Europe, which ultimately brought the Greens to power, were run by anarchists identical to the Nazi rioters of the Munich beer halls. Some of them have realized as much since that time.

Post-modernism is an attack on Western rationalism, democracy, capitalism, free speech and free thought. It's called "Post-Modernism" because it wants to kill modernism. Modernism stands for science, technology, democracy, medicine and yes, bourgeois capitalism: The keys to modern prosperity and well-being. That is why "Post-Modernism" became so popular in our college English and History departments. That is also why we have the "global warming" fraud, the anti-science movements, the anti-nuclear power campaigns, the "post-modern" media -- run by propaganda artists who were taught in college that lying for a "good cause" was better than telling the truth. Those are the mediots who are running our media today.

Culturally, the Nazis would have felt right at home with that attack on Western rationalism, capitalism, and freedom of thought. It was exactly what they wanted. The Nazis were Post-Modernists. Modernity was their enemy. Hitler characteristically called Albert Einstein's relativity theory "Jewish science." Back in Moscow, Jozef Stalin promoted an attack on science by peddling fraudulent agricultural genetics. Stalin thought he could discipline his marching ranks of wheat stalks to grow taller by force, encouraged by his fraudulent "geneticist" Trofim Lysenko. Both Hitler and Stalin hated real science. They had real scientists sent to concentration camps.

The reason is of course that real science is about telling the truth. That is why "global warming" is also a totalitarian scheme; it's fraudulent science. It is also why the Left cannot openly debate the pros and cons of Central Planning in American medicine. They are not happy with searching out the truth.

And I'm afraid, that is also why Nancy Pelosi has to imagine "people with swastikas" flooding the Town Hall meetings in America, to fight against all the Good and Noble people like herself. Nancy is a certifiable airhead, but the beliefs echoing in her head come from decades of ideological indoctrination -- of the Totalitarian Romantic kind. People like Ms. Pelosi have been given all the answers by the ideologues of the Left. That is why their minds are shut so air tight.

Let's not call them names, our Totalitarian Romantics [Liberal Fascists] of today.

But let's not forget their historical antecedents either.

Hint: It's not Washington, Madison, Jefferson or Lincoln.

Barry,

OK so one of the Protesters was carrying was one Sign with a Red Circle and a Red Bar {witch was imposed over a Black NAZI Swastika

But Democrat Pelosi only sees what she wants to

This is because Pelosi herself is a Liberal-Fascist

4643. Brian Anasta meets Steve Kramer

 This is a copy of the post Brian made when he pretended to meet Stevie.
It's there for all to see in the archives.

Good Morning Everybody,

Well I hope all of you here are in good health and in even better spirits. I must admit I tossed and turned quite a bit last night as it felt quite strange sleeping in my own bed again. I know I only spent a short period of time in the Land of Smiles, but I somehow feel as though I have left a part of myself in Thailand, and in Chiang Mai in particular. I would almost go so far as saying I feel Thai myself, and that I don't belong in Australia anymore. But regardless, it has been really comforting receiving the many messages some of you have sent to my personal Inbox welcoming me back. Thank you all for that.

Well enough of my chattering, and back to the real point of my message. I know the person in question will probably feel a little bit uncomfortable reading the following words, but I felt it was something I had to do. Also, the other people in our particular seesion on the day urged me to write something to show their deep appreciation.

As many of you may have been aware, I have a deep love for the natural environment and the wilderness and animal species contained within that environment. More specifically, photographing this wonderful creation of mother nature is something I have had a fascination with ever since I was a youngster. Going to Thailand was, for me, a way to indulge myself, and to get the most out of my experience, I felt I had to find someone special who could show me everything I wanted to see.

Needless to say, my wishes were fulfilled immensely. Mr Steve Kramer, you are not only one of the most talented photographers/artists I have ever met, you are also one of the kindest, knowledgeable and thought-provoking people I have had the pleasure of coming into contact with. The attention to detail, as well as the desire to make sure all of our requests were addressed was nothing short of amazing, and when the day finally ended those of us in the particular photography session all left with a touch of sadness and regret. Regret that the day was over and that we couldn't continue on for much longer, as we all enjoyed the experience so much.

I must admit that I felt quite overawed as I was making my way to the Photoenvisions studio to meet up for the lessons/location shoots, as I am only just an amatuer with a deep love for photography/nature. To be taught by someone such as yourself was indeed a great pleasure and honor, even though it was quite daunting being in the same room with someone who has your talent and experience. But, I am so happy to say, my fears were unfounded. You treated all of us as not only a colleague, but also as friends. I know for a fact that some of the other guys in the session will also probably want to post something to let you know how much they enjoyed the day as well. I know all of us will treasure the day for the rest of our lives, and that night around dinner we all spoke to one another of how fortunate we were to have spent the day with you in those exotic locations. The sight of you photographing that HUGE, but gorgeous elephant was mesmerizing, and that amazing camera you use was almost like an extension of your body.
I'm betting you were probably born with a camera in your hand Khun Steve heh.

Well thanks again so much and I will look forward to showing you some of my final pictures.

Kindest Regards,
Khun Brian.

* Funny thing is Kramer to this day denies meeting you Brian. Why is that?????

Before I let you all in on a few secrets and a theory let me first set the table and lay out a few well known facts regarding this case;

A) Kim Jong Il has the largest private pornographic collection on the planet, FACT

B) Brother Bill (Slick Willy) can't go anywhere without his pants falling down around his ankles nor can he keep his Schlong in his pants, FACT

C) The 2 broads just didn't walk out of a N.Korean jail without some sort of compensation to Il

D) We know the ONLY thing Brother Bill (Slick Willy) did for the USA while in Office was drive up Porno Rentals and Cigar Sales

It will soon be revealed to the world that Kim Jong Il has had a penile transplant (performed in Japan at the University of Sapporo) and has been rumoured to be eating Viagra like CANDY (24/7)

It is my contention that Brother Bill (Slick Willy) flew to North Korea with a plane load of Porno DVDs and swapped them out for the 2 broads. I have no doubt that the 2 leaders had a few cigars and cocktails, plugged in a few DVD's and had a "Hand Party" while standing around in a CIRCLE.

Who knows where the 2 broads were at that time (and who really cares, they're safe); bottom line we as Americans are ALL GRATEFUL to Brother Bill (Slick Willy) for his fine work in Pyongyang.

I know the Ph.dufus and Dave would like to have aided in this great humanitarian effort and Jerk Fest...:-)

Hey Brian,

Thnaks for the welcome, although it might interest you to know that I've been posting to rec.radio.shortwave for almost 20 years. I don't claim any more expertise (or even as much) as many of the posters here over the years, some with credentials to match. But I do only post about radio here, and only when I have something meaningful to contribute.

From everything I hear, the G6 is an excellent set except for the air band images. It does seem that the much-anticipated G3 with sync detector is a major disappointment; have seen at least 2 reviewers indicate they are sending it back.

I should mention also that the DSP sets I refer to in the quote (Tecsun PL-300wt/Grundig G8, and Kchibo D96L) are _terrible_ on shortwave as the SW bands are swamped with MW images and other noise which cause so much de-sense that there is no useable sensitivity. But the decline in SWBC had gotten me interested in domestic broadcast DX again, and these $50 radios are amazing performers for that purpose.

Hey Shortwavers,

Well guys, if any of you know the local number for SWRA (shortwave radios anonymous) could you please pass it on to me! I have spent the past 16 hours straight getting to grips with my new Grundig G6 Aviator (the special Buzz Aldrin LIMITED edition) and the learning curve, although quite steep, has been a ton OF fun. Was just wondering if any of you guys tend to occasionally 'lose track of time' when playing with your units too? Well, there ARE worse ways to spend one's weekend I would think heh. I must admit, I am having a very difficult (yet most satisfying) time getting mine out of my hand!

Kind regards and enjoy your Sunday on the 'waves',

So you're saying that Jonah Goldberg is a communist or socialist?

(There's no such thing as a "liberal fascist". Anyone with a connection to reality would tell you that.)

Now, either show a REFERENCE book (ie. dictionary, thesaurus) to prove they aren't mutually exclusive, or admit that you only have idiotic rhetoric as your basis and go teabagging with your buddies.

'Liberal fascist'? Oh, like one of those pious atheists. Tricky bastards.
Don't take your eye off 'em.
Republicans might like to know that some prominent world figures share their opinion of liberals. Men like Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, Osama bin Laden, King Abdullah ibn Saud, they hate liberals too.

Subject: A Question on Property Ownership in Thailand

Dear All,

Hi everyone, I hope everyone here is well. I am currently doing a lot of research into many issues related to living permanently in Thailand. Using mainly websites written by expats who have been through a lot of these problems already, I consider these types of websites a useful source for gaining information on a range of important topics. However, I have read varying reports on the issue of non-Thais owning property in Thailand. From what I can gather, non-Thais cannot own land/a house in Thailand, or if they do want to go down that road, the land/house must be in the name of a Thai national.

As I will be residing in Thailand in the next 2 months, I would really appreciate some information from long-term residents on the board, particularly some guidance on what are the facts when it comes to property ownership.

Thank you very much in advance.

Kind Regards,
Brian Anasta

Here's the deal, Roy. I warned you (when President Bush started spying on us) that the extraordinary powers that we were letting the President assume could someday be used by a Democrat, and that Mr. Bush was opening a dangerous can of worms.

You mocked me then and you mock me now, to your own detriment both times.

Yes, that's about all building a modern computer is these days. No soldering required. Barely even need a screwdriver with some of these modern cases, all clips and slides.

My son used to build them as a hobby 25-30 years back and it looked a helluva lot more involved then. Not a lot of off-the-shelf components available.
